Public Disclosure Day: Confusion, No Surprises

Documents made public today of financial holdings of British Columbia elected officials cotained no surprises, but the filing procedure was marked with considerable confusion, particularly at the municipal level.

Deadline for filing under the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act was Sept. 15 at 4:30 p.m. But because the date fell on a Sunday, many officials pushed the deadline ahead to today at 4:30 p.m.

The provincial government released disclosure documents on Premier Dave Barrett, cabinet and all backbenchers at 8:30 a.m. today although a couple of MLA forms were not available because of a clerical delay.

In Saanich, municipal clerk Gordon Hayward said he interpreted the deadline as being 4:30 p.m. but released the forms of the six aldermen who had filed prior to that time.

Oak Bay clerk E. H. Hart interpreted the legislation to mean public access would not be granted until Tuesday and held back the forms.

In Central Saanich, municipal assessor Gay Wheeler said the disclosure papers would not be available for public viewing until next week.

He said municipal clerk Fred Durrand had gone to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Vernon for the week and he was the only person with the authority to show the files.

An official of the attorney-general's office said it was customary for deadlines to be extended when the date on the legislation is a holiday. He said this would make the deadline the close of business today.

Oak Bay's failure to disclose information until Tuesday is a technical non-compliance as is the non-disclosure of Central Saanich.

A clerk failing to disclose information could be fined up to $500 and a civic official who fails to disclose his holdings could be fined up to $10,000.

★ Little Wealth In Cabinet

Disclosures by the provincial cabinet proved to be dull reading today as all the ministers, from Premier Barrett down, listed few financial holdings.

The only exception was Resources Minister Bob Williams, who listed no holdings in any corporations nor businesses but disclosed eight separate land holdings in Victoria and the Lower Mainland.

Five ministers handed in blank disclosure forms and several others listed only one land holding or one creditor or shares in one credit union or bank.

The premier's scanty disclosure listed one land holding — a lot in Haney which he described as a former residence he had sold. Under the agreement for sale, a balance of $6,085 is still owing for the property.

Besides six shares valued at $30 in Metro Co-op Services and a $1,000 debenture in Broadway Commonwealth Society, Barrett's only financial holding has no market value.

He holds 200 shares in Cumberland Mining Company Ltd., a firm struck off the B.C. Companies Register in March, 1971.

Williams' land holdings include three lots in Victoria, one in Langford, two in Vancouver, one in North Vancouver and one in Indian Arm.

The resources minister listed four creditors — Bank of B.C., Royal Bank, Bank of Montreal and Noella Ringuette of Vancouver.

One of the longest disclosures was filed by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who listed share holdings in 13 different ventures — mostly trust funds, debentures and savings plans.

A-G's Holdings Varied

Macdonald's holdings are with: Investors Mutual of Canada, Pacific Mutual Fund, Government of Canada savings bond, Bank of Nova Scotia debenture, Ontario Hydro Debenture, Marlowe-Yeoman Realty Trust, Co-operative Insurance policy, North America Life Insurance policy, Broadway Commonwealth debenture, Vancouver Tennis Club debenture, United Accumulative Investments retirement plan, Canada Trusteed Income Fund and Ventures Ltd.

The attorney-general listed his only creditor as the federal department of national revenue and disclosed two land holdings: half interest in a building site and cottage at Buccaneer Bay and a lot in Burnaby.

Speaker Gordon Dowding listed holdings in three companies: Universal Park-O-Matic Inc., Highland Lode Silver Mines and Great Central Mines.

His only other disclosure was a guarantee for assurity with Toronto Dominion Bank.

Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich listed four land holdings including a lot on Olebar Point on Gabriola Island and three parcels in South Wellington.

Stupich disclosed holdings in the Bank of B.C., Vancouver Island Golf Club, Mid-Island Co-operative Services, Nanaimo and District Credit Union and Magroup Holdings Ltd.

He listed Nanaimo Commonwealth Holding Society as his one creditor and revealed he has received remuneration from Church, Pickard and Company, the chartered accountant firm for which he formerly worked.

Paid by Credit Unions

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley revealed a long list of co-operatives and credit unions which have paid him for services, including: Surrey Co-op Association, North Fraser Petroleum Co-op, Mission City Credit Union, Nicola Valley Credit Union, Vancouver City Savings Credit Union, Gulf and Fraser Fisherman's Credit Union and B.C. Government Employees Credit Union.

Hartley holds shares in Reichhold Chemical (Canada), owns one lot in Merritt and lists as his only creditor, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke listed a quarter interest in two lots in Okanagan Falls and share holdings in E.B.P. Consultants, a company he said is no longer operating.

Toronto Dominion Bank is a creditor and Cocke disclosed remuneration from Dominion Life Assurancee Co., the firm with which he previously worked.

The way coach Eagle Keyes sees it, B.C. Lions didn't lose a football game Sunday, Montreal Alouettes won one. Regardless, the result was the same, a 31-12 victory for the Als thanks to a late-game blitz that wiped out a lead the Lions were nursing in the third quarter. Page 8.

Team Russia arrived in Quebec City on the weekend for the first of its eight-game hockey series against Team Canada, which can be seen Tuesday on Channel 8 at 5 p.m. A list of the Soviet players reveals that most of them were in the 1972 series against the National Hockey League all-stars. This time they're playing the Selects from the World Hockey Association and at least one WHA rookie has butterflies. Page 9.

Vancouver Canuck holdovers reported to training camp this morning at Memorial Arena but Orland Kurtenbach, the team captain since Canucks entered the National Hockey League, is on his way to Seattle as coach of the Totems, Vancouver's affiliate in the Central League. Page 9.

Despite that prolonged pre-season player strike, the National Football League opened its regular schedule and the big stars were all there. But the day belonged to the defensive squads. Page 8.

The soccer farce continued on the weekend when two Victoria clubs, Gorge and London Boxing Club, knuckled under to threats by provincial officials and dropped out of the B.C. League. They have been ordered to play in the Vancouver Island League but local officials are being churlish about letting them back in. Page 10.

Ford Grants Conditional Amnesty

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Describing it as an act of "reconciliation," President Ford today offered conditional amnesty to approximately 15,500 draft dodgers and many more deserters in exchange for up to 24 months of public service and a re-affirmation of allegiance to the United States.

The offer requires draft evaders and deserters to surrender to a U.S. attorney or military officials before Jan. 31, 1975, and applies only to violations between Aug. 4, 1964, and March 28, 1973.

The proposal fell short of the demands of war resisters and a spokesman for one group describing it as "a cover-up and not amnesty" predicted very few people would accept Ford's offer.

Those who shun the program or do not satisfactorily complete their part of the clemency offer would be subject to prosecution if they return to the country of their birth.

Of the 15,500 potentially eligible for clemency, about 8,700 already have been convicted, an additional 4,350 are under indictment and 2,250 are under investigation.

Of those under indictment, 4,060 are listed as fugitives and an estimated 3,000 of them are in Canada.

Officials said 130 persons are serving prison sentences for draft evasion and presumably are eligible for release pending reviews of their cases by the clemency board.

The officials said some 500,000 incidents of desertion falling within the scope of the clemency program were recorded during the Vietnam war.

They said approximately 12,500 deserters are still at large, with about 1,500 of them in Canada.

About 660 deserters are serving sentences or are awaiting trial.

The offer will be ignored by the majority of U.S. draft dodgers and deserters living in the Vancouver-Victoria area, a spokesman for the Committee to Aid American War Resistors predicted today.

Mike Carley, who worked for the Vancouver committee for two years and is now working for the B.C. Civil Liberties Association, said today the clemency conditions were stiffer than he expected.

"After the pardon of Richard Nixon, I thought the alternate service requirements would be about six months instead of the 24 they're talking about now.

"I really don't think that many people will take advantage of it."

Carley said he was surprised at the clemency condition which "in effect, offers guaranteed jobs. There is really serious unemployment

JOURNEY'S END for the 120-foot Nova Scotian schooner Robertson II came Sunday when she sailed into the Inner Harbor after an 8,000-mile trip from Lunenburg, N.S. Her owner, Dr. Philip Ney (wearing cap) is seen shaking hands with Robert Herschfield of Victoria. Also seen aboard the 34-year-old fishing schooner, which will be used as a floating children's camp as part of the West-Trek Program, are, left to right, Donald Enmark of Vancouver, Garnet Riviere of Victoria and Kevin Akins of Victoria. The Robertson II left Lunenburg on July 5, sailing via the Panama Canal to the Pacific Ocean and up the coast to Victoria. (John Murphy Photo).

Turkish Premier Resigns

ANKARA (UPI) — Premier Bulent Ecevit, hailed as a hero over his handling of the Cyprus crisis, resigned today, plunging Turkey into its second government crisis in seven months.

Ecevit handed his resignation to President Fahri Koruturk during a one-hour meeting at the presidential palace, a spokesman said.

Ecevit refused to answer newsmen's questions when he left the presidential palace.

"The premier will hold a news conference later today," a party official said.

Ecevit, a former labor minister who first gave Turkish workers the right to strike, rose to the peak of popularity when he landed troops on Cyprus July 20 to protect the island's Turkish minority.

2 JUDGES SLAIN BY BELFAST IRA

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorists killed two of Northern Ireland's most prominent judges at their homes in Belfast early today, police said.

The two were Roger Rory Conaghan, a Roman Catholic, and Martin McBirney, a Protestant, both accused by the Irish Republican Army of collaborating with the British. (The Provisional Wing of the IRA) claimed it ordered the killings.

Police say the pair may have been killed as a warning because they sent IRA men to prison.

Conaghan was shot by a lone gunman when he answered a knock at his front door at breakfast time.

"He was shot through the heart and died almost instantly," one source said.

McBirney was shot at his home in a nearby street at about the same time.

McBirney, a leading prosecutor before he was appointed to the bench in 1969, was a former chairman of Northern Ireland's Labor party and made an unsuccessful race for the British Parliament 10 years ago.

The deaths raised the official death toll in the last five years of Protestant-Catholic fighting in Northern Ireland to 1,062.

Angry Hijacker Blows Up Plane

Times News Services

SAIGON — Authorities blamed a disgruntled playboy officer in the government's crack Ranger force today for blowing up an Air Vietnam jet during an abortive attempt to hijack the plane to Hanoi.

Police said the officer, recently-demoted for car theft, led a three-man band that blew up the Boeing 727 Sunday over the Phan Rang air base, killing all 70 persons aboard.

The hijacker, Le Duc Tan, was "well known as a heavy drinker, womanizer and gambler," according to police.

The pilot's radio transmissions to ground controllers indicated Tan, disguised in the uniform of a paratroop major, had two accomplices in the hijack attempt.

It was the first hijacking to result in a large number of deaths, and the first time a hijacked plane was blown up in the air.

Officials said Tan bypassed security checks Sunday when he boarded the Air Vietnam Boeing 727 at Da Nang for a flight to Saigon.

Officials said when the airliner was about halfway from Da Nang to Saigon, Tan, dressed as a paratroop officer burst into the cockpit of the plane, waved two hand grenades and demanded to be flown to North Vietnam.

The air pirate became angry when the crew tried to talk him out of the hijacking

Breakthrough Seen In Embassy Siege

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Dutch and French officials claimed fresh progress today in negotiations with three Japanese Red Army guerrillas holding nine hostages in the besieged French embassy.

A few hours after the gunmen freed two women hostages and threatened to kill the nine remaining male captives, French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues said negotiations had taken "a very positive turn."

He did not elaborate.

Dutch Interior Minister De Gaay Fortman inspected 200 policemen, including sharpshooters, surrounding the modern, concrete and glass embassy.

"Negotiations are developing," he said.

Art Bulldozed Underground

MOSCOW (UPI) — "It's just like Czechoslovakia," one man shouted as a handful of Russians pelted the advancing Soviet bulldozers with balls of mud.

The mud failed to stop the bulldozers from smashing up an abstract art show, however, just as rocks couldn't keep Soviet tanks from overrunning Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Bulldozers, water trucks and burly police barreled in Sunday to disperse about 200 men, women and children gathered in a Moscow suburb for an unsanctioned exhibit of abstract art.

The Soviet Union, which only sanctions art depicting "socialist realism," arrested five artists, manhandled some foreign diplomats and assaulted five western newsmen.

Veteran diplomats, journalists and Soviet onlookers agreed that it was the nastiest scene of its kind in Moscow in years.

Political demonstrations of any kind in the Soviet capital are always broken up in minutes and the participants, who usually number only a handful, are taken away.

A group of 13 underground artists picked a patch of wasteland in suburban Semenovskoye for the exhibition, hoping the out-of-the-way location would head off troubles with Soviet officials.

Authorities used an iron fist to break up the show, however, claiming the rain-swept muddy tract southwest of Moscow was needed for building a "park of rest and culture."

During the confrontation, some Russians tossed clods of dirt and mud at advancing bulldozers. The bulldozers pushed large sewage pipes toward the crowd, missing several persons by inches.

Plainclothes police, backed by burly young men claiming to be young Communist League members, ripped the canvasses out of the hands of artists. One man trampled a painting under his boots, screaming curses.

Artist Nadeznda Elskaya, one of five artists arrested was sentenced today to 15 days in prison for petty hooliganism, her friends reported.

Another arrested artist, who was later released, said all confiscated paintings were burned on the spot.

While provincial Liberal leader David Anderson reported modest holdings of $25,000 in shares, some Liberal backbenchers appear to be among the more affluent members of the legislature.

Vancouver Point Grey MLA Garde Gardom has shares in 12 companies, is a partner in the law firm of Gardom and Volrich and has a two-thirds interest in two properties, one in the 100 block East Second Avenue in downtown Vancouver and another in the Williams Lake area.

He has shares in Dynasty Exploration, Finning Tractor and Equipment, Massey Ferguson Ltd., Mohawk Industries Ltd., Neonex International, Pacific Western Airlines, Sherritt Gordon Mines and Trans Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

In addition, he has shares in four other companies which he marked with a "D" and explained in a footnote it stands for "Dog."

They are Casino Silver Mines, Lancer of Canada, Monterey Petroleum and Rocket Mines Ltd.

As a further footnote to his disclosure form, Gardom wrote: "Would be happy to sell all for what I paid for them — can this be arranged?"

He listed the Toronto Dominion Bank as a creditor.

West Vancouver Liberal MLA Allan Williams reported holding shares in the following companies: Investors Syndicate Mutual Fund, South Pacific Mines, Warnock Hersey International, Bank of British Columbia, Savanol Manufacturing, Burrard Mortgage Investments.

He is a partner in the law firm of Paine, Edmonds, Williams, Dudley and Woodley.

North Vancouver Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson is president of Scionara Holdings Ltd. and has shares in five companies.

They are: Spuraway Holdings, Giant Mascot Mines, Giant Exploration, Torwest Resources and Scionara Holdings.

His creditors are the Royal Bank of Canada and members of his family.

The desclosure form of Vancouver East Liberal MLA Pat McGeer was not available at press time.

Social Credit MLA Newell Morrison appears to have the most extensive holdings among local backbenchers.

He is the president of five companies, including Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd.

In addition, he holds shares in 11 companies and has land holdings in North Saanich.

By contrast, Esquimalt NDP MLA James Gorst has no reportable holdings.

Conservative MLA Hugh Curtis, Conservative, is a shareholder of C-FAX Radio and has a number of cash deposits with trust companies in Victoria.

The other two local MLAs, Conservative party leader Scott Wallace, Oak Bay, and Liberal leader David Anderson, Victoria, released their financial holdings on Friday.

Anderson reported holdings of about $25,000 worth of various shares and Wallace reported shares in Provident Mutual Fund Ltd. and a $200 debenture with Victoria Golf Club.

The MLAs are not required to estimate the cash value of their holdings but must list the companies in which they have a financial interest or are in debt to.

Their holdings:

Hugh Curtis, Conservative, Saanich and The Islands: On the sales and production staff and a shareholder of C-FAX Radio; has guaranteed investment certificates (cash deposits) with National Trust, Royal Trust and Canada Trust; has registered retirement savings plan with Canada Trust; has special savings accounts with National Trust; creditor: Demand loan from Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Victoria.

James Gorst, NDP, Esquimalt: No reportable holdings or creditors.

Morrison holds shares in the following companies: Island Holdings Ltd., B.C. S.K. Development, Morrison Aircraft Sales, Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile, Morrison Travelworld, Highland Insurance Agency (inactive), Intercontinental Exports (inactive), Bank of British Columbia, Grouse Mountain Resorts Ltd., Rolls Royce Motors.

Morrison also has land holdings through B.C. S.K. Development Company of the following: Part of lot 7, sections 10 and 11 in North Saanich, lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 of section 10, North Saanich.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce is a creditor of B.C. S.K. Development Company.

The bank is also a creditor of Morrison Aircraft Sales and Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd.

Karen Sanford, NDP, Comox: No reportable holdings or creditors.

Robert Skelly, NDP, Alberni: One share of Qualicum Beach Airlines Ltd., owns western half of lot 30, DL 8, in Hilliers, B.C. Creditor: Parksville and District Credit Union.

Some Resign

"The files are locked up until his return," Wheeler said.

Disclosures filed by municipal and school board officials in the Victoria area, as available, are on page 15 today.

The reports on all MLAs and Victoria-area elected officials will be published later as they become available.

Some public officials in B.C. have indicated they will not seek re-election because of the public disclosures act.

Keith Beise, school board chairman for Vancouver Island North School District and Mrs. Annis Hennigar, vice-chairman of the same board, announced that they will not file statements of their financial affairs under the act.

Mrs. Hennigar's husband, Owen Hennigar, also said he will resign as a director of the Mount Wadding Regional District, rather than disclose his finances.

Other municipal officials not seeking re-election include North Saanich alderman Herta Hartmanshenn and Central Saanich alderman Zach Hamilton.

and summoned his two "bodyguards and security men" dressed in civilian clothes to help him.

They said the pilot argued with the hijacker as the three-engine jet circled over Phan Rang running low on fuel. He pulled the pins on his grenades when the pilot tried to set the jet down to refuel, they said.

Meanwhile, Communists bombed a South Vietnamese government office today wounding five persons.

The bombing was the first act of terrorism in Saigon attributed to Communists since the January, 1973, ceasefire agreement.

A man and three women on motorbikes hurled the explosives into a downtown building and the blast wounded two military officers and three others, according to police.

TRANSIT STRIKE LEGISLATION SET

MONTREAL (UPI) — With both subway and bus services shut down, Premier Robert Bourassa today summoned a special session of the Quebec National Assembly to enact legislation to end the six-week Montreal transit strike.

Bus services, only partially hit when 1,600 transit maintenance workers went on strike and closed down the subway service Aug. 7, were completely tied up today when drivers refused to cross picket lines set up by the maintenance men.

The provincial government's decision to summon the National Assembly in Quebec City at 3 p.m. EDT Wednesday followed a warning last week by Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer the Assembly would be asked to pass legislation ordering the strikers back to work if no settlement were reached during the weekend.

Negotiations broke down early today between Cournoyer and Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Back to work legislation could be completed by the end of this week.

The complete transit tie-up in Canada's biggest city saw thousands hitch-hiking and biking to and from work. Police reported mammoth traffic jams and taxis were doing hectic business.

The strikers, who work for the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission, (MUCTC), walked off initially to protest suspension of 73 employees who refused to work statutory holidays and to press for reopening of their contract to include a cost of living allowance.

Since then they have added demands for withdrawal of court fines for disregarding an injunction ordering them back to work, and full pay for all strikers for the duration of the walkout.

Empress Strike Averted

Agreement was reached and a strike averted at the Empress Hotel Sunday.

"It is one of the best contracts I've seen at any hotel," said Jean Hardy, chairman of Local 276 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

The agreement, reached by negotiators early Sunday morning and ratified by more than 400 union members Sunday afternoon, provides a total wage increase, in three stages, of $1.50 an hour in a two-year contract.

A statement this morning from the hotel said the average wage rate increase, counting adjustments, is 55.7 per cent — from $2.87 per hour to $4.47.

Lowest pay rate in the old agreement was $2.56 an hour but there was a special probationer rate of 10 cents an hour below this. The agreement eliminates this lower pay rate.

The settlement also provides for double time for work on the sixth and seventh days in a week and three weeks vacation after six years employment (after five years in the second year of the contract) and four weeks after 12 years.

Mrs. Hardy also said there were numerous individual classification pay adjustments.

Agreement was reached with the assistance of Clark Gilmour, labor department mediation officer.

Mother Can't Testify

Mother Cecilia Mary, 85-year-old founder of the Society of the Love of Jesus, was ill today and unable to continue testimony in a B.C. Supreme Court trial.

She was on the witness stand for five hours Friday and was to have returned for completion of cross-examination.

But court was told she has been ill since Friday evening and could not return to court Wednesday at the earliest.

Mother Cecilia and four other society members, termed the "traditional" faction, are suing for control of the society which has assets estimated at $1.5 million.

A "modern" faction in the society operates an extended care hospital and a home for the elderly at St. Mary's Priory in Langford.

The trial continued this morning with Sister Mary Lucy Forde, 74, another of the traditional group, called to the stand.

The trial completed its fifth day today before Mr. Justice H. C. McKay at the Law Courts. Hugh McMillan is counsel for the traditional group and Cecil Branson and Patrick Bion represent the society.

amongst the Vietnam veterans and this offers guaranteed employment to resistors."

Carley said most of the dodgers and deserters he knew "have simply become Canadians."

"Most came here in the first place because they felt they were right about this. They're not about to announce at this late date that they were wrong about the Vietnam war."

"Desertion in time of war is a major, serious offence; failure to respond to the country's call of duty is also a serious offence," Ford said. "Reconciliation does not require that these acts be condoned.

"Yet reconciliation calls for an act of mercy to bind the nation's wounds and to heal the scars of devisiveness."

In prescribing the length of alternative service in individual cases, Ford said, the Attorney-General, the secretary of the appropriate department or the clemency board should take into account any service that an individual may have rendered prior to his absence, penalties already paid under law and other mitigating factors.

the weather

Afternoon temperatures soared to the eighties at many southern interior B.C. points while mid seventy readings were attained at most other reporting stations in the province. The exceptions were again over northwestern regions where the mercury barely reached the mid sixties as a chain of Pacific disturbances continues to plague that area.

Very little change is expected in the present pattern for the next 24 to 48 hours although a slight southward progression of the disturbances may occur spreading cloud and the possibility of showers to the central coast. Some cloud and the odd showers may also creep into the northern and central interior of the province today. Early morning fog patches will give way to mainly sunny skies and warm temperatures over most southern regions during the days as the effects of the high pressure ridge continues to be felt.

How can you beat higher fares to Europe?

Introducing our new, low APEX* Fare.

Our what? Our Advance Purchase Excursion Fare, on regularly-scheduled British Airways flights from Toronto or Montreal. If you're flying to London you save $41 over the normal 22-to-45 day economy excursion fares but, granted, there are a few differences.

With APEX,* you've got to book 2 months in advance of your departure and pay your entire fare at that time. (If you travel in November you can reserve your seat and purchase your ticket anytime in September.) Children under 12 can travel for ⅔ of the adult fare, infants under 2 for 10%. The hitch is that if you cancel or change your departure or return dates after you have purchased your tickets, there's a penalty of 10% or minimum of $50.

Our daily roster of jets to London, Manchester and Glasgow gives you quite a choice, and we've got an incredible number of handy connections to all over Europe.

So, if you can live with a fixed departure and return date, you can fly to Britain, for $41 less than normal 22-to-45 day fares.

If you're interested (and who wouldn't be), you'd better book soon because the number of APEX* seats on any flight is limited. Just tell your travel agent you'd like the new APEX* fare to Britain. And a seat on British Airways.

Striking Instructors Hint At Softening of Stand

By The Canadian Press

The president of the Vocational Instructors Association said Sunday a picket line at the Langara campus of Vancouver Community college would be lifted temporarily today to allow students to attend a meeting in support of striking instructors.

But Karl Gregg said the strike would continue until Labor Minister Bill King agrees to appoint a non-binding industrial inquiry commission into the eight-month contract dispute.

Virginia Beirnes, chairman of the Vancouver Community College Council, announced Sunday that the council had decided to join the VIA in asking King to appoint the commission.

She said the college made the request with the understanding that if King agrees, the association would immediately withdraw all pickets and return to work.

King could not be reached for a comment on the issue.

In a statement after an executive meeting Sunday night, Gregg said the association would "take steps to end the strike" when confirmation is received from the Labor Minister that he has agreed to appoint an inquiry commission.

This could be interpreted to mean that the VIA has softened its demand for binding arbitration, he said.

Under provincial labor legislation, both sides must agree to binding arbitration before or after the appointment of an industrial inquiry commission.

The 280 members of the VIA went on strike last Tuesday. Picket lines were set up at all college campuses of the Vancouver Community College and at John Oliver and Kitsilano high schools, used for some college classes.

There are still 10 issues to be settled in the dispute. The top issues include shift differential (higher pay for evening or split shifts), paid time for professional development and time for student contact.

Meanwhile, in the Nelson, Trail, Grand Forks and Castlegar districts, and Selkirk College in Castlegar, school operations returned to normal today, ending a strike that began two weeks ago.

About 240 non-teaching employees in the west Kootenay, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, during the weekend voted 95 per cent in favor of a new two-year contract.

The contract calls for an 18 per cent increase retroactive to July 1, 1974 and a 13 per cent increase effective March 1, 1975.

CUPE representative, Clarence Lacombe said the base rate, $3.90 an hour under the old pact, will rise to $4.60 in the first step and to $5.20 in the second.

Mountain Fire Mop-Up

DUNCAN — Firemen are mopping up today on a mountain forest fire five miles north of here.

A helicopter and two aerial tankers were used during the weekend to prevent the fire from spreading.

A spokesman for B.C. Forest Service said the three acre fire, on the eastern slope of Mount Sicker, is believed to have been started Saturday afternoon by a careless smoker.

Sixteen workmen from North Cowichan are using five water trucks and two tractors to extinguish the fire.

The spokesman said the fire has burned dead brush, moss and timber, but the monetary loss was not expected to be high.

Depots Take Rake-Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some Mainland beer bottle depots were to start taking empties again today.

Members of the B.C. Beer Bottle Depot Association planned to pay the public 50 cents a dozen for empties — instead of 60 cents — keeping 10 cents a dozen as a fee for handling.

Association president Bill Wosk said Sunday if people don't like the fee they can take their empties back to the liquor store where they will get 60 cents.

Depot operators claim it doesn't pay to handle bottles at 60 cents a dozen.

In Victoria, bottle dealers will continue to pay 60 cents a dozen for empties, netting five cents for themselves. Brewers now have an ample supply of bottles since the return price rose from 25 cents a dozen, a spokesman for Pacific Brewers Distributors Ltd. said.

Larry Freeman, spokesman for International Bottle Depot Ltd., the largest lower mainland collection agency for Pacific Brewers, said International will continue to pay the public 60 cents a dozen.

He said this was the instruction of Pacific Brewers and International would continue the policy until otherwise instructed.

If the new colour TV you choose is one of our Toshiba Briterons, you're going to be together for a long, long time. Toshibas have a way of lasting ten years, or more. Since that's a long time for a colour TV to keep you happy, before you buy, give it ten minutes, at least. Comparing. Turn on the other makes. Then turn on ours. Notice how 25,000 volts of picture power coming through a black matrix colour picture tube, and backed up by a 100% solid state chassis, delivers distinct, sharper, brighter colour. In other words, see how "Briteron" got its name.

Some of the other makes will have colour selection knobs and tint adjustments. Turn them. Adjust them. Then, please, press our single, automatic button that adjusts both colour and tint at the touch of a finger.

Measure their screens against the dollars they ask. Then see what you get for your money with Toshiba. 18" and 20" screens of colour viewing, together with complete portability. Your Toshiba Briteron will live with you; you don't have to live around it.

Check their outward appearance. Then take note of our handsome walnut and ebony finish and streamlined brushed-chrome fascia. Ask yourself which you'd rather live with for 10 years. And see if you don't also get the feeling that the Toshiba Briteron is solid, and well built.

One thing you won't be able to compare in the store without asking, so we'll tell you here, is our guarantee of complete reliability in the form of a one year in-home warranty. At no cost to you.

A Long Uphill Road

Finance Minister John Turner, never a man particularly noted for sweet talk, laid a few plain truths before Canadians last week in two public addresses. But his remarks will not be welcomed by most people and his logic will be questioned by many. The reasons are that his comments were tough and his reasoning was hard. Such attitudes are not popular with the public. Not only would people rather hear that problems have easy solutions and that remedies can be made painless, they are accustomed to hearing such stuff from governmental ministers.

Thus Mr. Turner's prediction of two tough years ahead for Canadians if inflation is to be slowed, and his warning that individual restraint will be necessary if the price spiral is to be controlled — along with equally valid assertions that the eventual cure will have to be international — were not likely to be enthusiastically received, and they weren't.

But the fact remains that the spending and consuming and waste that help to accelerate the inflationary process in our economy will have to undergo drastic changes if the trend is to be eased, and this will not be easy to accomplish. We are physically addicted to an affluent society, and we are mentally unprepared to alter our tastes.

Mr. Turner should recognize, of course — and probably does although he does not stress it — that advice to individuals to restrain their spending must apply also to governments — federal, provincial and local. The federal and provincial governments are the greatest offenders in this regard, since the outpouring of public funds has been greater and more varied in the past few years of inflation than ever before. Restraint should start at home, for individuals will recognize that it is fruitless for them to keep out of the market if the government takes their money and itself goes into heavy purchasing of goods and services.

The near panic that swept government leaders when unemployment loomed as a sinister threat to the economy — and to re-election — led to heavy spending in all directions. It may have helped unemployment but it had the predictable effect on prices. They soared.

It is interesting now, and it may be productive, that Mr. Turner is calling again for conferences between government, business management and labor to try to come up with policies and programs that may ease inflation. Mr. Trudeau's effort a couple of years ago to obtain voluntary restraint on prices by business and on wage demands by organized labor met with failure.

But revival of the move now suggests that labor leaders may have come at last to recognize that continual wage increases at a high rate are largely self-defeating when they contribute in part to still higher prices. The dog must be getting tired even if the tail isn't. And management knows that stable conditions are more conducive to expanding business than the hectic chase of rampant inflation.

Whether it is coincidence or emulation, the Canadian move toward a round of talks comes as President Ford is promoting similar discussions and recommendations in the United States.

The whole exercise may prove abortive. Certainly no overnight remedy can be expected. But at least more people may gain a better idea of what is going on in the economy and why — and so understand why it is that the cure will be tough and prolonged. The incentive will be that no cure at all will be even more painful.

Get Back On the Tracks

By all accounts, the Royal Hudson steam train excursion operated by the British Columbia Railway between Vancouver and Squamish has been a roaring success this summer.

With sold-out cars on almost every trip, the old locomotive is well on the way to recovering the $300,000 it cost to refurbish her and pay for old passenger coaches. It has proved an economic boon to the village of Squamish, with 400 tourists dropping in each afternoon.

After such a successful first attempt, the BCR might turn its talents to the Victoria area and kill several birds with one stone. Consider three facts.

The E & N is making mournful sounds again about deficits on its passenger service to Courtenay. Another old steam locomotive and several pieces of rolling stock sit idle on a siding at the Colwood overpass beside the Island Highway. Some 85 miles of railway track, formerly used by CNR trains, lie rusting in the bush from Victoria to Cowichan Lake.

While refusing to recognize the E & N's desire to terminate its promise of "perpetual" passenger service in exchange for a huge grant of land on southern Vancouver Island, the BCR may still be able to play a major role in reviving rail travel as a good way of getting about.

Bring all three factors together and the provincial government railway could have a sure-fire summer tourist attraction on its hands — to judge from the success on the mainland — as well as a way of bringing commuters in droves back to train travel.

Italy: The Carnival Is Over

BELLAGIO, Lake Como — As one contemplates this extraordinarily beautiful lake, the neat bustling villages, the artfully terraced orchards, vineyards, gardens, the gay Italian families on their holidays, one can hardly imagine that anything has changed, that the "Italian miracle," the remarkable economic expansion and social upgrading of the past fifteen years, is not still continuing.

Yet these appearances are unhappily deceptive. The inexorable statistics, the postal system visibly falling apart, the hospitals unable to pay their bills, the bankrupt cities like Rome and Milan, the galloping inflation, the horrendous balance of payments deficit, the desperate efforts of an incoherent coalition government to agree on and enact at least some modest measures of austerity, all testify to the fact that the carnival is over, indeed that there may be approaching a genuine "crisis of the regime."

Deceptive Appearances

Of course these appearances also may be deceptive. History shows many examples of sick societies which managed to survive for a long time. Italy's membership in the European Economic Community affords it exceptional external resources. Germany has just extended a generous loan. But artificial respiration, unaided by internal medicine, cannot restore the nation to health.

What is the matter? What is the cause of breakdown?

First and foremost is Italian history. Italy was for more than three centuries an occupied and divided country and had little political life of its own. Its people were obliged to take refuge in the family and the clan as the basic units of cultural survival. Loyalty to, reliance on, those units has persisted a century after liberation, and what appear to be democratic political parties have in fact reverted to the character of such clans. In that capacity they batten on the body politic and so-cot for their bureaucracies much of its wealth.

This situation is aggravated by the profusion of parties, the fact that all Italian governments must be coalition governments composed of several clans, whose programs are in principle incompatible but who nevertheless unite temporarily to divide up the spoils. Moreover, though Italy has had more than fifty "governments" since Second World War, this is little more than a game of musical chairs, since the same faces appear in each government.

The Italian people are not unaware of this situation. They grumble about it constantly. When the President of the Republic, the Prime Minister and the Secretary General of the Christian Democratic Party appeared this summer at a public funeral in Bologna, they were greeted by the crowd of 70,000 with catcalls and whistles of derision.

PRESIDENT LEONE
. . . catcalls and whistles

Yet the people are also themselves to blame, because they vote time after time for the same old clan or padrone, because they almost automatically cheat the tax collector, because they fail to understand why the American people got rid of President Nixon, because they have become so used to the good things of life that they consume more and more prodigally. Of course in this respect they are no different from citizens of other developed countries, except that Italy has less fat to consume.

What is to be done? There is no simple solution. As Rene Dubos, the eminent biologist, has said: "In all living systems organization limits the possibilities of reorganization." In other words it is not easy for a leopard to change his spots.

Some say that Italy needs a "strong man." This suggestion has a somewhat hollow sound beside Lake Como where Mussolini was strung up by the heels over 29 years ago. There is no DeGaulle visible on the horizon. A "strong man" who was merely the leader of another clan would simply bring in another "family" to drink at the public trough. A military dictatorship? The Greek colonels were not a very encouraging example. And why should the military be any more honest or austere than anyone else?

The Communists of course are waiting patiently. They constitute 25 to 30 per cent of the electorate. They control extensive areas, Tuscany, Emilia, Bologna, and appear to govern them with singular efficiency. But a national government they would dominate seems inconceivable and, if by chance it should appear, would probably provoke the same reaction Allende did. A coalition government in which they would participate but not dominate seems quite conceivable, but one wonders whether such government would not be just as incoherent and paralysed as other coalitions.

Best System

The best system for Italy might be one in which a single party or clan had full power—and responsibility—for four or five years, and then was thrown out in favor of another which would clean house thoroughly. That would require painful changes in ingrained political habits.

Obviously no foreigner can devise a suitable formula. That solution must be found by the enormously talented, ingenious and patient Italian people. Some slowdown in growth will be necessary and not in fact disadvantageous. Italy's participation in a more closely knit EEC, if that occurs, will help, by integrating some of their institutions into more impartial and efficient joint institutions.

This country is really a natural garden, if they will only cultivate it to better advantage. Their fate rests primarily in their own hands.

PETER THOMSON

Review: The Peril of Beryl

OTTAWA—A few weeks ago it appeared that the Food Prices Review Board had as much chance of extending its life as Evel Knievel had of riding his rocket safely across the Snake River canyon.

Now, thanks to the stunning disclosure that 12 million eggs have gone rotten in storage and have had to be destroyed by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency, (with some millions more to come), the Food Prices Review Board and its chairman, Mrs. Beryl Plumptre, have a new lease on life.

There are no guarantees, of course, that the board or Mrs. Plumptre will continue in anything like their present roles after their present term expires in December. But the endorsement by Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet of the board's work on the egg issue is significant.

Taking Sides

Here we have a minister who has clearly set out to line himself up on the consumer's side just as Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan has identified himself closely with the food producers' interests.

Ouellet checked with the prime minister before coming out with his endorsation of the board and his public criticism of Whelan. Having established that the consumer has a friend in cabinet, would it be politically wise to undermine him by letting the Food Prices Review Board fade away?

If the board does survive, in some form or other, it will be largely due to the political know-how of Plumptre. She has not had an easy time establishing some credibility for the board, but she has made a couple of deft political moves when it really counted. And finally, she has come down on the right side of an extremely popular issue.

Whether the board deserves to become a permanent fixture is another matter, and one that can best be decided by looking back over the turbulent life of the board.

Almost immediately after Mrs. Plumptre was appointed, she became everybody's favorite "whipping boy." She was criticized for the size of her salary, for inadvertent comments like the one in which she said people didn't have to eat bacon at then-prevailing prices, and primarily because the board didn't appear to be doing anything.

Then, in August, came Plumptre's first deft political move. At a press conference she divulged that she was not getting much co-operation from the government in seconding staff.

Her comments created a minor sensation. The press and the public may not have switched suddenly to Beryl's side, but now there was bigger game available and they turned on the government's lackadaisical attitude toward rising food prices.

The Plumptre ploy worked. Soon she had staff and reports started to flow.

The first report, an interim one, called for subsidies on bakery products and milk. Whether or not the idea originated with the board is not important. The idea was taken up by the government and the subsidies put in place at a time when food prices were rising rapidly.

BERYL PLUMPTRE
. . . star definitely rising

During the next six months the Food Prices Review Board came out with many useful reports, useful in the sense that they were educational.

Unfortunately for the board it did not tell people what they wanted to hear, or match the preconceived notions of the politicians, the press and the public.

And so, Mrs. Plumptre and her Food Prices Review Board remained everybody's favorite target. They were either ridiculed or ignored.

In January the board came out with its first report on egg marketing boards and it was a pretty sensational report. However, given the board's stature of the day, it did not create much of a stir.

Two months later the board had better luck when, with Gray's support, it contested the need for a full four-cent increase in bread prices. There was a compromise. The board had its first real taste of victory.

But it was not until the second report on producer marketing boards, which happily coincided with the rotten egg disgrace, that the board emerged on the popular side of a really newsworthy issue. The Plumptre star was definitely rising.

But does this mean the board should be maintained after December?

One can argue that if the Food Prices Review Board had not looked into the operations of producer marketing boards, the egg-breaking fiasco would not have been so well explained.

Educational Work

It can also be argued that the board has done a great deal of useful educational work.

And it can be argued that there have been useful interventions with regard to the bread price increase and the subsidies on milk and bakery products. But has the board gone about as far as it can go in these areas? Has it worked its way out of a job?

In part that might be the case. Yet there is definitely a useful function for the board. There are also dangers.

It would be useful to have a board, reporting to the public, look into matters like the four-fold increase in bailing twine prices in a single year, or the recent scare of a shortage that had people paying atrocious prices for antifreeze.

There is definitely a danger in terms of reference for a prices review board that is too narrow in its terms of reference.

If the board is to continue, the word food should be dropped from its title. It should be a fairly permanent body, so that staffing problems are reduced.

And it probably should have Beryl Plumptre, everyone's favorite whipping boy, as its chairman for another year or two. After all, some political instinct is useful when dealing with politicians.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Pushed Around

How refreshing it is to learn that Svend Kristiansen wishes to defend his rights as to the type of people he can employ and have working in his delicatessen.

Today, when management gets pushed around from every direction, it is encouraging to read that some people can still stand up and be counted.

Half of the bureaucrats in government could be more gainfully employed if it wasn't for politicians who pass such laws and thus create departments whose sole purpose is to tell management that they have no rights whatsoever.

More power to Svend Kristiansen and his campaign to hire the type of person he thinks most efficient for his operation. — Bill Gray, Suite 630, Empress Hotel.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of September 16, 1914

Saanich council voted to offer a reward for information as to the perpetrator of a dastardly outrage recently on the Colquitz Creek, the blowing up of a dam near Rowland's Hotel. The destruction of the artificial barrier brought up the long standing difficulty of the drainage of the creek, which covers a large part of Saanich. Water-logged subdivisions along its upper reaches should be drained by the creek to tidewater, but it's believed the bed of the stream would have to be lowered 10 feet to accomplish this.

Crystal Garden

I am against the development of the Crystal Garden as a dolphinarium. Canada and the United States coastal regions already abound with sealands and aquaria of every description.

Victoria is the Garden City — the name of the structure is the Crystal Garden — so why not carry through the theme? To me the building is reminiscent of the Crystal Palace of Queen Victoria's England and therefore an aesthetically delightful surrounding for the recreation of a conservatory, complete with ornamental iron benches, tables and chairs, with an area set aside for teas and light refreshment.

In other words, I would like to see the Crystal Garden redeveloped in a way that is complementary to its unique architecture and a way that would revive some of the truly Victorian atmosphere that our city is fast losing. — Mrs. T. J. Waller, 387 St. Charles St.

MAO'S GOSPEL EXPURGATED

By JOHN BURNS

PEKING — The gospel of Chinese communism, The Selected Works of Chairman Mao, may soon be revised to remove a number of approving references to the ideological guiding spirit of an earlier age, the ancient sage Confucius.

A document purporting to be a directive of the Communist Party's Central Committee, circulating in the foreign community here, acknowledges that the Chairman's essays and speeches contain numerous quotations from the sage — but lays the blame on two disgraced party figures, Liu Shao-chi and Chen Po-ta, and pledges that the quotations will be excised.

The Confucian references in the chairman's works apparently have become an issue as a result of the year-old ideological rectification drive, The Campaign to Criticize Lin Piao and Confucius, in which the sage is presented as an out-and-out reactionary whose philosophical tenets inspired Mao's former heir, Lin, to mount his alleged coup attempt in 1971. The eight-page document that has come into the hands of diplomats in Peking indicates that the apparent discrepancy — Mao leading a campaign to vilify Confucius when his own works quote him approvingly — has caused disquiet in some party circles. Listed as directive No. 24 in a series of at least 28 that have been issued by the Central Committee since the anti-Confucius campaign opened, the document refers to tracts circulating in at least three South China provinces — Kwangtung, Kwangsi and Fukien — that draw attention to the Confucian references.

These tracts, the document alleges, are the work of anti-Maoist elements. It says the truth is that Mao was busy when most of his works were produced and left the detailed editing to Liu and Chen, who introduced the Confucian material to discredit him.

Liu held the post of President when he was purged at the outbreak of the Cultural Revolution and is widely believed to have died of cancer about 18 months ago. Chen, for years one of Mao's closest associates and his personal secretary, played a prominent role in the Cultural Revolution but has since been purged. The fact that some of the confucian references in Mao's writing appear in text dating back to the earliest days of the revolution in the 1920s and 30s presents no apparent problem for the official expositors. Official denunciations of Liu and Chen already have represented them as subversive elements from the beginning — traitors fully capable of insinuating bourgeois poison into the scripts of the party leader.

One of the Confucian references, albeit indirect, is contained in what is probably the most famous of all Mao's utterances. "Revolution," he wrote in 1926, "is not a dinner party, or writing an essay, or painting a picture, or doing embroidery; it cannot be so refined, so leisurely and gentle, so temperate, kind, courteous, restrained and magnanimous" — these last the virtues of Confucius, as taught to Chinese children through the centuries.

Not all the references are so indirect. A number of essays contain direct quotations from The Analects, a compilation of Confucian teachings, and in a speech to the party's Military Affairs Committee in 1959, Mao is even quoted as saying that "we are no Confucius; but we see that even Confucius made mistakes, so we may conclude that all men without exception . . ."

While the directive's explanation might trouble those uninitiated into the complexities of the Marxist dialectic, with its capacity for resolving apparent contradictions, it is entirely characteristic of the concern Communist parties traditionally show for historical consistency.

Victims of Apartheid Nightmare

By STANLEY UYS
Manchester Guardian

CAPETOWN — The suicide of a 20-year-old Coloured boy in Capetown has brought to light an apartheid tragedy almost unparalleled in South Africa's history.

The boy threw himself under a train at a suburban station when he learnt that his white girlfriend was pregnant. He could not marry her, because the Mixed Marriages Act prohibits marriages across the colour line.

He left his girlfriend all the money he had — 30 Pounds — to help her buy clothes for the baby. He asked her in a suicide note to name the baby after him if it was a boy. The girl's father took the money and used it to pay for an abortion — a legal abortion could be obtained because the father was Coloured.

The girl then tried to commit suicide by cutting her wrists, but failed. She was unaware that her boyfriend was Coloured. She heard of his death after he failed to arrive that evening to take her to a cinema.

The girl, Sonya Shepherd, 17, said afterwards: "I did not know my boyfriend was Coloured. The first I knew was when the police told me. It would not have made the slightest difference. If only he had known that. We could have run away to another country and got married and lived a normal life away from apartheid."

The boy's identity is not being revealed, because his family is leading an illegal try-for-white existence. The father, who is white, met the mother, who is Coloured, in 1950 — the year in which the Mixed Marriages Act was passed. They lived together, defying the Immorality Act of 1951, which prohibits sexual relations across the color line.

They had five children, and the family lived as whites in a white suburb. They could not send the children to school, because their birth certificates classified them as Coloured and they would have been refused admission to a white school. This would have begun events that would have led to their exposure, their expulsion from the white suburb, and the loss of their white friends.

Whenever there was a knock at the door during the mornings, she would hide the children at the back of the house, in case it was a school inspector. "We are so frightened," the mother said. "Every time there is a knock on the door we think they have come to arrest us." (They are contravening the Immorality Act by cohabiting.)

The mother said there were frequent family rows as a result of the strain under which they lived. "The final and fatal row came on the morning my son died. In a moment of anger, I threatened to telephone Sonya's parents and tell them he was Coloured. My son walked out of the house and I never saw him alive again. I feel so guilty."

She also tried to take her life, unsuccessfully. The son, in dying, bequeathed another problem. Because he was Coloured, he could not be buried in a white cemetery — friends would have asked why he was buried in a Coloured cemetery and the family secret would have been revealed. So he was cremated and the ashes put in an urn.

"I have hidden my son's ashes in the house," the mother said, "so that our friends won't ask embarrassing questions."

Sonya said her parents had forbidden her to see her boyfriend's family again. "I don't know much about politics," she said, "but if only he had told me. If only these laws that caused all this had not existed, all this would have been avoided. I can't forget what happened. I have nightmares."

The Conning of Canada by Its Politicians

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The course of federal politics in the two months since the July 8 general election is discouraging, especially for one who likes politicians and retains some affectionate hope for the political parties.

The other day, Morton Shulman, an energetic member of the Ontario Legislature, prefaced a declared intention to get out of politics with a list of recent wrongs and travesties in the society, the economy and the law. The sum of these has brought Dr. Shulman to the dour conclusion that our parties and the politicians are without courage and cannot give us leadership. Compromise, fudging and a general abhorrence of unpopularity with any major group on any issue, have so affected the parties and their leaders at this stage in Canada and Ontario (as Shulman reads it) that the astute person can only look for personal funkholes such as buying gold or a private hideout in the country wilderness.

The pessimistic Shulman solution foretells another "Dark age". It may become most fashionable, especially for the prosperous. Most of us, however, have neither the resources nor the skill for a withdrawal to such expensive security. Shulman's gloom and doom, however, is most understandable.

Discouraging evidence has been piling up since the election. Each of the parties "conned" all of us in the campaign, the winners most of all. This is not the lament of the loser. What bothers me, what I think bothers anyone examining the federal scene, is the bad performance of all parties and leaders since the election.

Of course, the crudest measure of reason for disillusionment is provided by the Trudeau government. One hard working younger Liberal said it for me today: "I can't find an excuse for them. From the prime minister, down through the ministry and the party, since July 8 they've behaved as though they are 'home-free' for four years. You'd think government was a mere bureaucratic exercise, interrupted once in a while by the inconvenience of an election."

There wasn't anything mysterious about the campaign proposals. Trudeau put them forward seriously. Several were far-reaching, costly, and most significant, for example, in transportation and housing. When the Opposition and the media belittled the proposals as mere electoral bait or half-baked, Trudeau and other Liberals came back hard about purposefulness and planning. Surely, you remember the contrasts these positive declarations made with the Stanfield "single theme" of price and income controls or the Lewis-NDP assault on the Tories for their "stupid" obsession and on the corporations for their "rip-offs.".

Last week, several things seemed to sting both the prime minister and his minister of finance out of their post-election limbo. Turner emerged to knock Statistics Canada for daring to indicate in quarterly review of economic indicators that the economy was into a stagnant position. The minister would like StatCan to stick to figures.

Then, to a selected group of reporters, Turner gave his reading of things economic. About the only firm news in it was that any priority for the campaign proposals had either disappeared since the election or had to be fitted within the financial abilities of the government to carry them out . . . which, of course, could mean never!

Let's double back to the campaign. Near its end, I asked Turner for the government's cost estimates on the campaign proposals. He told me that he didn't have them "at his finger-tips". Call my office in the morning, say by 10 a.m. John so-and-so will give them to you.

I called the next day, and the next, and a week later, no price-tag was put out on the proposals by the prime minister or Turner, or their staffs, before the election. They insisted that the proposals were not mere promises but feasible and certain . . . if the government won.

The prime minister and Turner either lied to all of us or told us much less than the truth. Nothing has taken place since July 8 in the economy to alter drastically the primacy or timing of the proposals. At least, neither of the gentlemen has behaved that way. If the economy has gone to hell so quickly, what were they doing, what was most of the ministry doing week after week.

SHULMAN

It's not only Trudeau and Turner who have "conned" us. How many more swan songs are we to have from David Lewis? In what place on any grid of political and economic issues will we find the Progressive Conservatives?

Lewis' parliamentary successor, Ed Broadbent, has inveighed by press release against Bell Telephone increases; otherwise, Lewis has been the wisdom-giver for the New Democrats. About all that he's had to say fits him into the same "stunned" category as Robert Thompson after the Social Credit leader's bubble burst in 1963. Like Thompson, Lewis read the attention he got as the pivotal minority leader after October 1972 as proof that he, in particular, and his party, had achieved, if not major status, at least the opening to it. It was a bad misjudgment, a cruel one for the NDP. Surely, it does little for the party and nothing for the general good to have repeated curtain calls by Lewis. Where's Broadbent?

In Ottawa these past two months, an occasional Tory fires a press release into the press gallery — e.g. about Bell rates or Air Canada or Bill 22. Neither Stanfield nor his chief economic spokesmen have updated anything in the party's views or criticisms since the election. The prime impression is of a leadership and a party which went into and through the campaign without any coherent loyalty or understanding regarding the main undertaking it was giving the people.

This is repetitious. It does seem the stuff for Simple Simon. But let's say it again. The governing party, the official Opposition, and the third party of federal politics, behaved in the campaign and are behaving since it ended in casual and irresponsible ways. Even an optimist is tempted to wail and take cover like the Morton Shulmans.

On the Good Ship Lollipop

By ROBERT JOFFEE

WOODSIDE, Calif. — Shirley Temple Black, who has traveled extensively, says, "I meet people all over the world who think of me as a friend, someone they can trust. They've seen my old films."

In all her travels, however, the former child star of "Baby Take A Bow" and "Bright Eyes" has never been to Africa — except to Egypt. This month she became President Ford's nominee as Ambassador to Ghana.

She has been to Egypt three times. One time, Anwar Sadat, the president told her "Heidi" was one of his favorite films.

Like most Shirley Temple vehicles, "Heidi" has a happy ending. In fact, in the last feet of the last reel, the dimpled moppet with curly blonde hair is so happy that she asks God to "please make every little boy and girl in the world as happy as I am." Film critic David Shipler wrote at the time, "It was seriously considered that the ending of this picture might influence world affairs." And perhaps it did.

Later in life Shirley Temple began to take a conscious interest in world affairs. She has represented the United States at the United Nations, and on other short-term diplomatic assignments.

7,000 Miles Away

The West African state of Ghana is more than 2,000 miles from Egypt, far from Mrs. Black's well-trodden path through Eastern Europe, Western Europe and the Middle East, and more than 7,000 miles from the rolling hills and manicured golf courses of Woodside.

Mrs. Black, now 46, lives in this San Francisco suburb with her husband Charles, a marine biologist and international businessman.

"I read in the encyclopedia that Ghana exports most of the world's cocoa," she said in a recent interview at her home. "I just love chocolate, but I'd better keep my knowledge, such as it is, to myself. I don't know how the senate will like this kind of enthusiasm."

The ambassador-designate admitted that she has much to learn. For example, the spelling of the name of Ghana's chief of state. The chief of state, she said, is "a colonel — let me think a minute — Ah-chee-on-pog, or maybe it begins with an O. It depends on how it's pronounced . . ."

Her family has given her two books to study, "West African Travels; A Guide To People And Places," and a picture book, "Africa: Images And Realities."

She had never heard of "Ghana in Transition," considered a basic text of West African politics, by Yale Prof. David Apter, who is widely regarded as a leading United States authority on Ghana.

'Slap In Face'

Apter, on the other hand, had heard of Shirley Temple Black, although he did not know, until reached by telephone, that she might be the new United States ambassador to Ghana.

His response was negative. In fact, he called the nomination "an insult to Ghana, a slap in the face . . . irrelevant and outrageous." The post calls for "a career foreign service officer or an experienced diplomat," he said, adding that he would use similar words in a protest telegram to Henry Kissinger.

Franklin Williams had the opposite reaction. Williams, a black who served as United States ambassador to Ghana under President Johnson, is now president of the Phelps-Stokes Fund, a New York-based foundation providing support for African educational institutions. He predicted that "Shirley Temple Black will prove to be a sensitive, warm and capable ambassador."

A former envoy to Ghana, who asked not to be named, observed that "half the career foreign service people I've met were fine public servants, but the other half were horse's asses. Being a career diplomat is not what's important.

"If she gets a good deputy chief of mission," he said, "I think she'll be a smash."

Although she is neither a career FSO nor an experienced diplomat, Mrs. Black's international endeavors over the last five years are not unimpressive. She likes to show visitors a large wall in her Woodside pool house which is plastered with photos showing her gripping and grinning with various chiefs of state — and not simply as a tourist with good connections.

A Vietnam Hawk

In 1967, after years as a quiet workhorse of local Republican politics, Mrs. Black ran for congress in a hotly contested campaign in which she was best-known for her hawkish position on Vietnam. She was defeated in the primary by now Rep. Paul McCloskey (R—Calif.).

Many called her defeat "The Sinking of the Good Ship Lollipop," but in 1969, President Nixon made her a United States representative to the 24th General Assembly of the United Nations.

"People were eager to discount her as a dilettante and featherbrain," said one UN observer, "but she proved them wrong. She took the job very seriously, did her homework and really worked — and before long she was highly regarded by almost everybody there."

"At the UN, I made it sort of a personal crusade to learn all I could about developing countries," she recalled. She also took an active interest in health and environmental problems. After leaving the UN in 1970, she began making speeches about pollution and endangered species — man included. Later that year she was appointed deputy chairman of the United States delegation to the UN Conference on the Environment in Stockholm.

More appointments followed: special assistant to the chairman of the President's Council on Environment in Moscow, membership in the United States Commission for UNESCO.

Her particular concern these days is the "world food crisis, which in my opinion is going to make the energy crisis look pale by comparison."

Feel a Kinship

Mrs. Black said her problem is that "people don't realize what I've been doing. Even now, when I'm at home, some friends still think I'm at the UN.

"I know me," she said. "I know how I feel, and I feel a kinship with all human beings. It's just that I can't say that I feel capable because I don't want to have that quoted before the senate hearings."

Two weeks ago, on a visit to the State Department, Mrs. Black said a high official whom she could not name put the problem another way. "We know what you can do and the other countries know what you can do — but Shirley, most journalists aren't aware that you're capable for these assignments."

The world knows, she said, that as a child ("one does have a past") she sat on the laps of so many world leaders "it's a wonder I ever learned to walk." But many people don't realize that as an adult, she has had private meetings with Tito, the Shah of Iran, Khrushchev, Saudi Arabian King Faisal and Golda Meir.

The Ghanaians might be favorably impressed.

How Suite It Is Still the Ideal

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Great National Land and Investment Corporation of Nanaimo will continue to invest in rental apartments despite adverse conditions for landlords, says president Frank Ney.

"I believe that regulations governing apartments will soon be changed — they'll have to if people are going to have a place to live," Ney said in an interview.

"The shortage of rental accommodation is fierce and getting worse. Governments soon will have to change their philosophy and encourage more apartment construction."

Great National Land bought apartments totalling 200 rental units in the past year and will continue in that field.

However, the company is also moving strongly into commercial and industrial properties to diversify its holdings.

Recent expansion includes construction of a $1 million office building in the Great National Industrial Plaza at Nanaimo and $100,000 spent on upgrading the Globe Hotel, built in Nanaimo in 1892.

Ney is hopeful the federal government will restore capital cost allowances against income tax and the provincial government will ease its rental restrictions.

"We are disheartened by the present regulations but not totally discouraged. We will continue in the rental field, although we are moving more vigorously into commercial and industrial projects on Vancouver Island."

Ney made the comments after releasing the annual report of the company for the fiscal year ended April 30.

Net profit was $485,810 or 19.6 cents a share, an increase of 62.5 per cent over the same period a year earlier. Revenue rose to $9.4 million, an increase of $2.5 million and assets totalled $16.8 million, up from $12.4 million.

The company is engaged in various subdivision projects and has a mobile home sale division and a real estate arm. The real estate section involves seven offices on the Island, including new ones opened in Parksville and Ladysmith.

The company has renovated its Sunglo Lumber outlet in Nanaimo to operate on a supermarket concept and plans to open a second retail outlet in the Lake Cowichan area.

Great National has about 2,800 shareholders.

Ney said further expansion is planned by the company but there are no plans to get involved in projects off the Island at this time. All immediate expansion would be on Vancouver Island despite several commercial opportunities on the mainland.

Great National has 13 wholly-owned subsidiaries and a controlling interest in eight other companies.

It completely owns Beach Estates Ltd., D. J. (Don) McRae Insurance Agency Ltd., District General Rental Corp. Ltd., First Northern Land and Investment Corp., Forest Park Estates, Great National Development Corp., Nanaimo Mutual Investment Corp., Nanaimo Realty, Nanaimo Realty (1964) Ltd., Nanaimo Realty Insurance Agency, Nanaimo Trade-in Exchange Services, Smugglers Hill Holdings, Sunglo Lumber.

It owns 55 per cent of Buttertubs Pass Estates, 53 per cent of Five Acres Lands Ltd., 51 per cent of Nanaimo Realty (Duncan) Ltd., 51 per cent of Nanaimo Realty (Courtenay) Ltd., 62.5 per cent of Northfield Coal Co., 70 per cent of Paradise Leisure World Mobile Homes Ltd., 79 per cent of Ucluelet Investments Ltd. and 50.2 per cent of Xeric Investments Ltd.

Overseas Zinc Price Boosted

TORONTO (CP) — Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. is raising its overseas price for zinc to about 37 cents a pound from about 34.

Slightly more than 10 per cent of Hudson Bay mining's zinc production is sold in overseas markets. The remainder is sold in Canada and the United States.

Noranda Sales Corp., marketing unit of Noranda Mines Ltd. of Toronto, raised its overseas price of zinc by a similar amount last Thursday.

The price rise reflects the generally tight overseas market for zinc metal, despite a declining price trend on foreign markets.

INDIVIDUAL DEBITS RISE IN JULY

Debits to individual bank accounts in the Victoria area for July totalled $1.86 billion, up from $1.23 billion in July a year earlier, the Canadian Bankers Association said.

Debits to the accounts had totalled $1.78 billion in June, 1974. The record of funds flowing into bank accounts is considered a prime index of economic vitality of an area.

Zero Growth For Japan

TOKYO (Reuter) — For the first time since the Second World War, Japanese economic growth is grinding to a halt. This year experts foresee a zero or even minus growth.

Factors pushing the economy towards stagnation are low economic growth and steep increases in prices. The two have been at work since before the oil crisis last winter.

A sharp increase in crude oil prices by the Organization for Petroleum Exporting Countries has hit the economy.

Japan's real economic growth for the second quarter of 1974 was 0.6 per cent over the first quarter, a decline of 4.7 per cent.

In making the announcement, the Economic Planning Agency forecasts that the economic growth for both calendar and fiscal 1974 will be at or below zero.

This will be in sharp contrast to an average of 10 per cent real growth which lasted until the end of 1973.

Many economists now believe Japan's refusal to revalue the yen upwards until the last moment was a mistake, because it caused an excessive flow of dollars into Japan, resulting in more yen than the national economy was able to absorb.

'We Never Had a Chance,' Says Eagle

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Alouettes continue to enjoy life at the top of the Eastern Football Conference standings while Ottawa Rough Riders continue to wallow in the EFC cellar after weekend play.

The Alouettes won their seventh game in nine decisions Sunday night, coming from behind to defeat British Columbia Lions 31-12 in a Canadian Football League interlocking clash.

Meanwhile the Riders, defending Grey Cup champions, failed to score a touchdown again as they dropped a 16-9 decision to lowly Calgary Stampeders.

Johnny Rodgers played what coach Marv Levy termed "his best game of the season" by scoring a touchdown on a four-yard run and gaining 187 yards total offence as the Als brought their home record to 5-0.

But it was Phil Price's second interception of the game late in the third quarter that turned the game around for the EFC leaders.

Price grabbed a pass intended for Brock Aynsley and scampered 54 yards down the right sideline for a touchdown that erased a 12-7 B.C. lead.

However the Montreal defender said he was helped by a misplay by Aynsley.

"The receiver ran a quick out," Price said. "But it was a sloppy pattern. The quarterback (Don Moorhead) just took a quick look and let it go."

Jimmy Jones and Peter Dalla Riva got the other touchdowns for the Alouettes, who trailed 3-0 after one quarter and led 7-4 at the half. Don Sweet had four conversions and a field goal.

Slade Willis caught a 22-yard touchdown pass to put the Lions ahead in the third quarter. Willis also booted a 70-yard single while placekicker Ivan MacMillan had a field goal, convert and a single.

The Lions had 10 first downs as they gained 110 yards rushing and 148 passing. Montreal had 23 first downs with 209 yards rushing and 254 yards passing.

"We never had a chance," B.C. coach Eagle Keys noted. "They're one of the hardest charging teams in the league. They're stronger that way than any other team. It creates a lot of problems. We just couldn't move the ball."

"It was gratifying that our defence played as well as it did," Levy said. "Our pass protection was excellent and we had good balance. But the B.C. defence was tough to run against and they made us go outside."

Meanwhile the Stampeders chalked up their second victory of the year with a win over the punchless Rough Riders who have scored one touchdown in their last five games.

The only touchdown of the game was scored by the Stampeders Don Willingham as he broke a 9-9 tie with a one-yard run with 5¼ minutes gone in the fourth quarter.

Cyril McFall added a convert and three field goals while Gerry Organ booted three field goals to account for all the Ottawa offensive output.

And if things were not bad enough, Ottawa now has to face the rest of the season without fullback Jim Evenson. Evenson suffered strained ligaments in his right leg in the third quarter.

"We're doing everything, but we're just not scoring," said Ottawa coach George Brancato.

Asked if some of his players were just not putting out their best, he replied:

"Whether they are putting out or not, some of them just are not good enough."

Kicker Eyed By Lions

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Big-kicking Barry Stewart is attracting the attention of B.C. Lions.

Officials connected with the Canadian Football League club have written to say they will look at Stewart next weekend when he plays for Victoria Dolphins against Vancouver Blue Bombers on the Lower Mainland.

But although Stewart was really in form with his boot Sunday, he wasn't able to stave off a 31-2 hiding the Dolphins suffered at the hands of Renfrew Trojans in a B.C. Big Four Junior Football League game before only about 100 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Stewart averaged 52 yards with six punts in the first half and 46 yards for eight punts in the second half. Twice he kicked the ball 68 yards from the line of scrimmage.

But Stewart's kicking was about the only bright spot in another sad game for the Dolphins, who have now lost five in a row. They began fairly well, actually, bursting several times inside the Trojans' 10-yard line. But once there, the finish was lacking and the Dolphins couldn't make that elusive touchdown.

The Trojans scored one touchdown in each quarter, the first by Dave Rowah when the Dolphins blocked a field-goal attempt but then lost possession.

Brian Davis got a touchdown on a three-yard run and Brian McAdam converted both of them and kicked a single to make the half-time score 15-2.

The Dlophins' points came from two singles by Stewart.

Frank Sacilotto dashed over after a 42-yard touchdown pass from Davis and Mitch Gunn got the other touchdown after an 11-yard run. McAdam was successful on both converts and the Trojans' other two points came from a safety.

It was the second meeting of the season for the clubs. Trojans won 18-8 first time out.

NFL's Defences Earn High Marks

By The Associated Press

You can grade the National Football League's opening day D for defence.

Don't feel too sorry for Miami Dolphins, upset 34-24 by New England Patriots Sunday. After all, the defending world champions scored three touchdowns and a field goal, and that is considerably more than some clubs managed on a day of defence-dominated openers.

Baltimore Colts were shut out by Pittsburgh Steelers 30-0 and Atlanta Falcons were blanked by Dallas Cowboys 24-0. St. Louis Cardinals managed only one touchdown, but that was enough to whip Philadelphia Eagles, who managed only one field goal, 7-3. Four other clubs scored 10 points or less.

Cincinnati Bengals ripped Cleveland Browns 33-7, Washington Redskins tagged New York Giants, 13-10, Chicago Bears topped Detroit Lions 17-9, Los Angeles Rams beat Denver Broncos 17-10, Minnesota Vikings whipped Green Bay Packers 32-17, San Francisco '49ers shaded New Orleans Saints 17-13 and Kansas City Chiefs stopped New York Jets 24-16.

The NFL's opening weekend concludes tonight with Buffalo Bills facing Oakland Raiders.

While the defences ruled other games, Miami's didn't seem ready. Jim Plunkett picked the Dolphins apart for 177 yards and running backs Mack Herron and Sam Cunningham gained 88 and 87, respectively, as the Patriots sprung their surprise on the Super Bowl champs.

New England ran up a 31-0 margin and then held off a late Miami comeback. Larry Csonka scored two touchdowns for the Dolphins.

"The game ball goes to the defence," said Coach Don Coryell after St. Louis had defeated Philadelphia, with Jim Hart's four-yard scoring pitch to Donny Anderson producing the game's lone touchdown.

Mike Bass returned an interception for one touchdown and then recovered a fumble to set up another in Washington's victory over the Giants.

Mostly this one turned into a punting battle. Each team kicked the ball away seven times and the two clubs produced a combined total of only 395 yards on offence.

JIM PLUNKET
. . . rough on Miami

Bass' 28-yard runback gave the Redskins the game's first TD and then he recovered a Ron Johnson fumble, setting up Larry Brown's second-period score.

New Orleans was leading 13-10 with less than two minutes to play, but punter Donnie Gibbs fumbled a snap and was swarmed under by five San Francisco defenders turning the ball over to the 49ers.

On the next play, Sammy Johnson went nine yards for the winning touchdown. Saints' Coach John North placed the blame squarely on Gibbs.

"There's no reason for fumbling the ball," said North. "The snap was right in his hands."

Pittsburgh fans were hooting quarterback Joe Gilliam during the first period when the Steelers' new signal caller managed only two completions for 12 yards.

But Gilliam erased the boos with two touchdown passes, gaining 257 yards through the air to lead Pittsburgh to its romp over Baltimore.

Roger Staubach passed for one touchdown and ran for another in Dallas' victory over Atlanta.

Dallas' defence was ready this week, permitting the Falcons a combined total of 108 yards passing and running.

Kansas City intercepted Joe Namath four times with Marvin Upshaw and Emmett Thomas returning two of the thefts for touchdowns.

Upshaw's 52-yard score came in the waning seconds of the first half and cut the Jets' intermission lead to 16-14. Then, with less than two minutes to play and New York trailing 17-16, Thomas went 38 yards with another interception to wrap up the Chiefs' triumph.

Cullen Bryant returned a Denver kickoff 84 yards for a rally-killing touchdown that helped Los Angeles past the Broncos.

Jim Turner had just kicked a field goal for the Broncs and the momentum seemed to be turning Denver's way when Bryant went the distance for the deciding score.

Houston won its first opener since 1970 and its first home game since 1972, beating San Diego on three touchdowns by George Amundson.

Champ Cut: Fight Delayed?

N'SELE, Zaire (AP) Heavyweight champion George Foreman was cut over the eye in training today and his manager, Dick Sadler, said, "We'll ask for a postponement" of his Sept. 25 title fight here against Muhammad Ali.

"I'm very disappointed," Foreman said after Sadler's statement. "It was a lot of hard work."

The cut was above the champion's right eye and came during a sixth round of sparring against Bill McMurray. It was a horizontal gash about an inch long.

When Foreman talked to reporters, only medication had been applied to the eye. The area under the eyebrow was swollen but the eye itself was open.

The injury came on either a punch or an elbow that slipped under Foreman's guard. Sadler said the blow came from the sparring partner's elbow but McMurray called it a jab before deciding that it was an elbow blow.

McMurray later broke into tears when he was told that the fight was endangered.

Zaire officials had no immediate comment.

The president of the fight commission, Bula Mandungu, said: "We will discuss the matter of further arrangements when the doctor has made his final determination."

Motorcycle Racer Bags Triple Win

PORT McNEILL — Daryl Aseltine of Port McNeill captured a major share of the silverware Sunday at Twin Peakes Speedway during a flat track racing event put on by the Mt. Waddington Motorcycle Club.

Aseltine won both the trophy dash and main event in the 360 cc. senior expert class and also collected a win in the 750 cc. senior expert trophy dash.

Doug Brown of Holberg won both the trophy dash and main in the 360 cc. junior expert portion of the program and Larry Groves of Holberg won the main in the 750 cc. event.

ATTENDANCE TAKES A DROP

NEW YORK (AP) — Attendance for the opening day in the National Football League was down from last year's first-day total, figures released by the league showed Sunday.

For the 12 games played Sunday, attendance was 625,751 — a decline of 66,069 fans from last year's 12-game total of 691,820.

The New York Jets-Chiefs game played in Kansas City attracted the largest attendance 74,854, while the smallest crowd was 25,317 at the Astrodome for San Diego Chargers and Houston Oilers.

Emphatic Winners in Minor Football

Lopsided scores seemed the order of the day Sunday in two Vancouver Island minor football leagues.

Cowichan Timbermen snapped a tie for second place with Saanich Hornets in the juvenile league by tripping the latter club 43-16 at Cedar Hill Park.

In the other juvenile game, Oak Bay Farmer Construction increased its unbeaten streak to four games with a 40-0 romp over James Bay Athletic Association Mustangs at Centennial Stadium.

Ross McCauley led Timbermen with two touchdowns, four converts and a single while lone TDs were scored by Kelly Stinson, Red Bellis, Mark Bulcock and Rick Kitagawa. Rob Boyd kicked one convert for Cowichan while Mike Jones booted a single.

Terry Haire and Kim Clarke scored majors for Hornets, Scott Hastings came up with a two-point convert, Ed Murray recorded a single and Dwayne Evanoff kicked a convert.

Christie Sinclare was the individual star for Oak Bay with a total of three touchdowns and four converts. Scott Woodburn added two majors and Rob Cowan kicked two field goals to complete scoring.

In bantam league encounters, Juan de Fuca Tigers trampled Saanich Vampires 32-6 at Cedar Hill Park, Oak Bay Invaders steamrollered Nanaimo Trojans 67-0 in Nanaimo and Courtenay blanked Cowichan Chiefs 11-0 in Duncan.

Dodgers Rub Out A Red Streak

By The Associated Press

Headed toward a three-game sweep at Los Angeles Sunday, Cincinnati Reds ran into Don Sutton's pitching and Jimmy Wynn's hitting and had to pull up short.

Sutton scattered six hits and pitched out of two bases-loaded jams and Wynn hit a grandslam home run in the seventh inning to lead a 7-1 Los Angeles Dodgers Victory.

The Dodgers ended a six-game winning streak for Cincinnati and opened a 2½-game lead over the Reds, in the National League West race.

Before Wynn came up with his big hit, Sutton had to come up with a big pitch in the fifth inning. He faced Johnny Bench with two out and the bases loaded and went to a 3-2 count before striking out the Cincinnati slugger.

In other National League games, St. Louis Cardinals beat Philadelphia Phillies 3-1; Montreal Expos nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4; Chicago Cubs stopped New York Mets 5-4; Atlanta Braves trimmed San Diego Padres 3-1 and the Houston Astros blanked San Francisco Giants 6-0 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second game, 8-4.

The Dodgers were held to just one hit for five innings by Fred Norman and trailed 1-0 before scoring two runs in the sixth to take a 2-1 lead.

In the seventh, against Pedro Borbon, Los Angeles loaded the bases on an infield single by Steve Yeager, a sacrifice bunt by Sutton, a single by Dave Lopes, who went to second on a play at third, and an intentional walk to Bill Buckner.

Wynn then hit his homer into the left-field pavilion, his 31st of the season, to tie the Los Angeles club record for home runs set by Frank Howard in 1962. Wynn's blast gave him 105 runs batted in for the year.

Garvey then followed with a homer over the centre-field wall, his 21st of the season and his 103 RBI.

The clubs ended their season series with Los Angeles winning 12 of the 18 games.

Bob Forsch allowed only two hits in eight innings of shutout ball, then Alan Hrabosky provided spectacular relief pitching in the ninth to lead St. Louis over Philadelphia. The victory, coupled with Piftsburgh's defeat, gave the Cardinals a 1½-game lead over the Pirates in the National League East.

St. Louis scored two runs in the fourth off Carlton, 14-12, who hasn't won a game since Aug. 6.

The Cards added a run in the ninth on a leadoff triple by Ted Simmons and an RBI single by Joe Torre.

Pinch-hitter Jose Morales slugged a three-run homer to cap a four-run outburst in the seventh inning and lead Montreal past Pittsburgh.

The homer was the first for Morales in the major leagues and came off losing pitcher Ken Brett, 13-8.

Brett was working on a five-hitter and a 4-1 lead until the seventh, when with one out Mike Jorgensen blooped a single to right-centre and scored on a double by Larry Parrish.

Parrish went to third on a single by pinch-hitter Hal Breeden, then Morales stepped up and slugged his game-winning blast over the right-field fence.

Steve Swisher drove in Chicago's go-ahead run with a sacrifice fly as the Cubs scored twice in the ninth to beat New York.

Phil Niekro scattered seven hits and singled home a tie-breaking run in the seventh inning to lead Atlanta over San Diego.

Price Has Jitters

QUEBEC (CP) — With one day remaining before the opening of the hockey series between Canada and the Soviet Union, the youngest member of Team Canada '74 has butterflies.

"It was hard to sleep," said Pat Price, 19, who played his way aboard the club during a five-game exhibition tour in Western Canada. "It will get worse before it gets better."

Price is not expected to play in the opening game here Tuesday, but coach Billy Harris said the brilliant defenceman would see action during the series.

Tuesday's Russia-Canada hockey game will be shown on the CTV network (Channel 8) at 5 p.m.

"I don't mind waiting," said Price. "I'm just glad to be here."

Price impressed Harris with his mobility, which may be lacking among Team Canada's eight original defencemen.

"I want my defencemen to defend territory, to retreat when the Russians have the puck," said Harris. "I've asked them, when they're sitting on the bench, to watch Pat Stapleton, who was among the leading defencemen in the 1972 series."

Stapleton and J. C. Tremblay are expected to be Team Canada's premier defensive pairing throughout the eight-game series which ends Oct. 6 in Moscow.

"I expect our forwards to use more bodily contact than our defencemen," said Harris. "We won't punish the Russians. They're too shifty and too well-conditioned for that. But we may frustrate them."

Price, a Saskatoon junior graduate who signed a multi-year agreement with Vancouver Blazers of the World Hockey Association, was the outstanding defenceman on the Western Canada Hockey League junior all-star team that played five exhibition games with Team Canada.

"Hard work got me here," said Price, a Nelson, B.C., native. "Hard work will help me be ready when it's time for me to play."

VIEWS ON SERIES between Soviet and Canadian hockey teams are given by Russia's star goalkeeper Vladislav Tretiak after arrival of Russian team in Montreal. Series starts Tuesday in Quebec City. (CP Wirephoto).

Kurtenbach To Seattle

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Vancouver Canucks will be looking for a new captain.

That's because Seattle Totems have, to all intent, a new coach.

Orland Kurtenbach, the only captain Canucks have known since their entry into the National Hockey League, verbally agreed to coach the affiliated Seattle entry in the realigned Central League.

The 38-year-old centre met with managing-director Coley Hall in Vancouver this morning to work out the fine details of a two-year contract.

With the retirement of the popular Kurtenbach from playing ranks, it means an opening for one of the young hopefuls among the 59 players who reported this morning to Memorial Arena for the start of the regular camp.

Among the 59 are 20 players carrying over from last week's rookie camp at Juan de Fuca Arena. Canucks dropped nine of the rookie hopefuls Saturday night.

Dropped were Murray McLeod, Ross Barros, Ralph Taylor, Bob Helman, Craig Enfield, Doug Demeyere Alex Shibicky, Leverett Byrd and Ed Belanger.

The only "no show" among the regulars reporting for this morning's early shift at the Arena was goalie Gary Smith.

The 50 players will be divided into two shifts with each working out twice daily, starting at 7:45 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The workouts are open to the public.

20-Win Club Grows

By The Associated Press

Gaylord Perry of Cleveland Indians became the fifth pitcher in the American League to record 20 wins this season when he stopped Baltimore Orioles 1-0 on five hits Sunday.

Later Sunday, Nolan Ryan became No. 6 as California Angels beat Chicago White Sox 6-2.

Jim Bibby was foiled in his bid to become No. 7 when Sal Bando's two-run homer in the third inning lifted Oakland A's to a 3-1 victory over Texas Rangers and Bibby, 19-17.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York Yankees whipped Detroit Tigers 10-2, Minnesota Twins defeated Kansas City Royals 5-2 and Milwaukee Brewers beat Boston Red Sox 9-5.

The designated hitter rule, introduced in the American League last year but not adopted by the National, has changed pitching patterns and increased run production. Last year, for example, 12 of the 13 20-game winners in the majors were in the American League.

"With the designated hitter rule, you go with your starting pitchers longer," Dick Williams, the former Oakland skipper who now manages the Angels, once explained. "That's proven by the higher number of decisions by the starting pitchers."

Perry's 20th victory came on his 36th birthday.

It was his fourth 20-victory season, two with San Francisco Giants and two since coming to Cleveland.

Baltimore's Ross Grimsley, who had pitched 20 consecutive scoreless innings, walked John Lowenstein on four pitches with the bases loaded in the ninth inning to force in the only run of the game.

Ryan, 20-15, struck out seven White Sox batters in reaching the 20-game circle for the second straight year. He now has 337 strikeouts for the season, with a shot at equalling the major league record of 383 he set last year.

The White Sox were without slugging first baseman Dick Allen, the AL home run leader with 32. He announced his retirement from baseball Saturday.

Bobby Murcer drove in four runs for the Yankees and unbeaten Larry Gura posted his fourth victory since being brought up from Syracuse in mid-August.

The Yankees now lead Baltimore by 2½ games and Boston by 3½ in the AL East race.

New York got two runs in the first on a run-scoring double by Lou Piniella and an RBI single by Thurman Munson. Murcer's two-run double was the big hit of a four-run outburst in the second, while Jim Mason's single made it 7-0 in the third. Murcer had a two-run single when the Yankees added three more runs in the eighth.

Al Kaline had a run-scoring single for the Tigers. He now has 2,992 hits for his career.

Gorman Thomas' grandslam home run in the first inning and Tim Johnson's two-run triple highlighted a four-run third for the Brewers.

Wakeham Wins On Birdie Binge

CHEMAINUS — Cowichan professional Bill Wakeham was in a class by himself at the Mount Brenton Open golf tournament.

Turning in an awesome display of iron accuracy, Wakeham wound up with the course record and $300 in prize money as he cruised to a runaway victory at the weekend.

He set the record Saturday by scoring a five-under-par 65, tacked on a 67 Sunday for a 132 total and a whopping eight-stroke margin over his assistant, Neil Murray, 73-67—140.

In the two days, Wakeham birdied 12 of the 36 holes. He went over par only three times, taking two bogeys and a double bogey when he hit his first Sunday shot out of bounds.

Wakeham estimated he missed at least 10 other birdie putts, from 12 feet away or less.

Cec Ferguson of Gorge Vale won low amateur honors with rounds of 73 and 68 and a 141 total, finishing two strokes ahead of Uplands' Mike Gray.

Ron Hepburn of March Meadows won low net honors with a 135 total, finishing two strokes ahead of John Russell of Chemainus, Les Atchison of Cowichan and G. Gill of Cowichan.

Orioles Get Northrup

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal Expos have assigned the contract of veteran outfielder Jim Northrup to the Baltimore Orioles of the American League.

Northrup, 34, was acquired by the Expos from Detroit Tigers last Aug. 7. In 21 games with the Expos, he batted .241, hitting two homers and driving in eight runs.

Miller Wins Playoff

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Johnny Miller birdied the second extra hole to beat Jack Nicklaus and two others in a sudden-death playoff and score his seventh victory of the season Sunday in the World open golf tournament.

Miller, the sensation of the tour this season, collected $60,000 from the total purse of $300,000 and virtually clinched the 1974 money-winning title.

Miller has $316,383 for the year and joins Nicklaus on two plateaus. Miller and Nicklaus are the only men to win $300,000 in a single season and only those two have won as many as seven American tour titles in one year in the past decade.

Miller, Nicklaus, Frank Beard and Bob Murphy had tied for the lead at the end of the regulation 72 holes on the 7,007-yard No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club with three-under-par totals of 281.

Miller and Nicklaus, who shared the third-round lead, matched struggling 72s in regulation fourth-round play while Beard and Murphy came out of the pack with two-under-par 69s.

They started their playoff on the 203-yard, par-three 15th hole and only Beard hit the green, Murphy was in a bunker to the right, failed to get it out on his first swing and eventually picked up when he was lying four.

Nicklaus and Miller both got up and down from over the green and Beard, a one-time master cutter who has been victimized by a lengthy slump, left a winning 10-foot putt inches short but dead on line with the hole.

That sent Miller, Nicklaus and Beard to the tee on the 504-yard, par-five 16th while Murphy, red-haired Murphy made the long walk to the clubhouse alone.

All three drove the fairway and all went for the green in two. Beard, who got into the playoff with an eagle on the same hole less than an hour earlier, put his second shot some 30 feet below the cup.

Miller lashed a wood hole-high and only eight feet to the right. Nicklaus got his in the edge of the deep rough on the left, then chipped to about eight feet.

Beard ran his approach putt 10 feet by, then missed coming back and was out of it. Nicklaus lipped his putt and Miller needed only to get down in two.

He did and he was a winner again.

Harris Goes To Flyers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League announced Sunday that veteran defenceman Ted Harris had been sent to Philadelphia Flyers for future consideration.

Harris appeared in 21 games for St. Louis team last season after being acquired from the Detroit Red Wings in February.

Soccer: A Supreme Farce

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

B.C.'s great soccer farce is getting even more ridiculous.

Victoria Gorge Molsons and London Boxing Club cancelled their plans for weekend opening games in the B.C. Soccer League in the face of suspension threats from the B.C. Soccer Commission.

The Vancouver Island League has won its battle to get jurisdiction over use of Royal Athletic Park and has virtually stopped Victoria's clubs from playing in the Vancouver-based B.C. League.

One might think that would bring calm and tranquility to Island soccer circles. But no such luck. In fact, it now appears that, after having forced the Victoria clubs through the Canadian Soccer Association's regionalization policy to play on the Island, at least one of the teams isn't even wanted in the Island League.

After its B.C. League plans were foiled, London Boxing Club dropped its top team into the Premier Division of the Island League Sunday and romped to a 5-0 win over Duncan Village Green. Two Canadian-squad members, Bob Bolitho (three goals) and Brian Robinson (one goal) did most of the damage. Dean Stokes, a B.C. League regular, got the other goal.

But Gorge Molsons' coach Dave Keith said his team wasn't eligible to play in the Island League as his players hadn't signed registration forms.

And, ludicrous as it may sound, Gorge had been told by Island League officials, Keith said, that it must apply to join the third division and take two seasons to work up to the Premier division.

"This is ridiculous and reflects the inconsistency of these (Island League) officials," Keith said. "Last season, Powell River won the third division and the Island League people allowed that team to jump up into the premier division this season," he added.

"Gorge already has a team in the Premier Division which won promotion and earned the right to play there," Keith pointed out. "It isn't right that the Gorge club's B.C. League team should push our other team out and it certainly isn't right that we should be expected to play in the third division. If they want us in the Island League, then they should make places for Gorge and Boxing Club in the top division.

"Do you know," Keith laughed, "they've even told us we might not get into the third division this seaason because we didn't have our application in by July 31"

Gorge's regular Premier Division team was held to a 1-1 tie in Powell River. Barry Hilton scored for Gorge, with Jim Veenhof replying for Powell Rier.

In the other Premier Division games Sunday Vic West, getting two goals each from Gary McLaren, Greg Booth and Robbie Williams and one from Barry Robbins, downed Prospect Lake 7-2. Bobby Lee and Ted King scored for the losers. And Oak Bay and Cosmopolitan Royals drew 2-2. Dave Wey and John Blissett scored for Oak Bay and Arthur Smith and Russ Ball, with the equalizer 10 seconds before the end, netted for the Royals.

Scores of matches in the second and third divisions:

DIVISION II

LABATTS (8) — Bud Livingston 4, Fred Brandal 3, Barry Goodson; LONDON BOXING CLUB (0).

Results of four other matches not turned in to the divisional score recorder.

DIVISION III

KICKERS (1) — Rudi Stein; DUNCAN VILLAGE GREEN (1) — Wayne Williams.

DA VINCI (10) — Robert Gutierrez 4, Tony Fanfillo 2, John Spadafora, Dave Fish, Leo Asquini, Robbie Luglisse; SAANICH JAYCEES (0).

BUCCANEERS (1) — Warner Schwan; OAK BAY (2) — T. Kanya, W. Peters.

ESQUIMALT (3) — Peter Barton 2, Dave Flucker; CASTAWAYS (0).

Scores of two other matches not turned in to the divisional score recorder.

UVic Ready for Scots

University of Victoria Vikings warmed up for Tuesday's big match against the University of Edinburgh by blasting Castaways 42-3 Sunday in an exhibition rugby match at UVic.

Coach Alan Rees, who had his team moving really well, played a fine game, scoring a try and kicking one conversion. Mike Penn and Mike Blades scored two tries each and the other tries were by Mike Stewart, Doug Manning, Steve Cowie and Ken Wilke. Rick Cough booted two conversions. Castaways' points came from a drop goal kicked by Mike Walsh.

Oak Bay, with tries by Dave Docherty and Paul Chapman, nipped Cowichan 8-6 at Duncan in Sunday's other first-division exhibition game. West Thomas scored a converted try for Cowichan.

James Bay Athletic Association, the Victoria Rugby Union champion last season, crushed Seattle Rugby Club 52-3 Saturday in an exhibition match at Macdonald Park.

And in a second-division exhibition match on the same park, James Bay downed Seattle 17-6.

The games were a warmup for the Victoria Union's season, which opens Sept. 28.

Haynie Sizzles

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Sandra Haynie, uncorking four birdies in a five-hole span, overtook Jane Blalock with a record 66 Sunday and successfully defended her title in a $40,000 Ladies' Professional Golf Association golf tournament.

Miss Haynie swept through the misty haze of an overcast afternoon with a sizzling five-under-par 33-33 for a 54-hole total of 208 and a three-stroke triumph over the methodical Miss Blalock.

Miss Blalock, with a closing par 71, was no match for Miss Haynie, now a six-time winner of the LPGA tour, $5,700 richer, and suddenly a contender for the tour money crown.

Miss Blalock, herself a triple winner on the 1974 tour, opened the final round with a two-shot lead and hiked it to three strokes when Miss Haynie bogled the first hole.

It was at that point that Miss Haynie, 31, opened her dramatic bid for the championship. And it was quickly apparent that the race was a two-woman duel.

Huskies Too Much

University of Washington Huskies proved far more of a soccer handful on the weekend than the University of Victoria had expected.

The Seattle university's second team crushed UVic's second team, the Norsemen, 6-1 at Royal Athletic Park Saturday with Ron Dworski scoring the only goal for the home side.

Then, at Centennial Stadium Sunday, the Huskies' first team beat UVic Vikings, who play in the Premier Division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League, 3-1. Ward Forrest, Dan Vaughn and Tage Christianson scored for the visitors while Mike Sails got the UVic goal.

Better Late Than Never at Speedway

It hadn't been much of a season for the folks who operate Western Speedway. It was an artistic success, to be sure, but financially it was something else.

A rainy spring all but obliterated the first month of the season and it cost the stock car operators a bundle. Then the speedway at Nanaimo went belly-up, forcing the added expense of extra International Drivers' Challenge series races. The crowds didn't quite cover the cost of absorbing the Nanaimo segment of the series.

The supreme insult came when fewer than 2,000 showed up for a Labor Day rock-and-race show, prompting speedway manager Reg Midgley to predict that holiday auto racing will be scrubbed in future.

But then the picture suddenly brightened. Two weeks ago Hershel McGriff came up from Bridal Veil, Ore., to hand Gary Kershaw his first main-event loss in 13 starts at Western and drew the biggest crowd in 13 years — 5,330.

The good fortune continued Saturday night when 3,623 showed up to see the final night of claimer racing and Kershaw's return to action since his loss to McGriff.

The weather undoubtedly had a lot to do with it — no rain and balmy evenings — but Western officials wish it had come sooner. There's only one more program of racing this season. This coming Sunday afternoon.

Ironically, the track manager wil lmiss it. Midgley went into hospital Sunday to have surgery on a knee he injured several years ago and aggravated this summer playing golf.

Kershaw got back on the winning track with a vengeance Saturday. He won the trophy dash, the fast heat and the super-stock feature. But Gary Madden shared the spotlight by capturing the drivers' points championship in the claimer division by winning the season windup feature.

Kershaw was lucky to get into the main event. He and Rick O'Dell, second in all three races Kershaw won, tangled in the trophy dash and Kershaw nearly wound up decorating the scenery on the backstretch. But on the restart, Kershaw regained the lead and won going away.

Ron Hancock grabbed the early lead in the 35-lap super-stock main, but O'Dell took over on lap six. He was at least seven lengths ahead of Kershaw on lap 19 when Joe Musfelt lost a wheel, drawing a red flag and a restart.

That was the break Kershaw needed. With the field bunched for the restart, he quickly passed O'Dell and romped home the winner.

Richmond, Powell River Pair Tops in Track

Connie Polman-Tuin of Powell River Track Club and Ken Blaschuk of Richmond Track Club emerged as four-event winners Saturday at Centennial Stadium in the fifth annual Autumn Championships which traditionally has come to mark the end of the track and field season.

Miss Polman-Tuin recorded wins in the peewee girls' 100 metres (13.9 seconds), 200 metres (29.5 seconds), long jump (4.40 metres) and discus (20.62 metres).

Blaschuk captured titles in three junior men's events — 100 and 200 metres as well as the 200-metre hurdles — and added a victory in the senior men's 200 metres.

Although the Victoria Track Club meet attracted over 250 athletes to compete in 142 events under warm, windless conditions, only one record was broken.

Tom Poirier of Richmond was the lone standard-setter with a heave of 17.16 metres in the bantam boys' shotput. He also collected first-place ribbons in the discus (43.33 metres) and javelin (54.44 metres) to lead a bevy of triple winners.

Nick Bennett of VTC won the long jump (5.66 metres), the triple jump (11.55 metres) and the high jump (five feet, one inch) in the bantam boys' category.

In the midget boys' division, Tim Kazak of Coquitlam Cheetahs won the 100 metres (12.1 seconds), 200 metres (24.2 seconds) and 200-metre hurdles (29.2 seconds).

David Parker of the West Coast Club of Vancouver won the shot put, javelin and discus events for juvenile boys while Dale Baptiste of VTC collected laurels in the 100 metres (11.5 seconds) and 200 metres (23 seconds).

Dave Weiker of Vancouver Olympics won the senior men's 400 and 800 metre events while clubmate Roger Ruth emerged with wins in the pole vault, long jump and triple jump.

Among peewee boys, Ron Tuckey of Cowichan Valley Athletic Club and Brian Youell of Victoria Flying "Y" were triple winners. Tuckey won the 80-metre hurdles, the 200-metre hurdles and the 400 metres while Youell won the 200 metres, the long jump and the triple jump.

Don Barber of VTC won the tyke boys' 100 and 200 metres.

Another triple winner among peewee girls was Jeannie Martyniuk of Richmond, who collected titles in the 80-metre hurdles, 200-metre hurdles and triple jump competitions.

Kathy Weich and Cheryl Blevins, both of Victoria Mercuries, dominated the juvenile women's competition. Miss Weich won the 100, 200 and 400 metres and Miss Blevins won the 800 metres.

Maureen Donaldson of the West Coast Club won the 80-metre hurdles, the 200 metres and the javelin in the midget girls' class and also anchored her relay team to victory.

Laurie Sawyer of VTC won three events and Linda Martin of the Flying "Y" won two races among tyke girls. Miss Sawyer collected firsts in the 80 and 200-metre hurdles as well as the long jump while Miss Martin placed first in the 100 and 200 metres.

AUSSIES MAKE RUDDER SWITCH

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The crew of Southern Cross, the Australian challenger for the America's Cup, took advantage of a day off Sunday to change the rudder of the 12-metre sloop back to the aluminum one she carried when she first arrived here.

Replaced was an articulated rudder made in three sections so that it hinged vertically in two places to make a sort of curve when the boat was turned.

In place of that 340-pound wood laminated rudder, the crew shipped the 120-pound rigid rudder, a little deeper but a little narrower than the other.

Alan Bond, head of the Australian challenge syndicate, said it was found that the articulated rudder, "didn't work out in light air."

The Australians asked for a Sunday lay day — yacht racing's term for a day off — in order to make the rudder change.

The boats were scheduled to resume competition today, with the Aussies hoping for strong winds.

Courageous won the first two races and was half-way to another America's Cup victory Saturday in the best-of-seven series.

Both boats had plenty of experience with light air in Saturday's face, called off when the 5:40 p.m. EDT deadline was reached without either boat crossing the finish line. The boats were drifting then, on the fifth of the six legs of the 24.3-mile course.

Cup to Castaways

Fine bowling by Alan Rees and an unbeaten stand by In the second marathon, the opening batsmen Dave Shaw and Dave Clarke Saturday earned Castaways the Victoria and District Association's Knockout Cup.

Nanaimo, playing in the tournament for the first time and a candidate for Victoria league play next season, batted first in the association's final match of the season at Beacon Hill Park.

Ray Telford scored 42 runs but he was the only Nanaimo batsman who was comfortable against Rees, who took six wickets for 35 runs, and Cec Myers, who finished with three for 20.

Nanaimo was all out for 86 runs and, with Shaw on 46 not out and Clarke 45 not out, Castaways won the match by 10 wickets.

TIGERS TIE CENTENNIALS

CALGARY (CP) — Gary Vaughan scored on a breakaway with five minutes remaining to give Medicine Hat Tigers a 7-7 tie with Calgary Centennials in an exhibition game between the two Western Canada Hockey League clubs Sunday.

Saturday, Medicine Hat beat Calgary 10-1 with Brad Murdoch scoring four goals.

Renton's Day In Field Hockey

Inside-right Tom Renton had a busy day Sunday and turned the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association season opening into a personal scoring spree.

Renton scored a goal in the morning when defending Island champions Rebels No. 1 defeated Castaways No. 2 by 6-2 at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Then the inside-right hammered in three goals that afternoon for the Rebel Club's No. 2 team in a 4-1 win over University of Victoria Vikings at UVic.

Renton's total gave him a share of the league's individual scoring lead after the first day with Mike Paget, who scored four goals as Castaways No. 1 downed Fossils 7-3.

Craig Wilson scored three goals in Rebels No. 1's victory and the other scorers were Danny Tourangeau and Brian Foley. Ron Vincent scored both goals for Castaways No. 2.

In Sunday's other game, Tigers, the East-Indian team which is returning to the league after dropping out during last season, defeated Oak Bay Sports Club, a new entry, 6-1.

The Island Women's Association opened its schedule Saturday when the big surprise was Oak Bay's 5-1 win over defending-champion Pirates.

CHARGE LED BY NORLAND

Times News Services

Norland, a much-travelled Ontario-bred colt, came from off the pace as a hole opened at the head of the stretch to win the $30,000-added British Columbia Derby Saturday at Exhibition Park in Vancouver.

The 1⅛-mile race, top event of the Exhibition Park season for three-year-olds, produced a cavalry charge at the finish.

Six of the 11 horses were separated by less than two lengths at the wire.

Butino, meanwhile, romped home a three-length winner in the St. Leger Stakes Saturday at Doncaster, England, to take the richest-ever purse in the event.

Owned by Lady Beaverbrook, wife of the late Canadian-born newspaper baron, Butino won $136,238. It was Lady Beaverbrook's first-ever winner in an English classic.

Butino was ridden by Joe Mercer. The 11-to-10 favorite finished ahead of Ciacometti, ridden by Lester Piggott.

In New York, Big Spruce broke out of the pack over the final furlong and won the $250,000 Marlboro Cup at Belmont Park. It was the second stakes victory in 12 days for Big Spruce, a five-year-old owned by Elmendorf Stable. The horse won the $100,000-added Governor Stakes at Belmont Sept. 2. Saturday's win was worth $150,000.

Perfect Boxla Season

NEW WESTMINSTER, (CP) — Peterborough PCOs became the first junior lacrosse team in history to go through a season undefeated by beating Burnaby Cablevision 12-11 to win the Minto Cup Canadian junior lacrosse final Saturday night.

It was the closest game of the best-of-seven series won in four straight — with Peterborough leading 6-5 at the end of the first period and 9-7 at the end of the second.

Ken Byers scored three goals for Peterborough, two of them in the third period.

Dan Green scored twice with other eastern goals going to Jim Johnston, Mark Vitarelli, Bob Wasson, Steve Plunkett, Guy Legault, Gord Duncan and Randy Bryan.

Dave Matheson and Mike McLenaghen scored three goals each for Burnaby while Kelly McLenaghen and Dan Wilson scored twice each.

Peterborough jumped to a fast 5-0 lead by the 11:34 of the first period. What looked like a rout was turned into a tied game when Mike McLenaghen scored at 1:02 of the second period. Peterborough came back, however, with three goals in 53 seconds.

Brotherly Finish

Motorsport

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (AP) — Al Unser took over the lead with nine laps remaining when his brother Bobby ran out of gas Sunday to win the Norton 250 for USAC championship cars at Michigan International Speedway.

Only six cars in the field of 24 were still running at the end of the race.

The Unser brothers had taken turns with the lead in the $75,000 race from the 31st lap on.

Bobby, who won Saturday's initial race in the International Race of Champions series, pulled ahead of his brother on the 88th lap and seemed a sure winner when his Eagle Offenhauser died on the back stretch of the 117th lap in the 250-mile 125-lap race.

Al Unser was the only other driver on the same lap and he easily coasted into the victory circle with his Eagle Offy before a crowd of 23,500.

Al Unser's unofficial speed was 142.14 miles an hour. Runnerup was Dwayne Carter Jr., also in an Eagle while Bobby Unser finished third.

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Richard Petty, freed of stiff competition when engine trouble forced Cale Yarbrough and David Pearson out, eased to victory Sunday at the Delaware 500 Grand National stock car race.

Petty, 37, drove his 1974 Dodge to the finish line a full three laps ahead of Buddy Baker to claim his 10th victory this year on the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) circuit.

Baker, 33, of Charlotte, N.C., driving a Ford, finished ahead of rookie Earl Ross, of Ailsa Craig, Ont.

New League in Playoffs

VERNON (CP) — The British Columbia Junior Hockey League and the Pacific Coast Hockey League champions will play off in late April to determine the B.C. champion.

The late-April series is scheduled as a best-of-three playoff but could be stretched to five games if time permits.

The first game will be played at the rink of the BCJHL champion with the second and third games at the home of the PCHL winner.

The 35th annual B.C. Amateur Hockey Association convention ended Sunday with election of Frank Spring of Cranbrook as president. He succeeds Ray Peebles, of Quesnel, who did not stand for a fourth term.

Don Ewart of Penticton was elected first vice-president and Gordon House of Vancouver was named second vice-president.

Ivan Temple of Victoria was given a life membership in honor of his involvement with the BCAHA for 28 years. He retired from the post of secretary-manager July 31st.

SMART VICTORY BY A NEWCOMER

TORONTO (CP) — Jamie Smart of Toronto, competing against veterans of international competition, scored an upset victory Saturday in the Canadian National Show-Jumping Championships.

Smart picked up 10 faults in the round-robin competition in which each of the five riders rode first on his own horse and then on the mounts of each of his rivals.

Moffat Dunlap of Newmarket, Ont., was second with 12 faults; Ian Miller, Perth, Ont., third, 12¾ faults; Jim Elder, Aurora, Ont., 14 faults and Jim Day, Hornby, Ont., 24.

SIGNING ON as members of the RCMP's first-ever female contingent are fledgling constables Barbara Wood, 20, Constance Jane Smith, 21, as Assist. Commissioner E. W. Willes looks on.

Women Break Tradition

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

One of the last vestiges of the male chauvinist's world crumbled this morning with the cross-Canada induction of 32 women into the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Two of the three B.C. inductees are Victoria women, Barbara Woods, 235 Michigan, and Constance Jane Smith, 2805 Queenston.

In a simple ceremony at the RCMP "E" Division headquarters, 1061 Fort St., the two took the oath that only men have uttered in the 101-year history of the national police force.

Commanding officer, Assistant Commissioner E. W. Willes, congratulated the distaff constables as their families looked on.

He called them "pioneers in the sense of the original members of the force who first marched west in 1873."

"Our tradition has been founded on the deeds and devotion to duty of the men who have gone before. I know you will carry on that tradition," he said.

"How do I feel? Unbelievably proud," Woods, 20, said in a recent interview after being told she was accepted into the force. A tall (5'11"), comely brunette, she had worked almost two years as a clerk-typist in the traffic division of the Victoria police department.

"I feel honored," echoed Smith, 21, a pert, effervescent, 5'7" hazel-eyed blonde.

"Never before have women been able to join the RCMP and now we are the first. It's a thrill to be part of history," Woods said.

RCMP recruiters have taken great pains to make sure no one girl will lay claim to being the first female mountie. All the inductees are being sworn in at the same time today across Canada, and when they begin their 3½-month training, Wednesday at Regina, they'll receive their police badge numbers pulled at random out of a hat.

Woods and Smith share a fascination and interest in police work based on a desire "to help people."

Both were born and raised in B.C.

Smith is the daughter of a fisherman and can trace her family back to the original Mormons who trekked across the U.S. with Brigham Young more than 100 years ago.

She was raised in Kyuquot, a tiny village on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

"There were no cars, no roads, no TV — and I rowed a boat to school," she said.

Her family bought a home in Victoria about 10 years ago.

After graduating from Victoria High School in 1971, she tried unsuccessfully to join the Victoria police department, and then enrolled in a fashion course at LDS (Latter Day Saints) College in Salt Lake City.

She received her diploma two years later, then went for a three-month tour of Europe. On her return to Canada last January she found a job as a saleslerk at a women's apparel store in Hillside Mall.

It was a temporary placement.

"I was thinking of moving to Calgary for my own professional development but then I heard there were openings for truck drivers and welders in Fort McMurray and thought it might be fun to live up there for a while."

In May a neighbor, RCMP Sgt. Ralph Erown, told her the mounties were offering women positions on the force.

She applied and began a summer-long round of tests and interviews.

Const. Woods, the oldest girl in a family of six children, spent the first 15 years of her life in Ft. St. John.

She finished her high school in Kelowna, then, interested in studying foreign languages, went to Notre Dame University in Nelson.

She'd completed one year and was due to return when she got a summer job as a telex operator for the RCMP in Nelson.

She enjoyed the work and decided to try to become a police officer, but upon moving to Victoria, discovered she could not apply to any of the local forces until she was 21.

She enrolled in a course in criminology at Camosun College last spring and was the only girl in the class to complete the program.

"I was intending to go back to university this fall and take criminology, but police work was always the long-range goal.

"No one in our family has ever been a police officer before," she said. "When I told them I was going to be one of the first women mounties they were really excited that I had got what I wanted.

She felt the acceptance of women into the RCMP was "timely."

"It has opened up all sorts of fields of investigation and activity.

"I don't want to be better than the men on the force," she said. "I only want to be as good."

Master of a Specialty: One Man's Road to Fame

A young friend of this department who enrolled last week at the University of Victoria tells me that her counsellor went on at some length to advise her of the need to specialize, to set her sights on some specific goal, and asks me now if this would also be MY advice. Gosh, she's nice.

I replied that it most certainly would, that we are in the age of the specialist in almost any endeavor you care to name, and to illustrate my point I went on, at some lengths, myself, to tell her of my experience as an authority on toilets.

This seemed to go over so well that I am tempted to break a life-long rule against giving advice to anyone a day younger than I am. My aim simply is to show that almost anyone who becomes an authority on almost anything will be richly rewarded. So shut up and pay attention.

My own case is a spectacular demonstration of this fact of life since I am, as everyone knows, a total disaster as a handyman. If it can't be fixed with Scotch Tape or Dentyne Chewing Gum I whine for professional help. There are men in my neck of the woods with swimming pools and two cars in their garages simply because of my ineptness and distrust when confronted with anything that has voltage or moving parts. I would as soon enter a tiger's den as monkey around with any appliance attached to a fuse.

This, as you can see, makes it all the more amazing that I am known far and wide as a wizard with toilets. Why, only last week I heard myself described as "The Genius of the Powder Rooms" and I simply could not deny it, though I'd the good grace to crimson slightly. The fact is that I need but a wrench, a screwdriver and an ailing toilet to guarantee you a royal flush. If they asked me I could write a book on what to do until the plumber comes, namely to take two aspirins and holler for old Jack.

The point I want to make to the young reader is that this simple gift — or, I should say, this acquired gift — has earned me an esteem in the social world that could never have been achieved by my talent for charades or even my prowess with the banjo-uke. Faces light up when I arrive at any gathering. People turn to their neighbors, whispering the glad tidings, their faces acetylene-bright with pleasure. Jack, the Toilet Man, has arrived. All's right with the world.

How well I recall the day that changed my life. The plumber I regularly employ was off on his 90-foot yacht, cruising the South Seas, when our own toilet sighed and died.

"I am going to take this thing all apart and put it together again," I told my wife. "And I," said my wife, "am Cleopatra, Queen of the Nile."

You can imagine my triumph when I emerged from the porcelain box some two hours later, flicked the handle and was rewarded by an obedient roar. I had not only fixed the thing, I had learned everything there is to know about the mysterious mechanism that, for 30-odd years, I'd taken for granted. A whole new world had opened up for me.

This was, of course, a very old toilet and so were the others on which I practiced since we have always managed to live in very old houses, but I was soon to make the giddy discovery that the innards of toilets, like the wheel, have changed very little over the years. Once you have mastered The Toilet, per se, you have mastered any toilet.

I discovered this very soon after my first triumph when, visiting the Walshes, I was delighted to find that they had a Growler. The Growler is a mean, cantankerous old toilet that goes through life grumbling over its work and very often succumbs with a death rattle.

"You ought to have that beast fixed," I told my neighbor's wife. "If I had a wrench and screwdriver . . ."

An hour later I rejoined them in the living room, shrugging with unbearable modesty. The growl had become a submissive sigh. I was on my way to fame and glory.

A week later I had taken the asthma from a Wheezer, a very common type of toilet which never performs its function without sounding as if it had galloping bronchitis. A twist there, a tap of the wrench here, and once more I was destiny's tot.

Had I deliberately chosen the field I could have found nothing more rewarding. While every toilet, as I have said, works on the same principle, it is also true to say that each has its own neurotic personality. Besides the Growlers and the Wheezers, there are the Gurglers, the Hissers, the Gaspers and the kind I refer to simply as the Shh-booom Type which is, I may say, the greatest challenge I have faced.

If nothing else, it has taught me that there's just nothing so successful as the specialist, the man who can do one thing, however trivial, better than the next. Keep that in mind, my children, as you face the highway of life and don't forget: Jack, The Toilet Man, told you first.

Contract Imposed At Mediaeval Inn

The employees of the Mediaeval Inn, 1005 Broad, found out today they are going to work under a union contract, even though they have petitioned the Labor Relations Baord to go non-union.

The board, which held a hearing here last month on a decertification application by the employees, has agreed to impose a first contract, using a section of the Labor Code which permits this when the two sides have been unable to come to an agreement.

But the board declined to dictate the terms of the agreement, giving the restaurant, the union and the employees six weeks to reach a contract on their own.

"If, at the end of those six weeks, the parties disagree on the terms and conditions, the board will settle (them) for the first collective agreement," the LRB stated in a written decision.

The Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers Union, Local 835, was certified as bargaining agent for the employees April 25, 1973. But employees claimed in their decertification application that staff has changed since then and the new employees don't want the union.

In the written decision, LRB vice-chairman Nancy Morrison said "while the misunderstandings which have arisen over the past year have been unfortunate and divisive, it is hoped that the entire process has been an educational one.

"If the employees choose to use the vehicle of the union to their advantage, and participate fully in the affairs of the union, they can only benefit. At the same time, the employer has nothing to fear from a union that is committed to fairly representing the employees — employees about whom the employer has expressed such concern."

The LRB decided to withold a ruling on the decertification application.

Area Holdings Listed Under Disclosure Act

Victoria Ald. Tom Christie said today he hasn't filed a statement of his financial holdings because he doesn't intend to seek re-election this November.

Asked by a reporter if his reasons for resignation include his objection to the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act, Christie replied: "Well, partly."

Christie said the act's requirements for disclosure were an "annoying feature" to him, but there were other reasons for his decision.

"I have been here six years and enough is enough," he said. "Perhaps it's time some younger person stepped in and took my place."

He said he was supposed to be retired, adding: "You don't get much peace and quiet in this job." He had been thinking about stepping down from council "a long time."

Details of the financial holdings of only four other members of council were available to the Times today, under a ruling by city clerk Morran Waller. The filed statements show, as expected, that Mayor Peter Pollen with his automobile dealership and Ald. Sam Bawlf with his development interests have the biggest holdings among Victoria's elected representatives.

Concerning his own business interests from which he receives remuneration, Pollen's statement lists three companies: Peter Pollen Ford Sales Ltd., conducting automobile and truck sales and service; Executive Car Lease Ltd., vehicle leasing; and Nadar Holdings Ltd., a land holding company.

Nadar is shown as holding 11 parcels of land in the city, all connected in some way with the dealership, and a further eight parcels in Saanich, which the statement explains is to be the site of the proposed Peter Pollen Ford body and paint shop.

Only property under Pollen's own name is a parcel at 1039 Johnson, adjacent to his firm's used car lot.

Creditors of Peter Pollen Ford Sales are the Bank of Montreal, Pollen, himself and six other employees. Creditors of Executive Car Lease Ltd. are shown as the Bank of Montreal and Ford Motor Credit Company of Canada Ltd.

Pollen lists his own creditors as Great West Life Assurance (guarantee on behalf of the Capital District Environmental Enhancement Foundation), Bank of Montreal and Joneade Estates, vendor under agreement for sale on the property at 1039 Johnson.

The mayor's share holdings statement includes, in addition to his three companies and Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd.: Canadian Pacific Investment Ltd. (100 shares), Canadian Cablesystems (10), Ford Motor Company U.S. (20), General Motors Corp. (20), Goodyear Tire (20), Getty Oil Co. (10), International Telephone and Telegraph (10), Mackan-Hunter Cable TV (10), Premier Cablevision (10), Q.C. Cable TV (10), B.C. Telephone (10), Westburne International (10), Great West Life (10), Neonex (10), Humana Inc. (10), Coronat Industries (10), Great Pacific Industries (10), B.M.-R.T. Realty Warrants (700), Phillip, Hager and North RRSP and Amfac Inc. (20).

Bawlf's statement names two companies in which he holds shares, Fort Victoria Properties Ltd. and Old Town Restaurants Ltd. In both cases, he says, he holds less than 30 per cent of the voting shares.

He receives remuneration as president and general manager of Fort Victoria Properties, and as president of Old Town Restaurants. Under land holdings, Bawlf enters a "nil" report, and likewise he shows no creditors.

The three other city aldermen whose statements were available today — Clyde Savage, Percy Frampton and Bill Tindall — have comparatively modest interests and holdings.

Savage discloses 1,000 shares in North West Finance Corporation; Frampton shares in his own accountancy business, in Thunderbird Finance Corporation and Natural Resources Fund; and Tindall a "less than 30 per cent" holding in Caroline Mines Ltd.

Neither Frampton nor Tindall reports any land holdings within the regional district, but Savage discloses property ownership interests at 2517 Fernwood, 1902 Chambers, 841 View and also in the Malahat district.

Not available this morning were statements filed by Ald. Alf Hood, Ald. Malcolm Anderson and Ald. Mike Young.

City clerk Morran Waller insisted that because Sept. 15, the final day for submission, was a Sunday, the information could not be released before 4:30 p.m. today without direct authorization from individual council members.

City-School Board

Two stock portfolios and several small companies were the chief content of financial disclosures made by Greater Victoria school board trustees.

Trustee Dr. Hal Knight listed 18 companies in which he held shares, Trustee Lavinia Greenwood 11 companies in which she had shares.

Board chairman Peter Bunn listed no shares, no creditor and no land holdings. Only business interest listed is Peter G. Bunn General Contractor, which he owns.

Vice-chairman Walter Donald owns Walter J. Donald Advertising and is information officer and priest-in-charge for the Anglican Church, Diocese of B.C.

He owns five shares of Pioneer Publishing, a company in which trustee Dr. Philip Ney holds a large interest.

Donald lists Toronto-Dominion Bank as a creditor and no land holdings.

Ney has more than 30 per cent of the shares of Pioneer Publishing of 1900 Richmond Ave., which he states owns no land and has no debts larger than $5,000.

He also owns more than 30 per cent interest in Pilot Programs, of 1900 Richmond, a company which organizes and administers challenge camping programs for teens and adults. The company owns no land and owes more than $5,000 to the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Ney also has shares in Victoria Developments of 162 Pacific Terrace, Nanaimo.

He works as a child psychiatrist for the Medical Services Association and the B.C. Medical Plan and as director of in-patient child psychiatric services for the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Greenwood lists shares in Atlantic Richfield Co., Grand Metropolitan Ltd., Alcan Aluminum Ltd., Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., Charter Consolidated Ltd., Shell Transport and Trading Co. Ltd., Rio Tinto Zinc Corporation, Natrusco Ltd., Coast Patrons Ltd., New Wellington Mines, and the Racquet Club of Victoria.

She owns property at 3390 Veteran and lists her creditors as Edwin Charles Winterburn and Cecil Walter Case.

Knight owns Free-lance Management Consultant, and lists no land holdings or creditors.

He owns shares in Bank of B.C. Trust Units, Canpean Corporation, Carling O'Keefe Ltd., Canadian Cellulose Ltd., Canadian Hydrocarbons Ltd., Caravan Trailer Lodges of B.C., Cornat Industries Ltd., Hy's of Canada Ltd., Kaps Transport Ltd., Northern and Central Gas Ltd., Pace Industries., Pizza Patio Management Ltd., Roman Corporation Ltd., Siebens Oil and Gas Ltd., Silver Standard Mines Ltd., Slegg Brothers Lumber Ltd., Universal Sections Ltd., and Versatile Manufacturing Ltd.

Daphne Temple holds shares in Ryanor Mining Company Ltd. and Texmont Mines Ltd. She has no creditors or land holdings.

Duffus teaches physics at Royal Roads; Ross teaches at Brentwood College School in Mill Bay.

He owns no land, and lists as creditors Nanaimo Realty (Ruxton Island Resorts) of Nanaimo, Butler Brothers of Saanichton and the federal income tax department.

Saanich

A vacant lot on Mayfair and 720 McKenzie, site of his business, is listed as Saanich Mayor Ed Lum's total land holdings in the capital regional district.

Lum is among six of Saanich's council members to file papers under the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act by press time today.

Ald. Joe Bourque and John McDonald were expected to file their papers by 4:30 today.

Lum lists himself as owner of Ed Lum Greenhouses, with shares in Surrey Building Co. Ltd. and Riviera Industries Ltd.

He lists his creditors as MacKenzie Greenhouses Ltd., Toronto-Dominion Bank and the corporation of the district of Saanich.

Ald. Les Passmore and Fred Severson list no land or financial holdings or creditors.

It is the same for Ald. Sandy Noel, with the exception of a mortgage against 3974 Douglas.

Ald. Mel Couvelier lists himself as president of Island Fashions Ltd. (operating as Couvelier Fine Apparel) and M and F Holding Co. Ltd., holding mortgages on three Metchosin lots in the name of the latter company.

His sole creditor is the Government Street branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Ald. Bill Campbell lists land holdings as 4091 Glanford, 559 and 569 Kelvin, 580 and 540 Ardersier.

Sidney, N. Saanich

With the exception of North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve and Sidney Ald. William Gardner, there is little to disclose by elected officials in these two areas of the Saanich Peninsula.

And the only reaction was a "if I wasn't forced to do it, I wouldn't" attitude by one municipal clerk and a reference to "press vultures" by an alderman.

In North Saanich, Ald. Herta Hartmanshenn resigned in protest rather than disclose her holdings. This step was taken Sept. 9. Another alderman not filing papers was George Aylard, who is resigning due to pressure of business.

Ald. Wilfred Price sent his papers to the attorney-general's office and they have not as yet been returned to the municipal office.

Ald. George Cumpston lists shares in several companies but nothing of a major character. He has no creditors and no land.

John Lapham, a partner in an electrical contracting firm, lists as creditors the Industrial Development Bank and Toronto Dominion Bank and lists as land holdings a block on Cromar Road and a lot on Beacon Avenue in Sidney.

For TV-radio repairman Ald. Eric Sherwood, it was no creditors, no land, no shares.

But it is Grieve with the major holdings, due to his businesses . . . Aske Construction Ltd. Aske Holdings, both of which he is president, and Point Roberts Ltd. of which he is a director. Land involved is scattered throughout Greater Victoria.

Aske Construction owns and is in the process of construction of homes on 61 lots and is negotiating for the purchase of 45 others.

Aske Holdings owns 6 lots and two commercial properties, Point Roberts owns 14 lots and Grieve himself is listed as the owner of four properties.

Creditors, as listed for either one of the three firms are Roberts Investment and Mortgage Ltd., E. A. Grieve, Heller-Natofin (Western) Ltd., Bank of British Columbia, Toronto Dominion Bank, Dr. J. T. Cruise, E. H. Cabeldu, W. G. Roberts, Dr. Sutherland, Investors Syndicate Realty Ltd., Canada Permanent Trust, Hulian Dilba, Marie Swanton and Mrs. Vance.

He holds 30 per cent or more interest in Point Roberts Ltd. and Aske Construction.

In Sidney, it was Gardner who had the most to disclose, two lots in Sidney on which his store and parking lot sits, and 6 lots in North Saanich.

Mayor Stan Dear lists shares in the Teachers' Investment and Housing Co-Operative, and a lot in North Saanich.

Aldermen Peter Malcolm, Chris Andersen list minor creditors while Ross Martin and Arnold Uren had nothing to declare.

Ald. Pat Merrett did not file as she is retiring from politics at the end of this term.

Esquimalt

Esquimalt council holdings make scant reading, with two aldermen exempted from disclosing financial interests and the remaining five members listing little but expected business interests.

Ald. Ed DeCosta's announcement earlier this year of his intention to retire from office in December exempts him from the mandatory disclosure and Ald. George McCreadie recently moved his business and residence to Campbell River taking his mandatory disclosures outside municipal bounds.

Mayor Art Young, 868 Admirals, lists his part-ownership of the Esquimalt Meat Market business and the two-lot parcel of land on which it is located at 1246-1248 Esquimalt Road.

His only creditor listed is the Industrial Development Bank.

Ald. Conrad Lundgren, a machinist fitter at HMC Dockyard, lists three corporate share holdings in West Coast Savings Credit Union, Newvan Resources Ltd., and Vespar Mines Ltd.

Ald. Terry Prentice, a professional engineer with the provincial department of transportation and communication, reports no land holdings, corporate shares or financial interests. The same holds for Ald. Ken Hill, also an employee of HMC Dockyard.

Ald. James W. McEvay, lists corporate holding of Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd., and corresponding land hoidings at the business sites at 424, 416, 420 William St., as well as an adjacent piece of laneway there.

Creditors listed by McEvay are the Toronto Dominion Bank and the Industrial Acceptance Corporation.

Ask The Times

Q. Is the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry part of the regular armed forces or a separate force? Where does one apply to join? A.D.

A. The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry regiment is part of the Canadian Armed Forces; the 1st Battalion being based in Calgary, the 2nd Battalion at Winnipeg and the 3rd Battalion at Work Point barracks in Esquimalt. You apply at the armed forces' recruiting centre at 1002 Wharf.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Anyone who has recently learned to his sorrow that he or a loved one has amyotrophic lateral sclerosis will want to read an excellent article on the subject by Robert G. Dicus in the "Rehabilitation Gazette" (4502 Maryland Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63108, Volume XVI, 1973). Mr. Dicus says that he has fought with the disease (called ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease, after the famous baseball player who died of the disease in 1938) for 10 years; although he is in a wheel chair, he is able to write and produce motion pictures. He is supporting his wife and family. He has just learned to be a computer programmer.

What is wonderful about the the article by Mr. Dicus is that he can give much hope to people with ALS. Unfortunately, the picture is discouraging for the person with the disease, because the cause is not known and there is no known cure. The doctor may say, "There is nothing anyone can do." Mr. Dicus says, "as a patient, I have come to know that there is hope of survival from ALS and that there is a great deal which the patient and his family must do to survive."

ALS generally strikes a man when he is about 50. Twice as many men as women are affected. The patient would do well to have the diagnosis confirmed by two or three able neurologists, but then, as Mr. Dicus says, there is no use in travelling around hunting for a cure; this only wastes money, time, and energy; and certainly there is no sense in giving money to quacks.

One of the first things that the patient and his family can do is to join the National Paraplegia Foundation, 33 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60601. This organization is concerned with furthering research, and can keep its members informed about any progress that has been made. Also, families with ALS members have formed the ALS Foundation, Inc., 10212 Noble Ave., Mission Hills, Calif. 91340, which can offer help and advice on meeting some of the problems that come with the disease.

Mr. Dicus warns the patient and his family against becoming too frightened. He says so wisely what I have known for many years — that fear can kill a person. The person can do things to keep fighting the disease. For example, it is important to eat nutritious foods and avoid infections that can weaken the body. There may come extreme fatigue, muscle cramps, and twitching and increasing weakness of the muscles. Some patients have trouble breathing.

It should be very encouraging to people facing ALS to know that Mr. Dicus is still able to work and be productive after 10 years with the disease. Perhaps soon research workers will find some clues as to the cause of this strange and distressing disease. Curiously, although many people know very little about the disease, I read that it is as prevalent as multiple sclerosis (a disease of the nervous system) and four times more prevalent than muscular dystrophy (a wasting disease of the muscles).

Some people wonder if the disease is hereditary, and there is some question about this. There are two papers on the subject by Drs. L. D. Kurland and D. W. Mulder of the Mayo clinic. Years ago, Dr. Mulder, a distinguished neurologist, found a surprisingly large incidence of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis in the natives on the island of Guam. The cause there could possibly be much in-breeding in a small population.

In 1960, Lieutenant J. B. Green reported in a paper about a family in which ALS showed up in four generations — in the father, two sons, a daughter, two granddaughters, and one great-grandson.

There seem to be three separate types of the disease: (1) the sporadic form, which is the most common type found in the U.S. and accounts for more than 90 per cent of the cases occurring in North America and Western Europe: (2) the familial, or hereditary form; (3) the Guam type, which is the major cause of death among Chamorro people.

Male Salons Booming Cup to Castaways

NEW YORK (UPI) — Does, he or doesn't he? To paraphrase famous hair coloring advertisement geared to women, he does. The salons specializing in men's styling report a booming business in color change.

There's also a rapid growth of permanents for men, especially for those with fine hair who "can't do a thing with it" when they wash it. A permanent in today's longer hair styles will give body and hold.

I've yet to see a male in curlers under a hair dryer, but at least in getting a permanent they have to be wrapped and soaked in waving solution for the initial curl.

Then, salon people say, after shampoos the men get the hair dried by infrared lamp or with one of the brush-blower gadgets also used on some women customers.

Big cities have salons catering to men with all types of beauty care but in less urban areas, the home permanent comes onto the scene with the wife often giving her husband one. Or, she may do his color.

Some industry sources estimate the men's market in color alone at more than $15 million a year for '74, up sharply from the $4 million two years ago. Annual sales of women's coloring products is $200 million.

The sales people at L'Oreal, a leading maker of color products, figured that 48 per cent of the male population starts color at around 38 years, or when the sideburns begin to gray. It drops off to 24 per cent in smaller towns where there aren't as many specialty salons.

Manufacturers and salon people give several reasons for the coloring and permanent boom. There is the national accent on youth, when older men can't afford to look a "distinguished gray" in business competition with younger men.

James Anderson, vice president of sales for American Hairdresser Magazine, said affluence is a factor; everyone from the blue collar worker to the businessman can afford to spend more on his appearance.

And, said Anderson, "in these rugged days, what with politics, the economy and all, men just want to look better."

The trend has spawned several books on men's fashions and grooming. One is devoted strictly to hair — "the complete book of men's hairstyles and hair care" (Crown), written by Miriam Cordwell and Marion Rudoy, both long in the beauty (for women) field.

"Today's male has gone into his own," they write. "... he is colorful and the sole arbiter of his own lifestyle and looks."

One section is devoted strictly to the science of coloring, with a bit of caution for the do-it-yourselfer. "Corrections due to mistaken use or judgment are expensive, often more so than the original service in a salon."

The men are going in for light browns to cover the gray, the lighter shades helping to give a younger look, reported to G10, the chief hair stylist at Jerry's Barber Shop, the salon in Bergdorf Goodman's, New York.

FOUR GRAIN HEALTH LOAF

By MARY MOORE

"Mum what we should be doing instead of sitting here playing scrabble is put some bread to rise. We haven't got a crumb."

Without another word we jumped up and headed for the kitchen.

We had two problems: One was we had only 10 cups all-purpose flour on hand; the other was I was determined to make 1 package of yeast rise four loaves of bread because yeast now costs 10c or 11c per package. (see note below).

What follows results in four loaves of gorgeous nutritious bread that elicited cries such as "I smell fresh bread!" "Is it out of the oven yet?" etc. etc. encouraging words to the baker that cheer her on to greater future efforts.

FOUR-GRAIN HEALTH-BREAD

(4 loaves—overnight method)

6 c. warm water
2-3 c. margarine
1 c. brown sugar
1 pkg. granular yeast—1 tablespoon (see note below)
10 c. unsifted all-purpose flour—DIVIDED
3 c. whole wheat flour
½ c. natural bran (packed)
1 c. rolled oats
1 c. cornmeal
½ c. sesame seeds
1½ c. skim milk powder
4 tsp. salt

Into a very large container—outsize bowl, clean dishpan or roasting pan—measure the warm water, margarine and brown sugar and stir to dissolve and melt a little. Sprinkle yeast over top and let stand a full 15 minutes.

Meanwhile measure all remaining ingredients. (There were so many we measured them into the top of the roasting pan.) As soon as yeast liquid has had its full soaking time add all remaining ingredients EXCEPT 2 CUPS of the white flour and mix as well as you can with strong wooden spoon—Davey did this for us for it requires a strong arm. Scrape down sides, cover, and put in very cool place overnight. We put ours in the refrigerator. In the morning let warm to room temperature place under a light if possible to speed up warming. Let rise until doubled. Sprinkle board with reserved 2 cups flour and knead AT LEAST 200 times. Again Davey did this for us. Shape into long even roll. Cut into four even pieces. Shape into perfectly smooth football-shaped loaves. Put into four greased standard loaf pans and let rise until 1" above rims of pans—about 1½ hours. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr.—about 55 minutes. Turn out on racks to cool. Give all of the hovering hungry ones a thick slice—this polished off a half a loaf on the spot. Beautiful food!

NOTE: In my health food store I can buy one-half pound granular yeast for 80c. On the same shopping trip I saw on the supermarket shelf one 4-oz. tan of the familiar brand for 85c. All you have to remember is that 1 tablespoon granular yeast is equivalent to one of the small familiar foil packages.

• the leisure craftsman

by Phyllis Fiarotta

Q. Do you have any crafts ideas using tin cans?
—Miss Mandy Jo Lopez (age 8)

A. Here are a few ideas that you and other craftsmen your age might enjoy trying.

Three coffee cans with plastic lids make a Totem Pole catchall. Wrap construction paper around each can, using a different color for each can. Tape ends of the paper together and cut away the excess paper on top of the can. Draw on funny faces with crayons or markers, or paste on paper faces. Add real or paper feathers. Fill each can with special things, put the lids back on and stack the cans like a totem pole.

Play Village can be used for your dolls or can be added to brother's train set. Use cans of many sizes and wrap each with colored construction paper as above. Roll another piece of paper into a cone roof for each can. Tape and trim evenly. Draw on house designs with crayons or markers.

Penny Toss Game is 10 cans of different sizes glued together in a triangle. Toss pennies from a distance. If the penny lands in a large can, you win a penny. The smaller the cans, the more pennies you win. You don't win if you miss a can.

Mamma's Boy Blues

DEAR ABBY: If I were Dear Abby for ten minutes, I would tell every woman in the world not to marry a mamma's boy. One of the tip-offs is a man who is between 30 and 40 and not married.

I married one of these Yo-Yos and it's the dumbest thing I ever did. Although he's a steady worker, that's all he knows how to do. I have to get him up in the morning, tell him what to wear, and even when to change his clothes. He's so childish and helpless.

He doesn't even know how to kiss. He clamps his lips together and presses them on my lips. I've tried to teach him how, but even after five years, he hasn't improved.

He doesn't know the first thing about how to make love, either. It's whim-wham, and that's it. So for the last two years, an hour before he gets home I start to getting a "migraine."

I'd go to a marriage counsellor, but he won't go, and no woman can save her marriage alone.

Mamma's boys just want a cook and housekeeper and a bed partner for two minutes once a week. If I could get a job and support myself, I'd leave him. — STUCK

DEAR STUCK: Nobody is stopping you from trying. One woman's leftovers are another woman's banquet.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a small one, but on second thought, are bad manners ever a small problem?

My husband and I would like your opinion of this situation: We know two different families whom we invite to our home for dinner occasionally. (Not together.)

The minute we sit down at the table, both fathers of these families ask one of their children to say the grace.

Abby, am I out of line to think this shows extreme bad manners on their part? I always thought it was up to the host and hostess to decide if grace was to be said at their table. And if so, by whom.

Please print your reply. Perhaps these men or their wives will read your column and learn something. Or I may learn something if I am wrong. —Social Grace.

DEAR SOCIAL: You are not wrong. It's the host's or hostess' prerogative to decide if grace shall be said at his (or her) table, and if so, by whom.

DEAR ABBY: I have a unique problem. I have been married to Elmer for six years. We are both in our late twenties.

All my life I have been extremely overweight, but this last year, through a friend's inspiration, I was motivated to lose 120 pounds. (Yes, one hundred and twenty pounds!)

Throughout my diet Elmer never indicated that he approved or disapproved, but now that my life has changed as much as my figure, Elmer has decided that he doesn't like the "new me", and he wants me to regain the weight I sacrificed so much to get rid of.

Perhaps I should mention that Elmer is fat, and we used to have a lot of fun together eating all the things we shouldn't but those days are gone for me. Now Elmer feels betrayed, and I feel guilty, because when he married me he really liked me the way I was.

I am torn between staying thin, which I am so proud to be, or letting myself go to please Elmer. — Formerly Fat.

DEAR FORM: For heaven's sake, stay thin! Join Overeater's Anonymous and let them help you. And take Elmer with you. They are a great, loving, caring fellowship. If Elmer doesn't flip for them and their program, I'll eat my calorie counter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Alimony Poor": That's the high cost of leaving; also it's the next thing that should be "Nadarized." But ask yourself, would you rather have your wife back? That should offer some comfort.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, Sept. 17

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Partnership proposals should be viewed now with healthy skepticism. Some who say they can do so much for you actually want you to perform tasks, services for them. Keep guard up, eyes open — and ask questions.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Structure may not be solid — you need to do some reinforcing. Go over details. Be specific and obtain specifics. Reject the superficial. You have a right to complete access to pertinent information.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Emotional responses could oppose logic. Know it and be wary of first impressions. You could encounter smooth talker who attempts to pull wool over your eyes. Obtain valid hint from Taurus message. Call or message will alter picture.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): You need help from family member — and you can get it if diplomatic. Don't insist, cajole or attempt to force any issue. Accent is on change of venue, a reassessment of goals. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Element of confusion is present. Define terms. Refine techniques. Be sure you are accurately quoted. Avoid trying too much at once. Relatives, close neighbors may be involved. Emphasis is on short trip connected with home, property value.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Financial matters are not what they seem to be. You have more strength in this area than might be apparent on surface. Know it and assume responsibility. Capricorn, Cancer persons might be in picture. Investment and collection — these are featured.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): You get nothing for nothing — and you also may find that what was supposed to begin is really finished. Cycle is high and you land on your feet following some financial bobbing, weaving. Aggressive associate may not know meaning — or value — of money.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): You can get behind closed doors and call the shots. Means what was hidden or obscured becomes available — for your eyes only. You are trusted with a special responsibility. Sense of discretion is put to severe test.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Friends confide. Key is to know when to listen seriously, when to laugh and when to walk away. Member of opposite sex wants to be placated, congratulated and flattered. Maintain self-esteem. Don't become a crying towel. Let others know that you value your time and opinions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Emphasis is on prestige, ability to present your case in manner which gains popular support. Gemini, Cancer and Sagittarius individuals are in picture. One friend, who may mean well, would do best by going away for a time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): You will be remodelling, reconstructing, getting "in touch" with persons at a distance. You also will be intrigued with language and travel. Another Aquarian, a Scorpio, Taurus and Leo figure prominently. Your personal philosophy is put to test — and emerges strong.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): One who pulls purse strings wants you to do some convincing — means gather material and get it in presentable form. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. You may find that escrow is "tied up," that cash flow has temporarily been disrupted.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have executive ability, are particular, responsible, capable of organizing and good when it comes to money management. June was important — change comes in December — and many drawn to you are born under Capricorn and Cancer. You are a direct, dynamic, powerful person who keeps something for the proverbial "rainy day."

Dr. Spock on Raising Children:

Psychiatric Care

By BENJAMIN SPOCK

(Eighth of 10 parts)

I've received a number of letters asking how parents would know when a child needs psychiatric treatment.

The simplest answer would be, "When parents are dissatisfied with some aspect of a child's behavior and haven't themselves been able to find the reason for it." This implies that it doesn't matter whether the problem seems great or small, and I go along with that.

If the parents are unhappy about even a relatively minor matter, this will continue to seur the parent-child relationship and may lead to other troubles. Besides, a parent can't always tell what is major and what is minor. Peskiness or rebelliousness that is driving the parents crazy may be found to be due to something as simple as overpermissiveness. Whereas a tendency to withdraw, which doesn't really bother anyone and which only makes the parents wonder a little, may prove on investigation to need a lot of treatment.

So it's sensible for parents to go ahead and ask for professional assistance in at least the evaluation (diagnosis) of any persistent symptom. Next comes the question of whether treatment is advised, and wether the parents will want to go along with it.

But this simple rule doesn't cover all the cases that would benefit from psychiatric attention. The main reason is that parents sometimes don't sense a problem that may be quite apparent to others.

I will now try to give a list of symtoms that generally would justify at least an evaluation. But so much depends on how intense the symptom is, what the age of the child is and, most important, how the child gets along in other respects.

Take bed-wetting, known as enuresis. It may mean nothing at 3 years of age in a child who's generally well-adjusted or it may be a temporary expression of jealousy of a new baby. At 6 or 8 or 10, enuresis always has significance, but the significance may be great or small; it can be an indication of one kind of tension in one child, quite another in another. If I had a son who was wetting the bed at the age of 6 or 8, I'd prefer that someone look into the situation. If I lived 200 miles from a psychiatrist and the child got along well with brothers and sisters, friends, teacher and schoolwork and showed no other symptoms, I'd feel he could wait, if necessary, for the consulation. But if he had trouble competing enjoyably with other boys and had a number of fears, I'd travel the 200 miles.

Somewhat the same rule goes for fears. Quite a number of 4 and 5-year-olds who are otherwise well-adjusted have transient fears. But if fears persist, are severe and are accompanied by other signs of tension, they should be looked into. Phobias about going to school should be investigated promptly, because they often become more difficult to overcome the longer the child stays out of school. As far as social adjustment is concerned, children should be able to play more and more co-operatively as they grow past 3 years of age, should have fewer fights and should settle most of them with little violence. A child who can't make or keep friends by 6, or who is aggressive or cruel or timid with other children, should have help.

It is normal for the 2-year-old to have difficulty separating from his or her mother, but most 3-year-olds can separate for half a day of nursery school. On entrance to kindergarten and first grade there are only a few children who can't leave their parents too. If they don't adjust soon, they need help.

When parents have real difficulty in managing or controlling their children, they need assistance.

Telling imaginary tales occasionally as if they were true is normal at 3 and 4. The sense of reality and the obligation to answer truthfully should be pretty well-established by 5 or 6. The child who is regularly lying after that is under great strain or has a serious personality problem. Stealing and fire-setting after the age of 5 certainly need looking into. The boy who wants to be a girl or always to play with girls and the girl who is chronically resentful that she is not a boy can more easily be helped at a young age than later.

It is normal for preschool children to try to get into sex play occasionally (though I personally think they should be gently discouraged). After 6, children brought up in a family with high standards try to repress their sexual curiosity and impulses most of the time, though these may occasionally reappear when they feel that secrecy is assured. The child who persists in sex play despite prohibition, especially after 6, and the child who is always trying to involve younger children needs help.

The child who stutters or who is highly excitable or who is always sad or who is ready to explode with anger needs evaluation. A pupil who is having any persistent trouble in school — whether it is with reading, math or paying attention or in getting along with teachers or classmates — should receive special help in school or outside.

Thumb-sucking, as far as I know, has no special significance in itself; you judge the child by how he gets along in other respects.

Nail-biting when a child is under temporary tension, as in a scary movie, means nothing. If he bites his nails frequently, it means that he is under a certain amount of strain; it may or may not be of importance.

Nail-biting is a good example of a type of symptom that is merely a direct and natural reaction to a stressful situation. It doesn't imply that anything has gone seriously wrong in the development of the individual's personality. Other symptoms that are natural reactions are, for example: the poor appetite of a child who has been urged much too often to eat; the meanness of a small child who is temporarily feeling displaced by a new baby; the dislike of school by a child who is failing there for some reason. Theoretically, you only have to change the environment or management somewhat or help the child to understand (as in the case of jealousy of the new baby) that the danger is not nearly as great as he or she imagined.

How do you go about getting psychiatric diagnosis for a child and, if necessary, treatment? In a large city there will be child psychiatrists in private practice and child-guidance clinics. Both will be prepared to adjust the fee to the family's ability to pay. But because the clinic usually receives some support from the Community Chest or from government, it is able to care for more cases from families with less-than-average income.

Many cities and towns that do not have a child psychiatrist or a child-guidance clinic do have a family social agency; sometimes there is a Catholic, a Jewish and a Protestant family service agency. This would always be a suitable place to first raise the question of what is upsetting a child and what needs to be done. A psychiatric social worker takes a full history of the problem and of the background, from the parents, on a number of occasions. Another social worker may see the child, and there may be psychological tests.

If they find that this is a case within their professional range — for counseling the parents and perhaps for working with the child too — they will do so. If they consider it one that will require more elaborate diagnostic or treatment services, they will refer it to a child psychiatrist or clinic. Because of their regular contacts with such other services, they may be able to get the family to the most appropriate one in the shortest possible time.

WHEELS

By MICHAEL LAMM

DEAR MIKE: I own a 1971 Mustang convertible. A Ford service representative told me the other day that there were fewer of this year's Mustang convertibles made than any other year. Is this true? Can you tell me how many 1971 Mustang convertibles were built? — Curious.

DEAR CURIOUS: Ford in Dearborn says that 6121 Mustang convertibles were made in 1971, and yes, this was the lowest number in any model year between 1964 and 1973.

DEAR MIKE: The bucket seat in my 1968 Firebird tilts back too far. I find it very uncomfortable. Moving the seat forward makes it worse. How can I straighten the backrest? — Bent.

DEAR BENT: Remove the rear bolts that hold the bucket seat to the floor. Buy longer bolts plus a bunch of flat washers or one-inch sections of ¾-inch pipe. Place the washers or pipe between the seat pedestals and the floor and bolt them back in place with the longer bolts. This works on most cars, not just Firebirds.

DEAR MIKE: I guess you'll get a lot of questions like this, but here goes. Should I buy a new leftover 1974 or should I get a '75 model? — Hesitating.

DEAR HES: That's a tougher question this year than in the past. Prices of '75 cars will be up. Catalytic converters and the supply of unleaded gas constitute unknowns. Yet I feel that the 1974 models were (are) so horrible in performance and fuel economy and buzzers that 1974 will go down in automotive history as an all-time low (or I hope it will — I hope things don't get worse). In other words, I'm hedging. I don't know at this point what to advise. Slightly off the subject, I feel that the main reason the 1974s didn't sell well wasn't due to tight money or tight gasoline as much as the fact that 1974 cars were (are) annoying, balky, thirsty, and by and large, ugly.

DEAR MIKE: At speeds of between 15 and 30 mph, there's a medium-loud whirring noise that seems to come from the rear end of my 1969 Dodge. It's rhythmic — about two whirs per second. What causes this, and should I have it looked into? — Whirried.

DEAR WHIRRIED: Possibly bad bearings in the differential or axles; maybe worn gears or shims; check to see if there's enough lubricant in the differential. If there is, let someone check the wheel bearings, and if those are okay, it's inside your differential. Lots of cars with lots of miles make such noises. I wouldn't do anything (in the latter instance) unless the noise becomes quite loud and annoying.

No Need for Mystery In Use of Basic Foods

family

By HILDA BEASTALL

Perhaps some ingredients listed in my recipes are not familiar to you if you have been accustomed to buying readymade food. They are however quite commonly available on shelves in many local food markets. Their use not only aids your food budget but gives you more delicious meals by making them completely satisfying.

These products are not new; most have been used for centuries in European countries, some as food for Asian peoples with insufficient wheat crops to support their populations; and some have appeared because they were removed by milling from our Canadian wheat to produce a refined, pure white, and rather characterless flour.

Wheat germ is the "heart" of the wheat grain, the vital part which enables the grain to grow when planted in soil. Because it is the living portion it does not have a long life span in the environment of the home or in markets. Keep it in the refrigerator.

One pound of wheat germ costs anywhere from 31 cents to 43 cents according to whether it is a name brand or a store brand. Wheat bran, the outer covering of the grain, is 19 cents. Some stores sell a mixture for around 45 cents for a package much larger in bulk than the one pound of wheat germ but containing a small quantity of bran. Watch this item. It is much cheaper and more convenient to buy one pound of each and use quantities as desired.

Brewer's yeast is simply the old fashioned "barm" from the brewery in a convenient powdered form which should be stored in refrigerator door along with wheat germ. Oldtime general practitioners of the medical profession used to prescribe "barm" as a tonic after illnesses, especially for children.

You will find this yeast in labelled bags as Torula Yeast or Torula Levure at 99 cents for a pound. Some stores call it Nutritional Yeast to cover its brewery origin perhaps.

Unbleached flour and whole wheat flour are in all stores now; you choose and stick to the brands which suit you. Prices are about equal wherever you buy. Remember to store the wholewheat flour in a cool cupboard along with soy flour, not on a high, warm shelf.

Soy flour is a creamy white flour, from the soybean, adding a light texture and special flavor to wholewheat baking as well as being of high protein value. About a quarter cup in each cup of other flours is enough. Cost for a pound is 55 cents.

Raw peanuts are both cheaper to buy and more nutritious than those which are roasted and salted. I bought a half-pound of raw for 39 cents against six and a half ounces of "baking peanuts" for 39 when the raw ones were not available. Raw peanuts have a more typical flavor; they are of course shelled, but have the brown inner skin still intact. When I chop them, the skins go into the food too, the same as carrot skins.

Fresh lemon juice is juice and pulp squeezed from fresh lemons. Lemons are variously priced; some have quite thick skins perfect for candying or for marmalade, others are smaller with thin skins and more juice. The price is rather high just now; I paid 28 cents for three but they have lots of juice when warmed before squeezing.

Soy oil is the extracted oil from soybeans, bland, clear and not heavy. As a fat for cooking vegetables in at low temperature, for adding by drops to green salads or for mixing with yogurt, soy oil is a pleasant way of getting a portion of the fat needed daily by the digestive system.

Dry yeast, granular yeast or baker's yeast is the same as packaged yeast under brand names — used in bread making or for other recipes requiring a "rising" period in a warm place.

The packets contain one tablespoon: I buy a half-pound bag for 95 cents and have had as many as 22 tablespoons of yeast, bringing the cost down to around four and a third cents. Flavor and action has been consistently good.

Dried peas and beans rose alarmingly in price as soon as meat prices soared, but still offer protein at reasonable levels so long as we remember to use several of the protein substitutes at the same meal in order to make the complete protein that is believed so necessary to human health.

CAR HITS HOTEL MAN, 22, KILLED

NANAIMO — A 22-year-old Nanaimo man died early Saturday after his car slammed into a hotel wall.

David Carlton Robinson was alone in his car when it went out of control on the West Cedar Highway, about five miles south of here, and struck the Cranberry Hotel.

RCMP said extensive damage was caused to the wall, and the car was destroyed.

An inquiry will be held.

Jackson Claims No U.S. Policy To Cut Oil Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson (Dem.—Wash.), said Sunday the U.S. appeared to have no policy or strategy to halt and reverse the rise in world oil prices.

"It is apparent that the national and world economies are not suffering strains approaching the severity of those that accompanied the onset of the great depression," Jackson said.

His comments came as he announced that the senate investigations subcommittee, which he heads, has asked top government officials to testify about U.S. policy and strategy on Wednesday.

Among those invited to testify were Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton and Energy Chief John Sawhill.

Jackson said the U.S. and other major oil consuming nations "seem to have no policy or strategy to control petroleum prices asd stave off inflationary problems created by a few relatively underdeveloped and unpopulous nations."

He suggested that the U.S., acting with its allies, "might use its diplomatic and economic strength to bring about a reduction in oil prices."

Jackson said he had sent letters to each of the witnesses asking them to answer the following questions for the subcommittee:

—Does the U.S. have any policy or set of policies directed at halting and reversing the rise in world and domestic oil prices?

—Why have the U.S. and the other major consuming nations been unable to mobile their economic power, diplomacy and other advantages to effect a price reduction?

—What, if any, options do the U.S. and other major importing countries have to reduce the price and the insecurity of imported oil?

Jackson said the officials would testify during a closed-door session.

Textbook Strike Now 'Secondary'

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Schools and coal mines were closed today in two West Virginia counties as a controversy over schoolbooks began to take on all the trappings of a miners' strike.

"The textbook thing is secondary now as far as our information goes," said Kanawha County sheriff's Lieut. W. T. Markham. He said coal miners began picketing several mines Sunday night and he expected picketing to spread today to other industries.

The protest began Sept. 3, the first day of school, over the supplemental English textbooks opponents said were "trashy, filthy and too one-sided." Picketing and boycotts of schools increased and late in the week there were two shootings.

Officials decided to close schools Friday but expressed hope during the weekend that the dispute would calm down. On Sunday, Kenneth Underwood, county school superintendent, said schools will remain closed "until I can be assured that students and staff can go to school without fear of violence."

Officials in neighboring Boone County cited similar reasons in saying their schools also will be closed today.

About 300 miners voted Sunday to continue picketing in Boone County in sympathy with the Kanawha effort, officials said. Miners' union officials have been unsuccessful in efforts to get the men back to work.

New Star Cluster Found With Infra-red Detectors

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A new cluster of stars in the great nebula of Orion has been discovered by astronomers using infrared technology, the California Institute of Technology announced.

The Cal Tech and Hale Observatory scientists said the stars are very young, probably less than 100,000 years and relatively close to earth, only 1,600 light years away.

The stars are invisible and cannot be studied by optical astronomers, but can be detected only by their infrared heat radiation, Cal Tech scientists said.

The embryo stars — five of them — were discovered accidentally by Ian Gately and Dr. Michel Penston with sensitive infrared detectors attached to the Mt. Wilson Observatory's 100-inch telescope.

The two astronomers were measuring heat from visible stars in the region of the Orion nebula, a glowing cloud complex in our own milky way galaxy, that spans 26 light years.

After measuring the heat from the stars, the telescope was turned slightly to measure heat from the sky background. The difference between the two gives the true heat radiation of the star.

Farmers Defended In Egg Dump Furor

OTTAWA (CP) — Charles Munro, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, says the continuing dispute over the destruction of millions of eggs should not obscure the right of farmers to organize collectively to sell their products. "Farmers have as much right to organize to protect their livelihood . . . as other sectors in our society," he says in a news release issued today.

Marketing boards, such as those that control the production of eggs, are to protect farmers from price swings brought on by periods of high and low production.

"Farmers have always resisted the destruction of food as a means to achieve a fair price," Munro says. "Orderly planned production is a much better approach."

Farmers were as upset as consumers that 28 million eggs are being destroyed by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency because they were left to rot in improper storage.

"However, the inconsistency of the public anger is bewildering to the farm community.

"Other sectors of our society place heavy economic costs on all of us, if they believe their cause is just."

Yet people seemed to be less upset by current widespread work stoppages than they were over the burial of the eggs.

Foreign Oil Firms Threat to Iraq

BEIRUT (UPI) — Iraqui oil minister Saadoun Hammadi said today foreign oil companies were posing a serious competition to the national oil firms of the producing countries by selling oil at lower prices.

"Although the major oil companies buy the oil at market prices, they pay (royalties and taxes) far less than the market prices," Hammadi said in a statement carried by the Iraqui news agency today.

Hammadi was commenting on the outcome of last week's Geneva conference of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). The conference decided to maintain the present posted prices of oil, but raised overall costs by 33 per cent.

He said the national oil companies of OPEC are selling their shares of the oil at market prices. Although the major oil companies may be doing the same, "they are paying the producing countries (royalties and taxes) less than the market prices," thus making considerable profits and can afford to sell at lower prices.

Hammadi said the oil-producing countries must bridge the difference in prices by raising the cost of production for the major companies.

In this way, he said, "the major companies' profits will be squeezed, and their ability to compete with the national oil firms reduced." The idea is to put the major companies and the national firms "on equal competitive level."

Hammadi welcomed OPEC's decisions last week, but said "these are not enough." They must be followed by other steps aimed at "bolstering the competitive capacity of the national oil firms and establishing a balance in the international oil market."

The Iraqi minister also called for a co-ordinated production policy "in the light of market needs," and a price policy "that would bridge the gap between realized prices and production costs."

Conventions A Big Party

VANCOUVER (CP) — Officers of the B.C. Conservative party have voted to go ahead with their anpual convention at the end of November in Kamloops although the Social Credit party plans to hold a convention here at the same time.

Provincial Conservative leader Scott Wallace said the officers decided Nov. 29-Dec. 1 was the most convenient time and the party is not "trying to compete or put one over" on the Socreds.

He said the party's first choice was the preceding weekend in Penticton but that time period is the date of the annual Grey Cup football game "and we decided it wouldn't be advisable."

Nixon's 'Deterioration' a Ruse?

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Richard Nixon's longtime personal physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, has added to widespread rumors that the former president's health is seriously deteriorating.

Dr. Tkach said Nixon is under severe pressure and in worse health than he was only two weeks ago. And there were reports today that Nixon knew in advance of plans to form an intelligce unit like the one which broke into the Democratic national headquarters.

The two developments have been linked to President Ford's controversial decision eight days ago to pardon Nixon for any crimes he may have committed while in office.

White House spokesmen have indicated that Nixon's health was one reason for granting the pardon. Since then, questions have been raised about whether Nixon's health warranted such a move. The former president's doctor and members of his family have granted numerous interviews to emphasize that such concerns are valid.

Ford indicated to reporters Sunday that he may hold a news conference today.

Dr. Tkach told Newsweek magazine that Nixon's health is "much worse than when I saw him two weeks ago."

"He just has no bounce, no responsiveness at all."

The magazine quotes Tkach as saying "it's going to take a miracle for him to recover."

Gen. Tkach said Nixon's condition is so critical he has not discussed the case even with Nixon's wife Pat "for fear of frightening her."

"I guess she'll read this now and I guess that's good," Tkach is quoted.

Nixon is reported to have told the doctor: "If I go into the hospital, I'll never come out alive."

But Newsweek also quotes a former White House communications director, Kenneth Clawson, one of Nixon's staunchest supporters, as saying that the former president seemed animated and in no visible pain during a visit by Clawson to Nixon's San Clemente, Calif. hideaway last week.

Newsweek comments: "The question remained: Was Nixon really in danger, or were his friends simply trying to justify the pardon and win him lenient treatment in coming court battles? Whatever the answer, there is no doubt that the ex-president's family, friends and old staffers worked actively to convince Ford that Nixon's health was at best fragile."

In the same vein, the New York Times says the controversy—and Dr. Tkach's statement — "raised speculation that Mr. Nixon might intend to rely on his medical condition to help him avoid testifying in the Watergate cover-up trial beginning Oct. 1."

Nixon has been subpoenaed to appear as a defence witness for his former aides charged with covering up the Watergate scandal.

There has been no official indication that Nixon will try to avoid testifying on grounds of poor health. But Dr. Tkach is quoted as saying Nixon should "not get under any more pressure" which might result in a heart attack.

One of the major criticisms of Ford's pardon for Nixon was that the question of Nixon's involvement in the Watergate scandal has never been resolved.

Newsweek quotes a knowledgeable prosecution source as saying that newly-received White House tapes show that Nixon was expecting to receive the sort of information sought by the special intelligence-gathering unit which broke into the Democratic national committee headquarters.

The magazine quotes the source as saying that special prosecutor Leon Jaworski "can tie Nixon into the planning of the break-in."

"That's the bottom line."

Trust Is Price of Pardon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whatever his motives, President Ford's grant of complete pardon to Richard Nixon may well cost a very dear price — his credibility with an American people hungry for a president they can trust.

One week after his bombshell pardon announcement, followed by a series of confusing White House statements intended to soften the blow, the new president has conceded he is in trouble.

Privately, he is reported to have told friends that he wound up with "egg on his face." Publicly, at his golf match at Pinehurst, N.C., with pros in their own game, Ford remarked wryly:

"I spent much of today in an unsuccessful attempt to get a hole in one. Tomorrow I'll be back in Washington trying to get out of one."

In one week, Ford has seen his old friend, J. F. Terhorst, quit in protest as White House press secretary; has angered Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, and has dismayed some of his strongest Republican supporters on Capitol Hill.

Publicly, he and the White House defend the pardon as an "act of mercy" and compassion for a man who already has suffered enough from the indignity of having been the first U.S. president forced to resign.

The White House concedes Ford's decision was unpopular. A massive outpouring of telegrams, letters and telephone calls establish that. But to his political friends and foes, what hurt Ford most was not necessarily the pardoon but its timing.

Compounding the president's problems was the subsequent attempt — eventually disavowed — to defuse the sudden surge of criticism by suggesting Ford seriously was considering a blanket pardon for all Watergate figures.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert Byrd of West Virginia characterized Ford's fall from grace this way: "His believability, which was his greatest asset, has been undermined." One of his party's shrewdest politicians, Byrd was not displeased.

During his confirmation hearings to be vice-president, Ford had testified that "I do not think the public would stand for it" should he become president, then pardon Nixon.

Even as late as Aug. 28, Ford told a news conference it would be "unwise and untimely" for him to commit himself to a Nixon pardon until the former president's case had run its course through the courts. It is known Ford intended to pardon Nixon eventually.

Yet two days after that news conference, Ford quietly asked his old friend and former Grand Rapids law partner, Philip W. Buchen, to make discreet inquiries about a pardon. One of the first things Buchen reported back — to Ford's apparent surprise — was that a president could grant a pardon even before an indictment.

No one in a position to know is willing or able to say what prompted Ford to flip-flop on the question of a pardon even before Jaworski had decided whether to seek an indictment against Nixon.

The same doubts, skepticism and ugly rumors that nearly paralysed Washington in the depths of Watergate returned to haunt Ford, who said he had hoped the pardon would finally close the books on the scandal.

A special gallup poll commissioned by The New York Times indicated that Ford's public popularity fell from 71 per cent to 49 per cent in just three weeks.

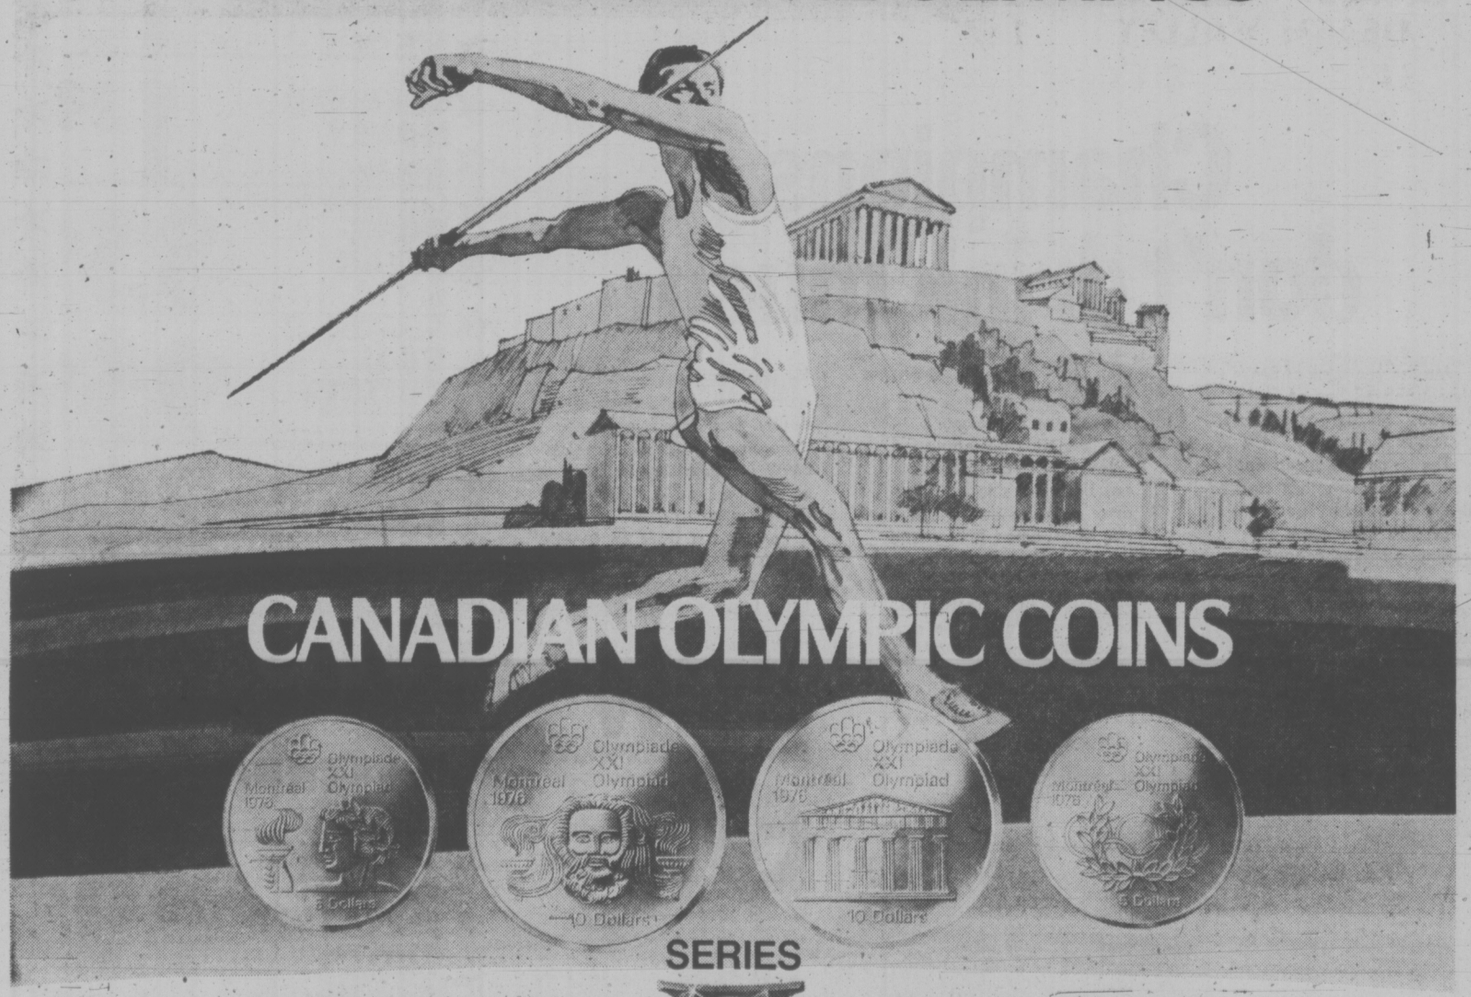
THE SPIRIT OF THE OLYMPICS



Struck in solid sterling silver, Olympic Motifs depict the ancient heritage of the Olympic Games.

The number of Olympic Coins to be struck is limited by an Act of Canadian Parliament.

To help finance the 1976 Olympics, a special Canadian Olympic Coin collection is being minted. Series II of seven — Olympic Motifs, is now available. Designed by Anthony Mann of Halifax, these four coins portray both the mythical and real beginnings of today's Olympic Games. From Zeus, in whose honour the first Games were held, to the five Olympic rings representing the world's continents, Series II — Olympic Motifs is a superb addition to your Olympic Coin collection. If you already have the first series, do not hesitate to order the second. If you were unable to obtain Series I, a limited supply is available from authorized distributors. When you buy Olympic Coins you not only help support the 1976 Games, but you contribute to the growth of amateur sports, and to the Canadian Olympic Team. And, long after the Games are over, you will have a shining reminder of the part you played in helping to make the Games a success. Coin Specifications: $10 coins are 45 mm. in diameter, weigh 750 grains, with a fine silver content of 1.44 troy oz. $5 coins are 38 mm. in diameter, weigh 375 grains, with a fine silver content of 0.723 troy oz. All coins are sterling, 92.5% pure silver, and minted in Brilliant Uncirculated or Proof quality. Each Olympic Coin carries an uncrowned image of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II on the obverse. Granny Lives In Delivery Room . . .

BREESE, Ill. (AP) — Charles Walter (right) has to carry 10 keys to his home.

"Those are the vital ones that we use," he said. "I'd say there are 10 or 15 pounds more of them that we don't use."

Walter, 34, his wife, Loretta, and their seven children share a 107-room, 20-bath home complete with elevator, dumbwaiter, two acres of lawn, 500 feet of hedges, a laundry house, a tunnel, a kitchen big enough to feed more than 100 persons, parking for 20 and a delivery room, which is occupied by Mrs. Walter's mother.

It takes several days just to cut the grass and in winter the heating system consumes a ton of coal a day — which has to be shovelled by hand.

Their home used to be a hospital.

Until last year they lived in a house, ran a ceramics business from it and felt cramped.

A new hospital had been built and Breese was about to demolish the old one, built in 1884. A for-sale sign hung out front and the Walters bought it for $60,000.

"We use every room in the building, one way or another," Walter said. His basement is jammed with ceramics equipment. The first floor is a shop with a one-time operating room used as a classroom for hobbyists.

The family lives on the second floor and the third is for grandma, house guests and storage.

Alexander, their three-year-old, still gets lost.

"We spend our time yelling, 'Where are you?'" his mother said.

They installed an intercom but found yelling through the laundry chute serves as well.

Some Things Just Never Change

LONDON (UPI) — There was trouble down on the farm and the field hands went over the heads of the foremen to send a letter of complaint to the owner.

"There are a lot of mistakes because no one in charge knows about farming," they wrote. "Please call some of us in and listen to what we wish to tell you."

Nothing really unusual in that, except the date on the letter. It was written 2,331 years ago.

If there is anything at all remarkable about the petition of the disgruntled farmhands, and many of the other papyrus documents now on display at the British Museum, it is that humanity has changed so little over the centuries.

In Ancient Egypt and Greece, wherein most of the documents on show were written, a loan shark demands high interest, a spoiled schoolboy writes petulantly to his father, a mother complains that her child is out of control, VIPs get special treatment, tan ethnic minority is persecuted.

The ancient world recorded its triumphs and troubles, its letters and household accounts, its comedies and tragedies on papyrus — a plant that the Egyptians discovered some time around 3000 BC could be beaten into a writing surface.

One of the great collections of papyrus material is in the British museum, some of it from the library of L. Calpurnius Piso, father-in-law of Julius Caesar. And what is on view now is a tantalizing sample of its richness.

"If you won't take me to Alexandria, I won't write you a letter or speak to you or greet you, so send for me . . . if you don't I won't eat, I won't drink. So there!"

That was a schoolboy of the early 3rd century AD, obviously a candidate for the woodshed. Dad's reply is not preserved.

Politicians May Come and Go, But Coke Will Return

CAIRO (UPI) — The bearded professor slowly twisted the small metal zodiac on a multicolored chart, pondered the problem for a full minute and pronounced the verdict of the stars — another Middle East war, this time with nuclear weapons.

The Erudite Astrologer, as Hussein Chimy, 70, is known, rarely misses the mark.

Chimy successfully forecast Richard Nixon's resignation, the deaths of former presidents Gamal Abdul Nasser of Egypt and Charles de Gaulle of France and the dates and victors of two earlier Arab-Israeli wars.

"Israel will never accept leaving their occupied lands, and certainly there will be another war," the astrologer predicted more recently.

"These are lucky years for the Arabs. Even though the whole world will help Israel, the Arabs will wash them out."

Chimy suddenly turned sombre and checked his small notebook. He obviously didn't like what he saw.

"Israel will use small atomic weapons supplied by the United States," he said. "They don't mind setting the world on fire but they won't leave their occupied lands. And please, let me emphasize this is an astrologer's point of view, not an Egyptian's."

"Gerald Ford is a good man but he doesn't like to work," the professor said, reading from his notes. "For this reason people won't like him. It is going to be a rough time for him in November, and probably in March or April of 1975, (vice-president Nelson) Rockefeller will continue as president."

The sage took off his thick black glasses and stroked his full, grey beard, pondering other questions.

"Northern Ireland will become a separate nation when the English leave. This will come about before 1980.

"Unity between Libya and Egypt certainly will happen, perhaps as early as April, 1975. (Libyan ruler Col. Moammar) Khadafy will no longer be head of his country — probably very soon, before October.

Chimy re-emphasized that he spoke on all these matters as a seer using scientific methods to gaze ahead in time and not as a politician. Then he went on to say the biggest bright spot on the star map was Egypt's future.

"This country will continue to have great prosperity," the philosopher said, and what he said augurs especially well for Egypt is the return of one of the country's favorite drinks.

The Coca Cola company has been boycotted here since the mid 1960s because the firm also has a plant in Israel. Egyptians drink a poor, non-carbonated imitation made from rhubarb. A 12-ounce can of illegally imported Coke costs at least $1.

"Coca Cola will come back," the erudite seer said. "Egyptians like Coca Cola. It's just a matter of time."

A HOT RECEPTION FEARED IF HE RETURNS TO CHILE

EDMONTON (CP) — A 26-year-old Chilean believes he has placed his life in the hands of Immigration and Manpower Minister Robert Andras.

Gabriel Cabrolier Pizzaro, a leading dancer of the now-dissolved Chilean National Dance Company, Pucara, has asked Andras for political asylum.

Pizzaro, now staying here with a cousin, said during a weekend interview that he fears a return to Chile when his tourist visa expires Sept. 24 would mean imprisonment and possible torture because of his public statements against his country's ruling military junta since his arrival in Vancouver Sept. 1.

Life under the junta is "incredible" and the arts have been dragged into politics since the overthrow of President Salvatore Allende, he said.

The dance group was heavily supported by the Allende government.

If his plea for political asylum is granted, Pizzaro will join another 29 refugees from his country now living in Edmonton.

However, he would be the only one to be granted political asylum since the overthrow of the Allende government Sept. 13, 1973.

Champions don't drink much.

Maybe you think of BMW's thoroughbred line of fast, famous cars as gas-guzzlers.
You're wrong.
The same advanced engineering concepts that created BMW's legendary performance also gives them surprising gasoline economy.
The spirited BMW 2002 sports sedan, for instance, will give you about 28 miles per gallon.*
The classic Bavaria — for all its power and performance — can average 20 m.p.g. for your daily driving and on the highway still more.
Even the connoisseur's car, the superbly equipped BMW Three-Point-Zero-S, has the miser's touch. Day after average day it can give you unashamed luxury and the same economical gas consumption. And in all three you'll find the sure footed, positive control — the overall roadability that is BMW's hallmark.
Time after time BMW cars have been voted the best sports sedans in the world, for performance, precision craftsmanship and dependability. Economy is a new dimension. We think it makes BMW worth a second look — as soon as you've finished the first one!

Crash Sites Revived

Old air crash sites within an hour's flying time of Nanaimo will be used in a civil defence air service training scheme for Victoria zone pilots Sept. 22.

Pilots, spotters and navigators will fly their private aircraft from Cassidy airport in rotation, covering two or more old crash sites where volunteer "survivors" will send ground signals.

During the debriefing session later at Cassidy, there will be reports from the crash survivors and pilots will compare notes with them.

Briefing and co-ordination of the exercise will be by Capt. Robert O. Hughes, now retired, a former helicopter pilot for armed forces search and rescue, and Betty Wadsworth, Victoria zone air service chief. Victoria and Comox search and rescue officials will attend and the exercise will employ provincial emergency program volunteers from Port Alberni and Parksville, and the PEP radio network.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A Victoria man who told police he "just couldn't keep out of trouble" was sentenced in Victoria provincial court Saturday to six months in jail for breaking into a hotel room and stealing items valued at less than $200.

Victoria provincial court was told Stafford Benning, 31, of no fixed address, had a lengthy criminal record.

Benning was charged with breaking into a room in the Drake Hotel Friday and stealing a pair of gold earrings, a teapot, a coffee-pot and cream and sugar containers, owned by the room occupant who was asleep during the break-in.

He told Judge William Ostler that sending him to a place to fight his drinking problem "probably wouldn't do any good."

A 28-year-old Victoria man was remanded to today for election of trial method on charges of breaking and entering and rape.

Remy A. Gatto, of 3272 Shelbourne, was arrested by Saanich police in an apartment building in the 3200-block Cook early Saturday morning.

A 24-year-old Kingston man was granted a suspended sentence for possession of marijuana early Saturday morning and placed on six months' probation.

Brian David Allan told Judge Ostler he had only a small amount of money left to make the trip home to Kingston.

Joseph Gust, 47, of 2315 Fernwood, was fined $400 and had his driving licence suspended for impaired driving down the wrong lane on Hillside Saturday.

In court Friday, a 24-year-old man who had earlier received a warning was fined $300 for possessing marijuana.

Phillip Alexander Gatensby, 2122 Cook, pleaded guilty to possessing the drug, found in a bag in his shirt pocket early Friday.

"Without people like you there can't be traffickers," Ostler said.

Ostler told Gatensby, who was also convicted of possessing marijuana in February, "this is your second offence and you've had your warning.

In another drug case, Percival John Bellavie, 26, of 1280 Union, was fined $75 for possessing marijuana.

Bigger, Better Returns From Vegetable Plots

The home gardener with a vegetable plot is getting more than normal returns this year. With careful thinking and planning the amounts of produce can be calculated in dollars each week plus the added fresh flavor, which is a real surprise to new gardeners.

Now in September some crops will be coming to an end. Early sown pea vines have been stripped of their last pods, and the vines are pulled from the ground to go on the compost heap.

On the way, go over the vines once more. You may find as I did, another small picking of pods which escaped your eagle eye. They will be more mature than those picked earlier but maturity has its compensations too.

The mid-July sowing of peas is still bearing well.

If you have garlic in the ground, or onions, these should be taken out now. If the bulbs have been exposed they will be fairly dry with a papery outer skin.

Do not break this outer skin. It must be intact to protect the inner part of the onion and garlic from deterioration. Continue drying in the sun each day for a week or so.

Unless onions have completely withered stems and dry outer skins (either brown, reddish purple or yellowish according to variety) they will not keep for winter use. Nor will they keep if they have what are called "bull necks", that is, thick necks above the bulge of the bulbs.

The slow early season retarded development of late sown onions this year; and some new vegetable gardeners failed to expose the bulbs above soil level early in summer. All is not lost — use onions while good. Spread in a cool place, look them over frequently.

Remove at once any bulb which shows soft spots. Nothing except a rotten potato smells as bad among storage vegetables as a rotting onion.

Use onions freely for soup, boiled with parsley butter, fried, and baked.

Squash vines are still producing fruits. Use tiny ones day by day, leaving larger fruits to mature for keeping a few weeks. Hard skins are necessary to prevent early rot. The hard skin gets a bit of shine to it, while immature squash are duller in appearance. You cannot test squash with the fingernail, for a few punctures spoil keeping qualities but if in doubt about keeping, a fingernail test will confirm your belief that the fruit should be used within days.

Zucchini squash are only allowed to mature if wanted for coloring the flesh as imitation peel for cakes and cookies. Summer squash of which zucchini is only one variety, are only delicious when young. They go flat like a mature marrow when aging.

Tomatoes ripen now almost faster than we can use them. What a flavor they have — sun warm from the plants.

If warm bright days last you should have ready a fairly heavy cotton cover (an old bedspread?) to put over all the tomato plants on clear nights when frost can be expected by dawn. The fruits continue ripening with better flavor and texture; on the plants.

Digging potatoes is still a major thrill for me. There is so little indication above ground of the tremendous store of energy below. Only as the careful turning of soil progresses are the results of one small piece of potato realized. If you like to be properly amazed — take time over potato digging.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

There is an old bridge "rule" which says that, at a trump contract, a defender should never lead a suit that both declarer and dummy are known to be void of. In the vernacular, one should never give declarer a "sluff and a ruff," thereby enabling him to trump the trick in one hand, while simultaneously discarding a loser from the other hand.

But all rules have their exceptions, as will be observed in today's deal.

East-West vulnerable. East deals.

East-West vulnerable.
East deals.

♥ A K

WEST
♠ A 10 5
♥ 8 7 5 4

EAST
♥ Q J 10
♦ A K Q 7 6 4 2

SOUTH
♠ K Q J 8 7 3
♥ 9 6 3 2
♦ J 10
♥ K

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♦	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♦.

After winning trick one with his queen of diamonds, East cashed the diamond ace. The only diamonds remaining in the deck were now possessed by East. He next took a time-out to deliberate about what to lead to trick three.

To lead a club, in view of the dummy, had to be wrong. Either South had the king, or West had it. And if it were West, then a club lead would ambush the king and result in his decapitation. So East eliminated the club lead.

To lead a heart instead, in view of the dummy, was equally hopeless. No matter what the heart set-up was, the defenders could never make a heart trick.

And so by a process of elimination, East correctly concluded that the defenders' sole chance was for him to lead a diamond, despite the fact that North, South, and West were known to be void of diamonds.

When East led the diamond king to trick three, he doomed declarer to defeat. If South trumped low, West would overtrump with the trump ten. And if South ruffed with the spade jack (as he did), West would discard a heart or a club. With the A-10-5 of spades remaining, West could not be prevented from winning two trump tricks.

Had East led either a heart or a club at trick three, declarer would have fulfilled his contract. He would have won East's lead and played his king of trumps, driving out West's ace. Upon regaining the lead, he would then have cashed the queen and jack of trumps, picking up West's two remaining trumps; and his only losers would have been two diamonds and one trump.

"So you still collect stamps," said Uncle Fred. "How are the collections coming along?"

"I've got more than Ann," replied Joe. "We checked today, and we'd both have the same if I gave her 37 of mine."

Ann had to have her say. "That's right," she agreed. "But you'd have twice as many as me if I gave you 37 instead."

How many did each have?

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: STEAKS was 319523 (odd).

Tense Holidays for Jews, Moslems

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israelis prepared today to celebrate the Jewish new year, Rosh Hashanah, while the Arabs made preparations for the month-long Moslem fast of Ramadan.

The Arabs used the holiday period last year to mobilize their armies and then attacked Israel on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement that ends Rosh Hashanah and is the holiest of Jewish holidays.

No such attack is expected this year, but the Israeli military command ordered stringent security precautions and intensified the alert along Israel's borders.

Rosh Hashanah, which starts at sundown, is a 10-day period of introspection and prayer.

Ramadan begins early Tuesday. During the month Moslems abstain from food, drink and sexual relations during daylight hours and feast all night. They believe that during Ramadan 1,393 years ago the angel Gabriel imparted to Mohammed the wisdom of the Koran.

Israeli police said they picked up two Arabs with a time bomb near a Tel Aviv supermarket crowded with holiday shoppers today. The Arabs were going to plant the bomb in the market, a spokesman said.

On Sunday, the Israeli air force attacked villages in south-west Lebanon for the first time in five weeks. The Israeli military command said its jets made two 10-minute raids on concentrations of Arab terrorists around Mount Hermon. It reported that all the planes returned safely.

Lebanese officials said six villages were hit, the mayor of one was killed and two other civilians were wounded.

Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin returned from Washington and said his talks with President Ford and State Secretary Henry Kissinger produced satisfactory results "for the immediate and long-range strengthening of Israel."

In an interview taped for NBC's Meet the Press before he left the U.S., Rabin said Israel can go along with some "territorial compromises" but will never go back to its boundaries prior to the 1967 war.

"We want to have secure, to be more specific, defensible boundaries," he said.

In Cairo, Egyptian sources said that after months of bitterness Egypt has "abandoned indefinitely" its projected merger with Libya. Relations have steadily deteriorated between the two countries. Recently both Governments agreed to tone down their war of words, but Libya has continued to allude to Egypt in urging Arab youth to overthrow any regime that links itself to the U.S.

In another development, the Beirut newspaper Al Anwar said Saudi Arabia is buying nearly $700 million worth of arms from various foreign countries to help Egypt make up for its losses in the war last October. It said deals already have been made with several European countries, and others are being negotiated with the U.S., Britain and Belgium.

SOCREDS VOTE ICBC OUT

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP) — Social Credit party members from seven ridings in B.C.'s northern interior voted to support disbanding the Insurance Corporation of B.C., if possible, should the party win the next provincial election.

That was one of about 40 resolutions arising from a weekend policy meeting of 100 northern Social Credit members in preparation for a policy-drafting convention in Harrison Hot Springs starting Sept. 23.

Ron Bellamy, secretary-treasurer of the Social Credit league's northern interior branch, said Sunday delegates voted strongly in favor of the ICBC motion but recognized that taking the corporation apart might not be financially possible for some time.

"The delegates felt that the government should not be involved in business at all," Bellamy said. "We want a Socred government to phase it out if possible or at least let in other insurance companies to compete with ICBC."

The two-day workshop began Friday and was highlighted by a Saturday speech from Social Credit president Grace McCarthy. She called for a drive to sign new members to the party before the major policy convention in Vancouver Nov. 29.

Bellamy said that among other resolutions passed by the meeting were ones dealing with land ownership, labor and education.

Author Dies

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man (Reuter) — Walter Greenwood, 71, author of the best-selling novel of the 1930s, Love on The Dole, was found dead Friday at his home here. He wrote about 40 plays, books and film scripts, including his autobiography There Was a Time. Police said death apparently was due to natural causes.

Canada, U.S. Compromise For Oil, Gas Forecast

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — A wide spectrum of energy-related issues could lead to future compromise between Washington state and B.C. over oil and natural gas supplies, Governor Dan Evans said Saturday.

Talking to reporters following a speech to the republican state central committee, Evans said that on the east coast, oil supplies are shipped from the U.S. to Canada. Thus, a tradeoff with west coast oil shipments could be possible.

Evans said he will be in contact with B.C. premier Dave Barrett to "let him know our opinions" concerning recentl developments regarding Canadian export of natural gas.

The federal energy administration has warned of expected interruptions of natural gas supplies to commercial and industrial users in the American northwest because of a cutback in Canadian exports this fall. In addition, a sizeable price increase is forecast.

The commission validated that forecast by announcing on Friday that it will more than double the export price of natural gas to $1.35 a thousand cubic feet from 61 cents.

Evans indicated that the entire question of natural gas and other energy forms would be key topics of discussion at a symposium of state and provincial leaders at western Washington State College this week.

Evans seemingly continued laying the groundwork for the state's bargaining position by commenting: "If they cut back their shipments of natural gas to us, we will have to increase tanker shipments of oil from Alaska and other points."

He made a similar observation Friday at the Washington State Bar Association meeting in Vancouver. He also said Washington state may withdraw its previous opposition to the proposed raising of Ross Dam if the province cuts natural gas exports.

"Perhaps the policies on both sides of the border can be shifted together," Evans said.

Now kids can look it up in their own Funk & Wagnalls.

After 60 years of making encyclopedias for adults, Funk & Wagnalls has learned enough to make one for children.

It's called the Young Students Encyclopedia. And it's designed to do something more than just get them through the next homework assignment—to make them want to learn on their own.

Instead of burdening your children with tons of forgettable detail, it appeals to their native curiosity. The article on Airplanes, for example, illustrates an experiment children can perform at home showing how things fly. There are hundreds of other drawings, games and puzzles that not only teach but provoke, involve and entertain in the process.

In other words, it's an encyclopedia children will actually use. They'll also use it a long time.

It's designed to be simple enough for children just learning to read and comprehensive enough to serve until they're ready for an adult encyclopedia. They can't outgrow it the way they do shoes.

Which brings up another nice point about the Young Students Encyclopedia: it's intended exclusively to help children, but it helps grown-ups too.

First, it doesn't put much of a dent in your budget. Since it's sold direct to you through us, you can buy the complete 20-volume set a volume or two a week for only $1.99 each. And the first volume for the introductory price of twenty nine cents.

Second, it helps prevent you from doing what you shouldn't be doing anyway—your children's homework. It provides the answers; you just provide the encouragement.

So instead of just shopping for things to nourish growing bodies, come in and pick up a Young Students Encyclopedia. And nourish their minds as well.

White Rock Wants Rail Track Study

WHITE ROCK (CP)—Mayor Don MacDonald has sent a letter to premier Barrett asking him to ask the federal government for assistance in financing a study of the relocation of rail tracks. Four people have been killed this year by trains on the Burlington Northern Railway which runs along White Rock beach.

Anita's Still Hustling at 81!

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Anita Loos, 81 years old and wearing a cloche with the familiar ringlets decorating her forehead, looks as though she dwells under a toadstool in the Black Forest.

Her snapping black eyes further heightens the illusion.

But she lives in Manhattan, arises every morning at 4 o'clock to scribble away in longhand on yellow legal tablets and currently is ricocheting around the country plugging her newest book with the energy of a teenager.

"I'm asked why I wrote this book," she said impishly. "The answer is money. My publisher made an offer I couldn't refuse.

"Usually I spend the summer months at Montecatini, a marvelous Italian resort. I've gone there for the past 43 years. And here I am dashing around the country plugging my book."

Titled Kiss Hollywood Goodbye, the book is a non-fiction collection of Hollywood memories which is more than a nostalgic collection of anecdotes. It is an amusing, fast-paced examination of an era when the lively arts were abrim with intellectuals and men and women of great wit.

Not the least of them was tiny (under five-feet) Anita Loos.

Author of scores of screenplays along with such stage hits as "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes and The Whole Town's Talking, Miss Loos still writes seven days a week.

"There is no group of intellectuals in the arts anymore," she said with a sigh. "Not in Hollywood, New York, Paris or Rome. I guess they just are failing to be born. There's a world-wide shortage.

"There are intellectuals in the scientific community but unfortunately I don't know them. And for some reason scientists have never become popular with the masses."

Her new book bursts with bon mots and brilliant riposte among writers, performers and producers of yesteryear which she dredged up from her memory.

"My only research material was from my date books," Miss Loos said. "I kept them for income tax purposes. By looking through them I was able to recall everything that was important.

"For instance I can remember every single meeting I ever had with D. W. Griffith going back to 1912 because they were important to me."

With few exceptions almost all of the individuals in Kiss Hollywood Goodbye have gone to that big sound stage in the sky.

"They've all passed on except for my three closest friends," she said. "Joan Crawford, Lillian Gish and Helen Hayes. I could add Paulette Goddard to that group but she's younger than the rest of us.

Something to Cuss About As Contest Ended

CENTRAL CITY, Colo. — Chris Gossett has sounded his "wounded whale" belch at the International Spittin', Belchin' and Cussin' competition for the last time. Officials decided to end the contest after this year's activities because participants had to dodge flying beer cans. Earl Wonning took the spittin' and cussin' events. He used natural juices — no seeds or pebbles allowed — for spitting and was allowed 45 seconds to out-cuss all comers. This year's all-around champion, Gossett, took the lead by belchin' louder than the other entrants.

VIENTIANE — The last known American prisoner of war in Indochina will be released Wednesday, one day earlier than scheduled. Emmett Kay, 47, will be released into the custody of U.S. ambassador Charles Whitehouse, ending 496 days of captivity.

SAN FRANCISCO — Senator Edward Kennedy says that if he decides to seek the United States presidency in 1976 he thinks he has "a good chance to win the Democratic party nomination and a reasonable chance to win the election."

The Massachusetts Democrat now says he will announce his decision late this year or early next year — sooner than he said he would.

HONG KONG — Chinese Premier Chou En-lai recently underwent an operation but is now "doing fine," Nigerian head of state Gen. Yakubu Gowan said today. Gowon, who has just ended a state visit to China, declined to disclose what type of operation the 76-year-old premier had or the sources of his information.

RAUNDS, England — Local government authorities have ordered farmer Dick Burton to put farmyard slurry on his new cowshed so it will blend in with adjacent buildings.

WATERBURY, Conn. — John Warren Hull, who played the Green Hornet in the movies and was master of ceremonies for the Strike It Rich television show, died here Saturday night. He was 71. As master of ceremonies of Strike it Rich he was responsible for giving away thousands of dollars to families whose bad luck had earned them places as contestants.

NEW YORK — Happy with his reception in the United States but disconsolate over the loss of a battered but beloved top hat, French aerialist Philippe Petit left for Paris Sunday. The 25-year-old high wire artist left his hat in the taxicab which took him to the airport. Petit plans to return to the U.S. Oct. 10 to join the Ringling Brothers circus. He said he will do a juggling act on the high wire. He still plans to walk a high wire over Niagara Falls. "This will take almost two years of planning," Petit said.

KIEL, Germany (UPI) — A cow gave birth to a calf just when defence minister Georg Leber walked past a farmstead during a recent NATO military exercise. The farmer, recognizing Leber, named the newly-born calf "Schorsch," the Hesse dialect expression for Leber's first name. When Leber heard of the calf's name, he sent the farmer a bottle of liquor and a congratulatory letter.

KENNEDY

Maggy Seen An Easy Winner

SEATTLE (UPI) — Sen. Warren Magnuson, 69, pits his image against token Democratic opposition in Tuesday's Washington state primary.

Magnuson is expected to easily overwhelm perennial challenger John Frye Patric and go on to face one of six Republicans in his campaign for a sixth term.

Probably the best known of the GOP candidates is state Sen. Jack Metcalf, 46, who lost ot Magnuson in 1968. He is a self-styled conservative Republican running against big business, big labor and big government.

A Right-Royal Joke

LONDON (AP) — Fierce rows in restaurants between Princess Margaret and her husband are really just a royal joke, says a new biography.

It says that comedian Peter Sellers sometimes is invited to play a straight-faced role in the loud mock arguments between the princess and Lord Snowdon.

But it all ends in "impish laughter," biographer Helen Cathcart reports.

Miss Cathcart's book, Princess Margaret, was published today.

It admits that the princess has a quick temper inherited from her father, King George VI; says it would be strange if she and her husband did not have tiffs or minor upsets, but pictures their marriage as "workable," happy" and successful.

the worst of the British winter.

The book says that "on the fun side, the couple have been known to stage fearsome outbursts, fists clenched, expletives flying, in a quickening crossfire of improvised Noel Coward wit, until they collapsed in impish laughter."

"Persuasively played out in tense undertones in a restaurant, with a stern glance at neighboring tables, it can pulverize eavesdroppers."

LEGISLATURE TOTS FIND A SITTER

WINNIPEG (CP) — The babysitting problems of Barbara Ness have been solved. Mrs. Ness, who last week left her four children on the steps of the Manitoba legislature to protest babysitting allowances she claimed were too low, said Sunday, "I've found someone to look after my children."

The new sitter, who lives near her, replied to an an advertisement she has been running since June, she said.

Mrs. Ness is enrolled at a medical laboratory course at Red River Community College, but said the $130 a month she received for babysitting was $70 less than what agencies were charging.

"I never wanted publicity for myself or my children," she said last week.

The children were taken to a foster home on each of the two days they were left at the legislature, and Mrs. Ness picked them up on her way home.

Mrs. Ness says she is assured of an $8,000-a-year job after she completes her course.

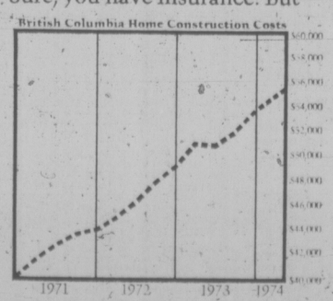
If you're a homeowner, the recent dramatic increases in housing values have probably been one of your few consolations in these times of spiraling inflation.

But this gain could go up in smoke if your home were destroyed by a fire.

Sure, you have insurance. But does your insurance reflect the tremendous rise in home construction cost?

That's what you'd be faced with if you had to rebuild your home. You might be in for a shock. Home construction costs – labour and materials combined – have risen 38.5 per cent in British Columbia since early 1971.



investment your home represents is to get together with your insurance agent or broker and discuss your insurance. You owe it to your peace of mind.

The Insurance Bureau of Canada also has two pamphlets which can help you protect the investment in your home. "Has Your Home Outgrown Your Home Insurance" outlines some of the things you should think about when you are reviewing your home insurance to meet current values.

"Sixty Ways to Prevent Fire in your Home" details some of the common fire hazards around the home. You can use it as a checklist to make sure that your home is as safe as possible from fire.

These pamphlets are available free of charge from The Insurance Bureau of Canada, 580 Granville St., Vancouver, British Columbia V6C 1W8.

We don't want you to have a fire in your home. But if you do have one, we want you to be be fully insured so you are not faced with the prospect of finding thousands of dollars to rebuild your home.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.
Don't allow the reader to speculate.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you information you give are the have to offer; the details and most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386 2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage (deadlines are open 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. for you daily Monday through Saturday, call:

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS OF CANADA

POPE PAUL VI is encouraged to duck before entering helicopter by the outstretched hands of Vatican officials and flight members. The Pope was flying from Fossanova, Italy, Saturday to his summer residence, Castel Gondolfo, at the end of his pilgrimage to three villages prominent in the life of St. Thomas Aquinas.

Overcharging for Gas Blamed on U.S. Agency

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John E. Moss (Dem.—Calif.), has urged Congress and the justice department to fully investigate a report by the general accounting office that concludes the federal power commission failed to protect natural gas users from millions in overcharges.

"The conclusions (of the report) generally point to a failure on the part of the Federal Power Commission to regulate according to the law to insure that the protection of the public be given paramount consideration," Moss said.

He said that the GAO investigation, conducted at his request, "makes a very strong case for concluding that cumulative financial exploitation of consumers by an industry was aided and abetted by the very federal agency charged with protecting the public against monopoly and profiteering."

The GAO gave Moss a 115-page report of its investigation of the FPC Saturday. The FPC is the agency that sets rates for natural gas.

The GAO said the FPC's use of its rate-setting authority was "a sham of the regulatory process" and that the agency improperly enforced and overextended emergency 60-day rate hikes, resulting in higher gas prices.

It also said FPC officials violated conflict of interest standards, did not disclose their financial holdings as required by law, and that the commission did little to enforce its own conduct regulations.

FPC chairman John N. Nassikas denied that FPC actions had allowed gas prices to unnecessarily increase.

The report also said faulty record-keeping and failure to act on producers' rate applications resulted in 40 million customers paying higher prices for natural gas, in one case more than double the normal rate.

INDIAN UPRISING TURNOUT MEARGE

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (AP) — Church ceremonies which were to be a rallying point for a 65-member Indian tribe threatening war on the U.S. were attendeed by 10 members of the tribe and five other people Sunday.

The services were uninterrupted, although there had been rumors a man with a bazooka was going to shell them.

The Kootenay tribal council sent a resolution to President Ford last week saying a declaration of war will be issued unless the government agrees to negotiate a treaty with the tribe.

The Kootenai Indians, who live on 12½ acres at Mission, two miles from here, are seeking land for hunting, fishing and mineral rights and a treaty with the U.S., tribal spokesmen have said.

Boundary county sheriff Chris Ketner said one member of the tribe had said Saturday night he had seen a group of men in a car with a bazooka and shells but a sheriff's department spokesman said the car couldn't be located.

Bus Policing Upped

BOSTON (UPI) — South Boston, where whites have hurled rocks and racial epithets at school buses carrying black pupils, was scheduled for beefed up police protection today as the city began its first full week of court ordered integration.

City officials met during the weekend to map plans to safeguard black children assigned there. Mayor Kevin H. White and Police Commissioner Robert Digrazia announced that large numbers of policemen will be assigned to South Boston for as long as needed to keep order.

Opposition to the busing order, issued June 21 by U.S. district court judge W. Arthur Garrity, has been strongest in South Boston. A boycott of classes by whites in the predominantly blue collar Irish-Catholic neighborhood has been about 95 per cent effective.

Boston NAACP President Thomas I. Atkins reversed his position and urged black parents to send their children to school in the area.

Atkins, at a news conference, said he now is more confident that police are prepared to protect blacks being bused to schools in South Boston than they were last week when groups of whites stoned buses carrying black students.

At least 23 persons were arrested in a series of incidents beginning last Thursday when schools opened, most of them near the South Boston High School.

Permit Renewals Worry Canadians

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadians living in Point Roberts have expressed fears that their short-term residence permits are not being renewed but the U.S. consul-general here said Saturday he is not aware of any changes in the permit system.

He made the statement after Jack Graham, a board member of the Point Roberts community association, said permits are not being renewed and Canadian residents of the U.S. town are worried.

"That's what has been happening since Labor day and we're very concerned about it," Graham said in an interview.

He said the permit situation has been the subject of controversy since July "When we first heard rumors that permits would not be renewed."

Point Roberts, although attached to B.C. mainland south of here, is within the U.S. boundary. It has about 1,400 permanent residents of whom 200 are Americans.

Graham said Canadians wanting to live in Point Roberts must first obtain a temporary residence permit from U.S. immigration authorities.

"This permit is usually issued for six months and can be renewed," he said.

"After a Canadian has had one of these permits for a while, he then goes to the U.S. Consul-General's office in Vancouver and applies for a visa to live in Point Roberts. If he is acceptable, he goes on a waiting list.

"The wait is about two years on the average because only so many Canadians every year are issued visas to live in Point Roberts. In the meantime, while the person is waiting, he renews his permit."

Graham said a meeting of the community association was held Wednesday when he and two American women were delegated to investigate the matter.

He said the committee hopes to set up meetings soon with U.S. consular and immigration authorities at the border and in Vancouver.

Magnavox Videomatic® Color

Consoles are extra tested for extra reliability

The color TV with an "electronic eye" that automatically adjusts the picture to the changing room light . . . must pass 24 straight hours of reliability testing — and, if it doesn't pass, it doesn't leave the Magnavox factory. Only Magnavox, of the five leading makers of solid state color TV does this extra testing for extra reliability. Look for the O.K. seal: It's your guide to the most reliable color TV in the history of Magnavox. Possibly in the entire color TV industry.

Public Disclosure Day: Confusion, No Surprises

Documents made public today of financial holdings of British Columbia elected officials cotained no surprises, but the filing procedure was marked with considerable confusion, particularly at the municipal level.

Deadline for filing under the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act was Sept. 15 at 4:30 p.m. But because the date fell on a Sunday, many officials, although without any apparent authorization, pushed the deadline ahead to today at 4:30 p.m.

Victoria city clerk Morran Waller said he received 8 of the 9 council forms on Friday but would not release the information without approval of the aldermen until 4:30 p.m. today. The Times received direct permission from some aldermen to release the information in line with the deadline set by provincial cabinet.

The provincial government released disclosure documents on Premier Dave Barrett, cabinet and all backbenchers at 8:30 a.m. today, although a couple of MLA forms were not available because of a clerical delay.

In Saanich, municipal clerk Gordon Hayward said he interpreted the deadline as being 4:30 p.m. but released the forms of the six aldermen who had filed prior to that time. Still to come were forms from Ald. Joe Bourque and Ald. John McDonald.

Oak Bay clerk E. H. Hart interpreted the legislation to mean public access would not be granted until Tuesday and held back the forms.

He was not at work today but said he would be at municipal hall on Tuesday to release the disclosure forms.

All Esquimalt forms were released this morning.

In Central Saanich, municipal assessor Gay Wheeler said the disclosure papers would not be available for public viewing until next week.

He said municipal clerk Fred Durrand had gone to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Vernon for the week and he was the only person with the authority to show the files.

Little Wealth In Cabinet

Disclosures by the provincial cabinet proved to be dull reading today as all the ministers, from Premier Barrett down, listed few financial holdings.

The only exception was Resources Minister Bob Williams, who listed no holdings in any corporations or businesses but disclosed eight separate land holdings in Victoria and the Lower Mainland.

Five ministers handed in blank disclosure forms and several others listed onlp one land holding or one creditor or shares in one credit union or bank.

The premier's scanty disclosure listed one land holding — a lot in Haney which he described as a former residence he had sold. Under the agreement for sale, a balance of $6,085 is still owing for the property.

Besides six shares valued at $30 in Metro Co-op Services and a $1,000 debenture in Broadway Commonwealth Society, Barrett's only financial holding has no market value.

He holds 200 shares in Cumberland Mining Company Ltd., a firm struck off the B.C. Companies Register in March, 1971.

Williams' land holdings include three lots in Victoria, one in Langford, two in Vancouver, one in North Vancouver and one in Indian Arm.

The resources minister listed four creditors — Bank of B.C., Royal Bank, Bank of Montreal and Noella Ringuette of Vancouver.

One of the longest disclosures was filed by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who listed share holdings in 13 different ventures — mostly trust funds, debentures and savings plans.

A-G's Holdings Varied

Macdonald's holdings are with: Investors Mutual of Canada, Pacific Mutual Fund, Government of Canada savings bond, Bank of Nova Scotia debenture, Ontario Hydro Debenture, Marlowe-Yeoman Realty Trust, Co-operative Insurance policy, North America Life Insurance policy, Broadway Commonwealth debenture, Vancouver Tennis Club debenture, United Accumulative Investments retirement plan, Canada Trusteed Income Fund and Ventures Ltd.

The attorney-general listed his only creditor as the federal department of national revenue and disclosed two land holdings: half interest in a building site and cottage at Buccaneer Bay and a lot in Burnaby.

Speaker Gordon Dowding listed holdings in three companies: Universal Park-O-Matic Inc., Highland Lode Silver Mines and Great Central Mines.

His only other disclosure was a guarantee for assurity with Toronto Dominion Bank.

Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich listed four land holdings including a lot on Olebar Point on Gabriola Island and three parcels in South Wellington.

Stupich disclosed holdings in the Bank of B.C., Vancouver Island Golf Club, Mid-Island Co-operative Services, Nanaimo and District Credit Union and Magroup Holdings Ltd.

He listed Nanaimo Commonwealth Holding Society as his one creditor and revealed he has received remuneration from Church, Pickard and Company, the chartered accountant firm which he formerly worked for.

Paid by Credit Unions

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley revealed a long list of co-operatives and credit unions which have paid him for services, including: Surrey Co-op Association, North Fraser Petroleum Co-op, Mission City Credit Union, Nicola Valley Credit Union, Vancouver City Savings Credit Union, Gulf and Fraser Fisherman's Credit Union and B.C. Government Employees Credit Union.

Hartley holds shares in Reichhold Chemical (Canada), owns one lot in Merritt and lists as his only creditor, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke listed a quarter interest in two lots in Okanagan Falls and share holdings in E.B.P. Consultants, a company he said is no longer operating.

Toronto Dominion Bank is a creditor and Cocke disclosed remuneration from Dominion Life Asurance Co., the firm with which he previously worked.

The way coach Eagle Keyes sees it, B.C. Lions didn't lose a football game Sunday, Montreal Alouettes won one. Regardless, the result was the same, a 31-12 victory for the Als thanks to a late-game blitz that wiped out a lead the Lions were nursing in the third quarter. Page 8.

Team Russia arrived in Quebec City on the weekend for the first of its eight-game hockey series against Team Canada, which can be seen Tuesday on Channel 8 at 5 p.m. A list of the Soviet players reveals that most of them were in the 1972 series against the National Hockey League all-stars. This time they're playing the Selects from the World Hockey Association and at least one WHA rookie has butterflies. Page 9.

Vancouver Canuck holdovers reported to training camp this morning at Memorial Arena but Orland Kurtenbach, the team captain since Canucks entered the National Hockey League, is on his way to Seattle as coach of the Totems, Vancouver's affiliate in the Central League. Page 9.

Despite that prolonged pre-season player strike, the National Football League opened its regular schedule and the big stars were all there. But the day belonged to the defensive squads. Page 8.

The soccer farce continued on the weekend when two Victoria clubs, Gorge and London Boxing Club, knuckled under to threats by provincial officials and dropped out of the B.C. League. They have been ordered to play in the Vancouver Island League but local officials are being churlish about letting them back in. Page 10.

Ford Grants Conditional Amnesty

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Describing it as an act of "reconciliation," President Ford today offered conditional amnesty to approximately 15,500 draft dodgers and many more deserters in exchange for up to 24 months of public service and a re-affirmation of allegiance to the United States.

The offer requires draft evaders and deserters to surrender to a U.S. attorney or military officials before Jan. 31, 1975, and applies only to violations between Aug. 4, 1964, and March 28, 1973.

The proposal fell short of the demands of war resisters and a spokesman for one group describing it as "a cover-up and not amnesty" predicted very few people would accept Ford's offer.

Those who shun the program or do not satisfactorily complete their part of the clemency offer would be subject to prosecution if they return to the country of their birth.

Of the 15,500 potentially eligible for clemency, about 8,700 already have been convicted, an additional 4,350 are under indictment and 2,250 are under investigation.

Of those under indictment, 4,060 are listed as fugitives and an estimated 3,000 of them are in Canada.

Officials said 130 persons are serving prison sentences for draft evasion and presumably are eligible for release pending reviews of their cases by the clemency board.

The officials said some 500,000 incidents of desertion falling within the scope of the clemency program were recorded during the Vietnam war.

They said approximately 12,500 deserters are still at large, with about 1,500 of them in Canada.

About 660 deserters are serving sentences or are awaiting trial.

The offer will be ignored by the majority of U.S. draft dodgers and deserters living in the Vancouver-Victoria area, a spokesman for the Committee to Aid American War Resistors predicted today.

Mike Carley, who worked for the Vancouver committee for two years and is now working for the B.C. Civil Liberties Association, said today the clemency conditions were stiffer than he expected.

"After the pardon of Richard Nixon, I thought the alternate service requirements would be about six months instead of the 24 they're talking about now.

"I really don't think that many people will take advantage of it."

Carley said he was surprised at the clemency condition which "in effect, offers guaranteed jobs. There is really serious unemployment

JOURNEY'S END for the 120-foot Nova Scotian schooner Robertson II came Sunday when she sailed into the Inner Harbor after an 8,000-mile trip from Lunenburg, N.S. Her owner, Dr. Philip Ney (wearing cap) is seen shaking hands with Robert Herschfield of Victoria. Also seen aboard the 34-year-old fishing schooner, which will be used as a floating children's camp as part of the West-Trek Program, are, left to right, Donald Enmark of Vancouver, Garnet Riviere of Victoria and Kevin Akins of Victoria. The Robertson II left Lunenburg on July 5, sailing via the Panama Canal to the Pacific Ocean and up the coast to Victoria. (John Murphy Photo).

Turkish Premier Resigns

ANKARA (UPI) — Premier Bulent Ecevit, hailed as a hero over his handling of the Cyprus crisis, resigned today, plunging Turkey into its second government crisis in seven months.

Ecevit handed his resignation to President Fahri Koruturk during a one-hour meeting at the presidential palace, a spokesman said.

Ecevit refused to answer newsmen's questions when he left the presidential palace.

"The premier will hold a news conference later today," a party official said.

Ecevit, a former labor minister who first gave Turkish workers the right to strike, rose to the peak of popularity when he landed troops on Cyprus July 20 to protect the island's Turkish minority.

Angry Hijacker Blows Up Plane

Times News Services

SAIGON — Authorities blamed a disgruntled playboy officer in the government's crack Ranger force today for blowing up an Air Vietnam jet during an abortive attempt to hijack the plane to Hanoi.

Police said the officer, recently-demoted for car theft, led a three-man band that blew up the Boeing 727 Sunday over the Phan Rang air base, killing all 70 persons aboard.

The hijacker, Le Duc Tan, was "well known as a heavy drinker, womanizer and gambler," according to police.

The pilot's radio transmissions to ground controllers indicated Tan, disguised in the uniform of a paratroop major, had two accomplices in the hijack attempt.

It was the first hijacking to result in a large number of deaths, and the first time a hijacked plane was blown up in the air.

Officials said Tan bypassed security checks Sunday when he boarded the Air Vietnam Boeing 727 at Da Nang for a flight to Saigon.

Officials said when the airliner was about halfway from Da Nang to Saigon, Tan, dressed as a paratroop officer burst into the cockpit of the plane, waved two hand grenades and demanded to be flown to North Vietnam.

The air pirate became angry when the crew tried to talk him out of the hijacking

Breakthrough Seen In Embassy Siege

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Dutch and French officials claimed fresh progress today in negotiations with three Japanese Red Army guerrillas holding nine hostages in the besieged French embassy.

A few hours after the gunmen freed two women hostages and threatened to kill the nine remaining male captives, French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues said negotiations had taken "a very positive turn."

He did not elaborate.

Dutch Interior Minister Degaay Fortman inspected 200 policemen, including sharpshooters, surrounding the modern concrete and glass embassy.

"Negotiations are developing," he said.

2 JUDGES SLAIN BY BELFAST IRA

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorists killed two of Northern Ireland's most prominent judges at their homes in Belfast early today, police said.

The two were Roger Rory Conaghan, a Roman Catholic, and Martin McBirney, a Protestant, both accused by the Irish Republican Army of collaborating with the British. (The Provisional Wing of the IRA) claimed it ordered the killings.

Police say the pair may have been killed as a warning because they sent IRA men to prison.

Conaghan was shot by a lone gunman when he answered a knock at his front door at breakfast time.

"He was shot through the heart and died almost instantly," one source said.

McBirney was shot at his home in a nearby street at about the same time.

McBirney, a leading prosecutor before he was appointed to the bench in 1969, was a former chairman of Northern Ireland's Labor party and made an unsuccessful race for the British Parliament 10 years ago.

The deaths raised the official death toll in the last five years of Protestant-Catholic fighting in Northern Ireland to 1,062.

Art Bulldozed Underground

MOSCOW (UPI) — "It's just like Czechoslovakia," one man shouted as a handful of russians pelted the advancing Soviet bulldozers with balls of mud.

The mud failed to stop the bulldozers from smashing up an abstract art show, however, just as rocks couldn't keep Soviet tanks from overrunning Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Bulldozers, water trucks and burly police barreled in Sunday to disperse about 200 men, women and children gathered in a Moscow suburb for an unsanctioned exhibit of abstract art.

The Soviet Union, which only sanctions art depicting "socialist realism," arrested five artists, manhandled some foreign diplomats and assaulted five western newsmen.

Veteran diplomats, journalists and Soviet onlookers agreed that it was the nastiest scene of its kind in Moscow in years.

Political demonstrations of any kind in the Soviet capital are always broken up in minutes and the participants, who usually number only a handful, are taken away.

A group of 13 underground artists picked a patch of wasteland in suburban Semenovskoye for the exhibition, hoping the out-of-the-way location would head off troubles with Soviet officials.

Authorities used an iron fist to break up the show, however, claiming the rain-swept muddy tract southwest of Moscow was needed for building a "park of rest and culture."

During the confrontation, some Russians tossed clods of dirt and mud at advancing bulldozers. The bulldozers large sewage pipes toward the crowd, missing several persons by inches.

Plainclothes police, backed by burly young men claiming to be young Communist League members, ripped the canvasses out of the hands of artists. One man trampled a painting under his boots, screaming curses.

Artist Nadezhda Elskaya, one of five artists arrested was sentenced today to 15 days in prison for petty hooliganism, her friends reported.

Another arrested artist, who was later released, said all confiscated paintings were burned on the spot.

Women Break Tradition

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

One of the last vestiges of the male chauvinist's world crumbled this morning with the cross-Canada induction of 32 women into the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Two of the three B.C. inductees are Victoria women, Barbara Woods, 235 Michigan, and Constance Jane Smith, 2805 Queenston.

In a simple ceremony at the RCMP "E" Division headquarters, 1061 Fort St., the two took the oath that only men have uttered in the 101-year history of the national police force.

Commanding officer, Assistant Commissioner E. W. Willes, congratulated the distaff constables as their families looked on.

He called them "pioneers in the sense of the original members of the force who first marched west in 1873."

"Our tradition has been founded on the deeds and devotion to duty of the men who have gone before. I know you will carry on that tradition," he said.

"How do I feel? Unbelievably proud," Woods, 20, said in a recent interview after being told she was accepted into the force. A tall (5'11"), comely brunette, she had worked almost two years as a clerk-typist in the traffic division of the Victoria police department.

"I feel honored," echoed Smith, 21, a pert, effervescent, 5'7" hazel-eyed blonde.

"Never before have women been able to join the RCMP and now we are the first. It's a thrill to be part of history," Woods said.

RCMP recruiters have taken great pains to make sure no one girl will lay claim to being the first female mountie. All the inductees are being sworn in at the same time today across Canada, and when they begin their 3½-month training, Wednesday at Regina, they'll receive their police badge numbers pulled at random out of a hat.

Woods and Smith share a fascination and interest in police work based on a desire "to help people."

Both were born and raised in B.C.

Smith is the daughter of a fisherman and can trace her family back to the original Mormons who trekked across the U.S. with Brigham Young more than 100 years ago.

She was raised in Kyukuot, a tiny village on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

"There were no cars, no roads, no TV — and I rowed a boat to school," she said.

Her family bought a home in Victoria about 10 years ago.

After graduating from Victoria High School in 1971, she tried unsuccessfully to join the Victoria police department, and then enrolled in a fashion course at LDS (Latter Day Saints) College in Salt Lake City.

She received her diploma two years later, then went for a three-month tour of Europe. On her return to Canada last January she found a job as a salesclerk at a women's apparel store in Hillside Mall.

It was a temporary placement.

"I was thinking of moving to Calgary for my own professional development but then I heard there were openings for truck drivers and welders in Fort McMurray and thought it might be fun to live up there for a while."

In May a neighbor, RCMP Sgt. Ralph Brown, told her the mounties were offering women positions on the force.

She applied and began a summer-long round of tests and interviews.

Const. Woods, the oldest girl in a family of six children, spent the first 15 years of her life in Ft. St. John.

She finished her high school in Kelowna, then, interested in studying foreign languages, went to Notre Dame University in Nelson.

She'd completed one year and was due to return when she got a summer job as a telex operator for the RCMP in Nelson.

She enjoyed the work and decided to try to become a police officer, but upon mvoeing to Victoria, discovered she could not apply to any of the local forces until she was 21.

She enrolled in a course in criminology at Camosun College last spring and was the only girl in the class to complete the program.

"I was intending to go back to university this fall and take criminology, but police work was always the long-range goal.

"No one in our family has ever been a police officer before," she said. "When I told them I was going to be one of the first women mounties they were really excited that I had got what I wanted.

She felt the acceptance of women into the RCMP was "timely."

"It has opened up all sorts of fields of investigation and activity.

"I don't want to be better than the men on the force," she said. "I only want to be as good."

Master of a Specialty: One Man's Road to Fame

A young friend of this department who enrolled last week at the University of Victoria tells me that her counsellor went on at some length to advise her of the need to specialize, to set her sights on some specific goal, and asks me now if this would also be MY advice. Gosh, she's nice.

I replied that it most certainly would, that we are in the age of the specialist in almost any endeavor you care to name, and to illustrate my point I went on, at some lengths, myself, to tell her of my experience as an authority on toilets.

This seemed to go over so well that I am tempted to break a life-long rule against giving advice to anyone a day younger than I am. My aim simply is to show that almost anyone who becomes an authority on almost anything will be richly rewarded. So shut up and pay attention.

My own case is a spectacular demonstration of this fact of life since I am, as everyone knows, a total disaster as a handyman. If it can't be fixed with Scotch Tape or Dentyne Chewing Gum I whine for professional help. There are men in my neck of the woods with swimming pools and two cars in their garages simply because of my ineptness and distrust when confronted with anything that has voltage or moving parts. I would as soon enter a tiger's den as monkey around with any appliance attached to a fuse.

This, as you can see, makes it all the more amazing that I am known far and wide as a wizard with toilets. Why, only last week I heard myself described as "The Genius of the Powder Rooms" and I simply could not deny it, though I'd the good grace to crimson slightly. The fact is that I need but a wrench, a screwdriver and an ailing toilet to guarantee you a royal flush. If they asked me I could write a book on what to do until the plumber comes, namely to take two aspirins and holler for old Jack.

The point I want to make to the young reader is that this simple gift — or, I should say, this acquired gift — has earned me an esteem in the social world that could never have been achieved by my talent for charades or even my prowess with the banjo-uke. Faces light up when I arrive at any gathering. People turn to their neighbors whispering the glad tidings, their faces acetylene-bright with pleasure. Jack, the Toilet Man, has arrived. All's right with the world.

How well I recall the day that changed my life. The plumber I regularly employ was off on his 90-foot yacht, cruising the South Seas, when our own toilet sighed and died.

"I am going to take this thing all apart and put it together again," I told my wife. "And I," said my wife, "am Cleopatra, Queen of the Nile."

You can imagine my triumph when I emerged from the porcelain box some two hours later, flicked the handle and was rewarded by an obedient roar. I had not only fixed the thing, I had learned everything there is to know about the mysterious mechanism that, for 30-odd years, I'd taken for granted. A whole new world had opened up for me.

This was, of course, a very old toilet and so were the others on which I practiced since we have always managed to live in very old houses, but I was soon to make the giddy discovery that the innards of toilets, like the wheel, have changed very little over the years. Once you have mastered The Toilet, per se, you have mastered any toilet.

I discovered this very soon after my first triumph when, visiting the Walshes, I was delighted to find that they had a Growler. The Growler is a mean, cantankerous old toilet that goes through life grumbling over its work and very often succumbs with a death rattle.

"You ought to have that beast fixed," I told my neighbor's wife. "If I had a wrench and screwdriver . . ."

An hour later I rejoined them in the living room, shrugging with unbearable modesty. The growl had become a submissive sigh. I was on my way to fame and glory.

A week later I had taken the asthma from a Wheezer, a very common type of toilet which never performs its function without sounding as if it had galloping bronchitis. A twist there, a tap of the wrench here, and once more I was destiny's tot.

Had I deliberately chosen the field I could have found nothing more rewarding. While every toilet, as I have said, works on the same principle, it is also true to say that each has its own neurotic personality. Besides the Growlers and the Wheezers, there are the Gurglers, the Hissers, the Gaspers and the kind I refer to simply as the Shh-booom Type which is, I may say, the greatest challenge I have faced.

If nothing else, it has taught me that there's just nothing so successful as the specialist, the man who can do one thing, however trivial, better than the next. Keep that in mind, my children, as you face the highway of life and don't forget: Jack, The Toilet Man, told you first.

Contract Imposed At Mediæval Inn

The employees of the Mediaeval Inn, 1005 Broad, found out today they are going to work under a union contract, even though they have petitioned the Labor Relations Baord to go non-union.

The board, which held a hearing here last month on a decertification application by the employees, has agreed to impose a first contract, using a section of the Labor Code which permits this when the two sides have been unable to come to an agreement.

But the board declined to dictate the terms of the agreement, giving the restaurant, the union and the employees six weeks to reach a contract on their own.

"If, at the end of those six weeks, the parties disagree on the terms and conditions, the board will settle (them) for the first collective agreement," the LRB stated in a written decision.

The Beverage Dispensers and Culinary Workers Union, Local 835, was certified as bargaining agent for the employees April 25, 1973. But employees claimed in their decertification application that staff has changed since then and the new employees don't want the union.

In the written decision, LRB vice-chairman Nancy Morrison said "while the misunderstandings which have arisen over the past year have been unfortunate and divisive, it is hoped that the entire process has been an educational one.

"If the employees choose to use the vehicle of the union to their advantage, and participate fully in the affairs of the union, they can only benefit. At the same time, the employer has nothing to fear from a union that is committed to fairly representing the employees — employees about whom the employer has expressed such concern."

The LRB decided to withold a ruling on the decertification application.

Area Holdings Listed Under Disclosure Act

Victoria Ald. Tom Christie said today he hasn't filed a statement of his financial holdings because he doesn't intend to seek re-election this November.

Asked by a reporter if his reasons for resignation include his objection to the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act, Christie replied: "Well, partly."

Christie said the act's requirements for disclosure were an "annoying feature" to him, but there were other reasons for his decision.

"I have been here six years and enough is enough," he said. "Perhaps it's time some younger person stepped in and took my place."

He said he was supposed to be retired, adding: "You don't get much peace and quiet in this job." He had been thinking about stepping down from council "A long time."

Details of the financial holdings of only four other members of council were available to the Times today, under a ruling by city clerk Morran Waller. The filed statements show, as expected, that Mayor Peter Pollen with his automobile dealership and Ald. Sam Bawlf with his development interests have the biggest holdings among Victoria's elected representatives.

Concerning his own business interests from which he receives remuneration, Pollen's statement lists three companies: Peter Pollen Ford Sales Ltd., conducting automobile and truck sales and service; Executive Car Lease Ltd., vehicle leasing; and Nadar Holdings Ltd., a land holding company.

Nadar is shown as holding 11 parcels of land in the city, all connected in some way with the dealership, and a further eight parcels in Saanich, which the statement explains is to be the site of the proposed Peter Pollen Ford body and paint shop.

Only property under Pollen's own name is a parcel at 1039 Johnson, adjacent to his firm's used car lot.

Creditors of Peter Pollen Ford Sales are the Bank of Montreal, Pollen himself and six other employees. Creditors of Executive Car Lease Ltd. are shown as the Bank of Montreal and Ford Motor Credit Company of Canada Ltd.

Pollen lists his own creditors as Great West Life Assurance (guarantee on behalf of the Capital District Environmental Enhancement Foundation), Bank of Montreal and Joneade Estates, vendor under agreement for sale on the property at 1039 Johnson.

The mayor's share holdings statement includes, in addition to his three companies and Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd.: Canadian Pacific Investment Ltd. (100 shares), Canadian Cablesystems (10), Ford Motor Company U.S. (20), General Motors Corporation (20), Goodyear Tire (20), Getty Oil Co. (10), International Telephone and Telegraph (10), Mackan-Hunter Cable TV (10), Premier Cablevision (10), Q.C. Cable TV (10), B.C. Telephone (10), Westburne International (10), Great West Life (10), Neonex (10), Humana Inc. (10), Coronat Industries (10), Great Pacific Industries (10), B.M.-R.T. Realty Warrants (700), Phillip, Hager and North RRSP and Amfac Inc. (20).

Bawlf's statement names two companies in which he holds shares, Fort Victoria Properties Ltd. and Old Town Restaurants Ltd. In both cases, he says, he holds less than 30 per cent of the voting shares.

He receives remuneration as president and general manager of Fort Victoria Properties, and as president of Old Town Restaurants. Under land holdings, Bawlf enters a "nil" report, and likewise he shows no creditors.

The three other city aldermen whose statements were available today — Clyde Savage, Percy Frampton and Bill Tindall — have comparatively modest interests and holdings.

Savage discloses 1,000 shares in North West Finance Corporation; Frampton shares in his own accountancy business, in Thunderbird Finance Corporation and Natural Resources Fund; and Tindall a "less than 30 per cent" holding in Caroline Mines Ltd.

Neither Frampton nor Tindall reports any land holdings within the regional district, but Savage discloses property ownership interests at 2517 Fernwood, 1902 Chambers, 841 View and also in the Malahat district.

Not available this morning were statements filed by Ald. Alf Hood, Ald. Malcolm Anderson and Ald. Mike Young.

City clerk Morran Waller insisted that because Sept. 15, the final day for submission, was a Sunday, the information could not be released before 4:30 p.m. today without direct authorization from individual council members.

City School Board

Two stock portfolios and several small companies were the chief content of financial disclosures made by Greater Victoria school board trustees.

Trustee Dr. Hal Knight listed 18 companies in which he held shares, Trustee Lavinia Greenwood 11 companies in which she had shares.

Board chairman Peter Bunn listed no shares, no creditor and no land holdings. Only business interest listed is Peter G. Bunn General Contractor, which he owns.

Vice-chairman Walter Donald owns Walter J. Donald Advertising and is information officer and priest-in-charge for the Anglican Church, Diocese of B.C.

He owns five shares of Pioneer Publishing, a company in which trustee Dr. Philip Ney holds a large interest.

Donald lists Toronto-Dominion Bank as a creditor and no land holdings.

Ney has more than 30 per cent of the shares of Pioneer Publishing of 1900 Richmond Ave., which he states owns no land and has no debts larger than $5,000.

He also owns more than 30 per cent interest in Pilot Programs, of 1900 Richmond, a company which organizes and administers challenge camping programs for teens and adults. The company owns no land and owes more than $5,000 to the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Ney also has shares in Victoria Developments of 162 Pacific Terrace, Nanaimo.

He works as a child psychiatrist for the Medical Services Association and the B.C. Medical Plan and as director of in-patient child psychiatric services for the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Greenwood lists shares in Atlantic Richfield Co., Grand Metropolitan Ltd,, Alcan Aluminum Ltd., Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., Charter Consolidated Ltd., Shell Transport and Trading Co. Ltd., Rio Tinto Zinc Corporation, Natrusco Ltd., Coast Patrons Ltd., New Wellington Mines, and the Racquet Club of Victoria.

She owns property at 3390 Veteran and lists her creditors as Edwin Charles Winterburn and Cecil Walter Case.

Knight owns Free-lance Management Consultant, and lists no land holdings or creditors.

He owns shares in Bank of B.C. Trust Units, Canpean Corporation, Carling O'Keefe Ltd., Canadian Cellulose Ltd., Canadian Hydrocarbons Ltd., Caravan Trailer Lodges of B.C., Cornat Industries Ltd., Hy's of Canada Ltd., Kaps Transport Ltd., Northern and Central Gas Ltd., Pace Industries., Pizza Patio Management Ltd., Roman Corporation Ltd., Siebens Oil and Gas Ltd., Silver Standard Mines Ltd., Slegg Brothers Lumber Ltd., Universal Sections Ltd., and Versatile Manufacturing Ltd.

Daphne Temple holds shares in Ryanor Mining Company Ltd. and Texmont Mines Ltd. She has no creditors or land holdings.

Duffus teaches physics at Royal Roads; Ross teaches at Brentwood College School in Mill Bay.

He owns no land, and lists as creditors Nanaimo Realty (Ruxton Island Resorts) of Nanaimo, Butler Brothers of Saanichton and the federal income tax department.

Saanich

A vacant lot on Mayfair and 720 McKenzie, site of his business, is listed as Saanich Mayor Ed Lum's total land holdings in the capital regional district.

Lum is among six of Saanich's council members to file papers under the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act by press time today.

Ald. Joe Bourque and John McDonald were expected to file their papers by 4:30 today.

Lum lists himself as owner of Ed Lum Greenhouses, with shares in Surrey Building Co. Ltd. and Riviera Industries Ltd.

He lists his creditors as MacKenzie Greenhouses Ltd., Toronto-Dominion Bank and the corporation of the district of Saanich.

Ald. Les Passmore and Fred Severson list no land or financial holdings or creditors.

It is the same for Ald. Sandy Noel, with the exception of a mortgage against 3974 Douglas.

Ald. Mel Couvelier lists himself as president of Island Fashions Ltd. (operating as Couvelier Fine Apparel) and M and F Holding Co. Ltd., holding mortgages on three Metchosin lots in the name of the latter company.

His sole creditor is the Government Street branch of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Ald. Bill Campbell lists land holdings as 4091 Glanford, 559 and 569 Kelvin, 580 and 540 Ardersier.

His financial holdings are the general contracting company, W. Campbell Ltd.

Sidney, N. Saanich

With the exception of North Saanich Mayor Paul Grieve and Sidney Ald. William Gardner, there is little to disclose by elected officials in these two areas of the Saanich Peninsula.

And the only reaction was a "if I wasn't forced to do it, I wouldn't" attitude by one municipal clerk and a reference to "press vultures" by an alderman.

In North Saanich, Alderman Herta Hartmanshenn resigned in protest rather than disclose her holdings. This step was taken Sept. 9. Another alderman not filing papers was George Aylard, who is resigning due to pressure of business.

Alderman Wilfred Price sent his papers to the attorney-general's office and they have not as yet been returned to the municipal office.

Alderman George Cumpton lists shares in several companies but nothing of a major character. He has no creditors and no land.

John Lapham, a partner in an electrical contracting firm, lists as creditors the Industrial Development Bank and Toronto Dominion Bank and lists as land holdings a block on Cromer Road and a lot on Beacon Avenue in Sidney.

For TV-radio repairman Alderman Eric Sherwood, it was no creditors, no land, no shares.

But it is Grieve with the major holdings, due to his businesses. ... Aske Construction Ltd. Aske Holdings, both of which he is president, and Point Roberts Ltd. of which he is a director. Land involved is scattered throughout Greater Victoria.

Aske Construction owns and is in the process of construction of homes on 61 lots and is negotiating for the purchase of 45 others.

Aske Holdings owns 6 lots and two commercial properties, Point Roberts owns 14 lots and Grieve himself is listed as the owner of four properties.

Creditors, as listed for either one of the three firms are Roberts Investment and Mortgage Ltd., E. A. Grieve, Heller-Natofin (Western) Ltd., Bank of British Columbia, Toronto Dominion Bank, Dr. J. T. Cruise, E. H. Cabeldu, W. G. Roberts, Dr. Sutherland, Investors Syndicate Realty Ltd., Canada Permanent Trust, Hulian Dilba, Marie Swanton and Mrs. Vance.

He holds 30 per cent or more interest in Point Roberts Ltd. and Aske Construction.

In Sidney it it was Gardener who had the most to disclose, two lots in Sidney on which his store and parking lot sits, and 6 lots in North Saanich.

Mayor Stan Dear lists shares in the Teachers' Investment and Housing Co-Operative, and a lot in North Saanich.

Aldermen Peter Malcolm, Carl Andersen list minor creditors while Ross Martin and Arnold Uren had nothing to declare.

Alderman Pat Merrett did not file as she is retiring from politics at the end of this term.

Esquimalt

Esquimalt council holdings make scant reading, with two aldermen exempted from disclosing financial interests and the remaining five members listing little but expected business interests.

Ald. Ed DeCosta's announcement earlier this year of his intention to retire from office in December exempts him from the mandatory disclosure and Ald. George McCreadie recently moved his business and residence to Campbell River taking his mandatory disclosures outside municipal bounds.

Mayor Art Young, 868 Admirals, lists his part-ownership of the Esquimalt Meat Market business and the two-lot parcel of land on which it is located at 1246—1248 Esquimalt Road.

His only creditor listed is the Industrial Development Bank.

Ald. Conrad Lundgren, a machinist fitter at HMC Dockyard, lists three corporate share holdings in West Coast Savings Credit Union, Newvan Resources Ltd., and Vespar Mines Ltd.

Ald. Terry Prentice, a professional engineer with the provincial department of transportation and communication, reports no land holdings, corporate shares or financial interests. The same holds for Ald. Ken Hill, also an employee of HMC Dockyard.

Ald. James W. McEvay, lists corporate holding of Nu-Way Cleaners Ltd., and corresponding land holdings at the business sites at 424, 416, 420 William St., as well as an adjacent piece of laneway there.

Creditors listed by McEvay are the Toronto Dominion Bank and the Industrial Acceptance Corporation.

Public Disclosure Day: Confusion, No Surprises

Documents made public today of financial holdings of British Columbia elected officials cotained no surprises, but the filing procedure was marked with considerable confusion, particularly at the municipal level.

Deadline for filing under the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act was Sept. 15 at 4:30 p.m. But because the date fell on a Sunday, many officials pushed the deadline ahead to today at 4:30 p.m.

The provincial government released disclosure documents on Premier Dave Barrett, cabinet and all backbenchers at 8:30 a.m. today, although a couple of MLA forms were not available because of a clerical delay.

In Saanich, municipal clerk Gordon Hayward said he interpreted the deadline as being 4:30 p.m. but released the forms of the six aldermen who had filed prior to that time.

Oak Bay clerk E. H. Hart interpreted the legislation to mean public access would not be granted until Tuesday and held back the forms.

In Central Saanich, municipal assessor Gay Wheeler said the disclosure papers would not be available for public viewing until next week.

He said municipal clerk Fred Durrand had gone to the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention in Vernon for the week and he was the only person with the authority to show the files.

An official of the attorney-general's office said it was customary for deadlines to be extended when the date on the legislation is a holiday. He said this would make the deadline the close of business today.

Oak Bay's failure to disclose information until Tuesday is a technical non-compliance as is the non-disclosure of Central Saanich.

A clerk failing to disclose information could be fined up to $500 and a civic official who fails to disclose his holdings could be fined up to $10,000.

The way coach Eagle Keyes sees it, B.C. Lions didn't lose a football game Sunday, Montreal Alouettes won one. Regardless, the result was the same, a 31-12 victory for the Als thanks to a late-game blitz that wiped out a lead the Lions were nursing in the third quarter. Page 8.

Ford Grants Conditional Amnesty

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Describing it as an act of "reconciliation," President Ford today offered conditional amnesty to approximately 15,500 draft dodgers and many more deserters in exchange for up to 24 months of public service and a re-affirmation of allegiance to the United States.

The offer requires draft evaders and deserters to surrender to a U.S. attorney or military officials before Jan. 31, 1975, and applies only to violations between Aug. 4, 1964, and March 28, 1973.

The proposal fell short of the demands of war resisters and a spokesman for one group describing it as "a cover-up and not amnesty" predicted very few people would accept Ford's offer.

Those who shun the program or do not satisfactorily complete their part of the clemency offer would be subject to prosecution if they return to the country of their birth.

Of the 15,500 potentially eligible for clemency, about 8,700 already have been convicted, an additional 4,350 are under indictment and 2,250 are under investigation.

Of those under indictment, 4,060 are listed as fugitives and an estimated 3,000 of them are in Canada.

Officials said 130 persons are serving prison sentences for draft evasion and presumably are eligible for release pending reviews of their cases by the clemency board.

The officials said some 500,000 incidents of desertion falling within the scope of the clemency program were recorded during the Vietnam war.

They said approximately 12,500 deserters are still at large, with about 1,500 of them in Canada.

About 660 deserters are serving sentences or are awaiting trial.

The offer will be ignored by the majority of U.S. draft dodgers and deserters living in the Vancouver-Victoria area, a spokesman for the Committee to Aid American War Resistors predicted today.

Mike Carley, who worked for the Vancouver committee for two years and is now working for the B.C. Civil Liberties Association, said today the clemency conditions were stiffer than he expected.

"After the pardon of Richard Nixon, I thought the alternate service requirements would be about six months instead of the 24 they're talking about now.

"I really don't think that many people will take advantage of it."

Carley said he was surprised at the clemency condition which "in effect, offers guaranteed jobs. There is really serious unemployment

Turkish Premier Resigns

ANKARA (UPI) — Premier Bulent Ecevit, hailed as a hero over his handling of the Cyprus crisis, resigned today, plunging Turkey into its second government crisis in seven months.

Ecevit handed his resignation to President Fahri Koruturk during a one-hour meeting at the presidential palace, a spokesman said.

Ecevit refused to answer newsmen's questions when he left the presidential palace.

"The premier will hold a news conference later today," a party official said.

Ecevit, a former labor minister who first gave Turkish workers the right to strike, rose to the peak of popularity when he landed troops on Cyprus July 20 to protect the island's Turkish minority.

★ Little Wealth In Cabinet

Disclosures by the provincial cabinet proved to be dull reading today as all the ministers, from Premier Barrett down, listed few financial holdings.

The only exception was Resources Minister Bob Williams, who listed no holdings in any corporations nor businesses but disclosed eight separate land holdings in Victoria and the Lower Mainland.

Five ministers handed in blank disclosure forms and several others listed only one land holding or one creditor or shares in one credit union or bank.

The premier's scanty disclosure listed one land holding — a lot in Haney which he described as a former residence he had sold. Under the agreement for sale, a balance of $6,085 is still owing for the property.

Besides six shares valued at $30 in Metro Co-op Services and a $1,000 debenture in Broadway Commonwealth Society, Barrett's only financial holding has no market value.

He holds 200 shares in Cumberland Mining Company Ltd., a firm struck off the B.C. Companies Register in March, 1971.

Williams' land holdings include three lots in Victoria, one in Langford, two in Vancouver, one in North Vancouver and one in Indian Arm.

The resources minister listed four creditors — Bank of B.C., Royal Bank, Bank of Montreal and Noella Ringuette of Vancouver.

One of the longest disclosures was filed by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald, who listed share holdings in 13 different ventures — mostly trust funds, debentures and savings plans.

A-G's Holdings Varied

Macdonald's holdings are with: Investors Mutual of Canada, Pacific Mutual Fund, Government of Canada savings bond, Bank of Nova Scotia debenture, Ontario Hydro Debenture, Marlowe-Yeoman Realty Trust, Co-operative Insurance policy, North America Life Insurance policy, Broadway Commonwealth debenture, Vancouver Tennis Club debenture, United Accumulative Investments retirement plan, Canada Trusteed Income Fund and Ventures Ltd.

The attorney-general listed his only creditor as the federal department of national revenue and disclosed two land holdings: half interest in a building site and cottage at Buccaneer Bay and a lot in Burnaby.

Speaker Gordon Dowding listed holdings in three companies: Universal Park-O-Matic Inc., Highland Lode Silver Mines and Great Central Mines.

His only other disclosure was a guarantee for assurity with Toronto Dominion Bank.

Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich listed four land holdings including a lot on Olebar Point on Gabriola Island and three parcels in South Wellington.

Stupich disclosed holdings in the Bank of B.C., Vancouver Island Golf Club, Mid-Island Co-operative Services, Nanaimo and District Credit Union and Magroup Holdings Ltd.

He listed Nanaimo Commonwealth Holding Society as his one creditor and revealed he has received remuneration from Church, Pickard and Company, the chartered accountant firm for which he formerly worked.

Paid by Credit Unions

Public Works Minister Bill Hartley revealed a long list of co-operatives and credit unions which have paid him for services, including: Surrey Co-op Association, North Fraser Petroleum Co-op, Mission City Credit Union, Nicola Valley Credit Union, Vancouver City Savings Credit Union, Gulf and Fraser Fisherman's Credit Union and B.C. Government Employees Credit Union.

Hartley holds shares in Reichhold Chemical (Canada), owns one lot in Merritt and lists as his only creditor, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke listed a quarter interest in two lots in Okanagan Falls and share holdings in E.B.P. Consultants, a company he said is no longer operating.

Toronto Dominion Bank is a creditor and Cocke disclosed remuneration from Dominion Life Assurancee Co., the firm with which he previously worked.

Haig to NATO

United States Gen. Alexander Haig, who served as top White House aide to President Nixon, has been appointed to replace U.S. Gen. Andrew Goodpaster as NATO's Supreme Allied Commander for Europe, NATO announced today.

Angry Hijacker Blows Up Plane

Times News Services

SAIGON — Authorities blamed a disgruntled playboy officer in the government's crack Ranger force today for blowing up an Air Vietnam jet during an abortive attempt to hijack the plane to Hanoi.

Police said the officer, recently-demoted for car theft, led a three-man band that blew up the Boeing 727 Sunday over the Phan Rang air base, killing all 70 persons aboard.

The hijacker, Le Duc Tan, was "well known as a heavy drinker, womanizer and gambler," according to police.

The pilot's radio transmissions to ground controllers indicated Tan, disguised in the uniform of a paratroop major, had two accomplices in the hijack attempt.

It was the first hijacking to result in a large number of deaths, and the first time a hijacked plane was blown up in the air.

Officials said Tan bypassed security checks Sunday when he boarded the Air Vietnam Boeing 727 at Da Nang for a flight to Saigon.

Officials said when the airliner was about halfway from Da Nang to Saigon, Tan, dressed as a paratroop officer burst into the cockpit of the plane, waved two hand grenades and demanded to be flown to North Vietnam.

The air pirate became angry when the crew tried to talk him out of the hijacking

Breakthrough Seen In Embassy Siege

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Dutch and French officials claimed fresh progress today in negotiations with three Japanese Red Army guerrillas holding nine hostages in the besieged French embassy.

A few hours after the gunmen freed two women hostages and threatened to kill the nine remaining male captives, French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues said negotiations had taken "a very positive turn."

He did not elaborate.

Dutch Interior Minister Degaay Fortman inspected 200 policemen, including sharpshooters, surrounding the modern concrete and glass embassy.

"Negotiations are developing," he said.

2 JUDGES SLAIN BY BELFAST IRA

BELFAST (AP) — Terrorists killed two of Northern Ireland's most prominent judges at their homes in Belfast early today, police said.

The two were Roger Rory Conaghan, a Roman Catholic, and Martin McBirney, a Protestant, both accused by the Irish Republican Army of collaborating with the British. (The Provisional Wing of the IRA) claimed it ordered the killings.

Police say the pair may have been killed as a warning because they sent IRA men to prison.

Conaghan was shot by a lone gunman when he answered a knock at his front door at breakfast time.

"He was shot through the heart and died almost instantly," one source said.

McBirney was shot at his home in a nearby street at about the same time.

McBirney, a leading prosecutor before he was appointed to the bench in 1969, was a former chairman of Northern Ireland's Labor party and made an unsuccessful race for the British Parliament 10 years ago.

The deaths raised the official death toll in the last five years of Protestant-Catholic fighting in Northern Ireland to 1,062.

Art Bulldozed Underground

MOSCOW (UPI) — "It's just like Czechoslovakia," one man shouted as a handful of Russians pelted the advancing Soviet bulldozers with balls of mud.

The mud failed to stop the bulldozers from smashing up an abstract art show, however, just as rocks couldn't keep Soviet tanks from overrunning Czechoslovakia in 1968.

Bulldozers, water trucks and burly police barreled in Sunday to disperse about 200 men, women and children gathered in a Moscow suburb for an unsanctioned exhibit of abstract art.

The Soviet Union, which only sanctions art depicting "socialist realism," arrested five artists, manhandled some foreign diplomats and assaulted five western newsmen.

Veteran diplomats, journalists and Soviet onlookers agreed that it was the nastiest scene of its kind in Moscow in years.

Political demonstrations of any kind in the Soviet capital are always broken up in minutes and the participants, who usually number only a handful, are taken away.

A group of 13 underground artists picked a patch of wasteland in suburban Semenovskoye for the exhibition, hoping the out-of-the-way location would head off troubles with Soviet officials.

Authorities used an iron fist to break up the show, however, claiming the rain-swept muddy tract southwest of Moscow was needed for building a "park of rest and culture."

During the confrontation, some Russians tossed clods of dirt and mud at advancing bulldozers. The bulldozers pushed large sewage pipes toward the crowd, missing several persons by inches.

Plainclothes police, backed by burly young men claiming to be young Communist League members, ripped the canvasses out of the hands of artists. One man trampled a painting under his boots, screaming curses.

Artist Nadeznda Elskaya, one of five artists arrested was sentenced today to 15 days in prison for petty hooliganism, her friends reported.

Another arrested artist, who was later released, said all confiscated paintings were burned on the spot.

While provincial Liberal leader David Anderson reported modest holdings of $25,000 in shares, some Liberal backbenchers appear to be among the more affluent members of the legislature.

Vancouver Point Grey MLA Garde Gardom has shares in 12 companies, is a partner in the law firm of Gardom and Volrich and has a two-thirds interest in two properties, one in the 100 block East Second Avenue in downtown Vancouver and another in the Williams Lake area.

He has shares in Dynasty Exploration, Finning Tractor and Equipment, Massey Ferguson Ltd., Mohawk Industries Ltd., Neonex International, Pacific Western Airlines, Sherritt Gordon Mines and Trans Canada Pipe Lines Ltd.

In addition, he has shares in four other companies which he marked with a "D" and explained in a footnote it stands for "Dog."

They are Casino Silver Mines, Lancer of Canada, Monterey Petroleum and Rocket Mines Ltd.

As a further footnote to his disclosure form, Gardom wrote: "Would be happy to sell all for what I paid for them — can this be arranged?"

He listed the Toronto-Dominion Bank as a creditor.

West Vancouver Liberal MLA Allan Williams reported holding shares in the following companies: Investors Syndicate Mutual Fund, South Pacific Mines, Warnock Hersey International, Bank of British Columbia, Savanol Manufacturing, Burrard Mortgage Investments.

He is a partner in the law firm of Paine, Edmonds, Williams, Dudley and Woodley.

North Vancouver Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson is president of Scionara Holdings Ltd. and has shares in five companies.

They are: Spuraway Holdings, Giant Mascot Mines, Giant Exploration, Torwest Resources and Scionara Holdings.

His creditors are the Royal Bank of Canada and members of his family.

The desclosure form of Vancouver East Liberal MLA Pat McGeer was not available at press time.

Social Credit MLA Newell Morrison appears to have the most extensive holdings among local backbenchers.

He is the president of five companies, including Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd.

In addition, he holds shares in 11 companies and has land holdings in North Saanich.

By contrast, Esquimalt NDP MLA James Gorst has no reportable holdings.

Conservative MLA Hugh Curtis, Conservative, is a shareholder of C-FAX Radio and has a number of cash deposits with trust companies in Victoria.

The other two local MLAs, Conservative party leader Scott Wallace, Oak Bay, and Liberal leader David Anderson, Victoria, released their financial holdings on Friday.

Andersbn reported holdings of about $25,000 worth of various shares and Wallace reported shares in Provident Mutual Fund Ltd. and a $200 debenture with Victoria Golf Club.

The MLAs are not required to estimate the cash value of their holdings but must list the companies in which they have a financial interest or are in debt to.

Their holdings:

Hugh Curtis, Conservative, Saanich and The Islands: On the sales and production staff and a shareholder of C-FAX Radio; has guaranteed investment certificates (cash deposits) with National Trust, Royal Trust and Canada Trust; has registered retirement savings plan with Canada Trust; has special savings accounts with National Trust; creditor: Demand loan from Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Victoria.

James Gorst, NDP, Esquimalt: No reportable holdings or creditors.

Newell Morrison, Social Credit, Victoria: President of B.C.S.K. Development Ltd.; president of Island Holdings Ltd.; president of Morrison Aircraft Sales; president of Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd.; president of Morrison Travelworld Ltd.

Morrison holds shares in the following companies: Island Holdings Ltd., B.C. S.K. Development, Morrison Aircraft Sales, Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile, Morrison Travelworld, Highland Insurance Agency (inactive), Intercontinental Exports (inactive), Bank of British Columbia, Grouse Mountain Resorts Ltd., Rolls Royce Motors.

Morrison also has land holdings through B.C. S.K. Development Company of the following: Part of lot 7, sections 10 and 11 in North Saanich, lots 1, 2, 3 and 4 of section 10, North Saanich.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce is a creditor of B.C. S.K. Development Company.

The bank is also a creditor of Morrison Aircraft Sales and Morrison Chevrolet Oldsmobile Ltd.

Karen Sanford, NDP, Comox: No reportable holdings or creditors.

Robert Skelly, NDP, Alberni: One share of Qualicum Beach Airlines Ltd., owns western half of lot 30, DL 8, in Hilliers, B.C. Creditor: Parksville and District Credit Union.

TRANSIT STRIKE LEGISLATION SET

MONTREAL (UPI) — With both subway and bus services shut down, Premier Robert Bourassa today summoned a special session of the Quebec National Assembly to enact legislation to end the six-week Montreal transit strike.

Bus services, only partially hit when 1,600 transit maintenance workers went on strike and closed down the subway service Aug. 7, were completely tied up today when drivers refused to cross picket lines set up by the maintenance men.

The provincial government's decision to summon the National Assembly in Quebec City at 3 p.m. EDT Wednesday followed a warning last week by Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer the Assembly would be asked to pass legislation ordering the strikers back to work if no settlement were reached during the weekend.

Negotiations broke down early today between Cournoyer and Marcel Pepin, president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Back to work legislation could be completed by the end of this week.

The complete transit tie-up in Canada's biggest city saw thousands hitch-hiking and biking to and from work. Police reported mammoth traffic jams and taxis were doing hectic business.

The strikers, who work for the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission, (MUCTC), walked off initially to protest suspension of 73 employees who refused to work statutory holidays and to press for reopening of their contract to include a cost of living allowance.

Since then they have added demands for withdrawal of court fines for disregarding an injunction ordering them back to work, and full pay for all strikers for the duration of the walkout.

Empress Strike Averted

Agreement was reached and a strike averted at the Empress Hotel Sunday.

"It is one of the best contracts I've seen at any hotel," said Jean Hardy, chairman of Local 276 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

The agreement, reached by negotiators early Sunday morning and ratified by more than 400 union members Sunday afternoon, provides a total wage increase, in three stages, of $1.50 an hour in a two-year contract.

A statement this morning from the hotel said the average wage rate increase, counting adjustments, is 55.7 per cent — from $2.87 per hour to $4.47.

Lowest pay rate in the old agreement was $2.56 an hour but there was a special probationer rate of 10 cents an hour below this. The agreement eliminates this lower pay rate.

The settlement also provides for double-time for work on the sixth and seventh days in a week and three weeks vacation after six years employment (after five years in the second year of the contract) and four weeks after 12 years.

Mrs. Hardy also said there were numerous individual classification pay adjustments.

Agreement was reached with the assistance of Clark Gilmour, labor department mediation officer.

Mother Can't Testify

Mother Cecilia Mary, 85-year-old founder of the Society of the Love of Jesus, was ill today and unable to continue testimony in a B.C. Supreme Court trial.

She was on the witness stand for five hours Friday and was to have returned for completion of cross-examination.

But court was told she has been ill since Friday evening and could not return to court Wednesday at the earliest.

Mother Cecilia and four other society members, termed the "traditional" faction, are suing for control of the society which has assets estimated at $1.5 million.

A "modern" faction in the society operates an extended care hospital and a home for the elderly at St. Mary's Priory in Langford.

The trial continued this morning with Sister Mary Lucy Forde, 74, another of the traditional group, called to the stand.

The trial completed its fifth day today before Mr. Justice H. C. McKay at the Law Courts. Hugh McMillan is counsel for the traditional group and Cecil Branson and Patrick Bion represent the society.

amongst the Vietnam veterans and this offers guaranteed employment to resistors."

Carley said most of the dodgers and deserters he knew "have simply become Canadians."

"Most came here in the first place because they felt they were right about this. They're not about to announce at this late date that they were wrong about the Vietnam war."

"Desertion in time of war is a major, serious offence; failure to respond to the country's call of duty is also a serious offence," Ford said. "Reconciliation does not require that these acts be condoned.

"Yet reconciliation calls for an act of mercy to bind the nation's wounds and to heal the scars of devisiveness."

In prescribing the length of alternative service in individual cases, Ford said, the Attorney-General, the secretary of the appropriate department or the clemency board should take into account any service that an individual may have rendered prior to his absence, penalties already paid under law and other mitigating factors.

Some Resign

Disclosures filed by municipal and school board officials in the Victoria area, as available, are on page 15 today.

The reports on all MLAs and Victoria-area elected officials will be published later as they become available.

Some public officials in B.C. have indicated they will not seek re-election because of the public disclosures act.

Keith Beise, school board chairman for Vancouver Island North School District and Mrs. Annis Hennigar, vice-chairman of the same board, announced that they will not file statements of their financial affairs under the act.

Mrs. Hennigar's husband, Owen Hennigar, also said he will resign as a director of the Mount Wadding Regional District, rather than disclose his finances.

Other municipal officials not seeking re-election include North Saanich alderman Herta Hartmanshenn and Central Saanich alderman Zach Hamilton.

and summoned his two "bodyguards and security men" dressed in civilian clothes to help him.

They said the pilot argued with the hijacker as the three-engine jet circled over Phan Rang running low on fuel. He pulled the pins on his grenades when the pilot tried to set the jet down to refuel, they said.

Meanwhile, Communists bombed a South Vietnamese government office today wounding five persons.

The bombing was the first act of terrorism in Saigon attributed to Communists since the January, 1973, ceasefire agreement.

A man and three women on motorbikes hurled the explosives into a downtown building and the blast wounded two military officers and three others, according to police.

the weather

Afternoon temperatures soared to the eighties at many southern interior B.C. points while mid seventy readings were attained at most other reporting stations in the province. The exceptions were again over northwestern regions where the mercury barely reached the mid sixties as a chain of Pacific disturbances continues to plague that area.

Very little change is expected in the present pattern for the next 24 to 48 hours although a slight southward progression of the disturbances may occur spreading cloud and the possibility of showers to the central coast. Some cloud and the odd showers may also creep into the northern and central interior of the province today. Early morning fog patches will give way to mainly sunny skies and warm temperatures over most southern regions during the days as the effects of the high pressure ridge continues to be felt.

How can you beat higher fares to Europe?

Introducing our new, low APEX* Fare.

Our what? Our Advance Purchase Excursion Fare, on regularly-scheduled British Airways flights from Toronto or Montreal. If you're flying to London you save $41 over the normal 22-to-45-day economy excursion fares but, granted, there are a few differences.
With APEX: you've got to book 2 months in advance of your departure and pay your entire fare at that time. (If you travel in November you can reserve your seat and purchase your ticket anytime in September). Children under 12 can travel for ⅓ of the adult fare, infants under 2 for 10%. The hitch is that if you cancel or change your departure or return dates after you have purchased your tickets, there's a penalty of 10% or minimum of $50.
Our daily roster of jets to London, Manchester and Glasgow gives you quite a choice, and we've got an incredible number of handy connections to all over Europe.
So, if you can live with a fixed departure and return date, you can fly to Britain, for $41 less than normal 22-to-45 day fares.

If you're interested (and who wouldn't be), you'd better book soon because the number of APEX* seats on any flight is limited. Just tell your travel agent you'd like the new APEX* fare to Britain. And a seat on British Airways.

Cup to Castaways

Fine bowling by Alan Rees and an unbeaten stand by opening batsmen Dave Shaw and Dave Clarke Saturday earned Castaways the Victoria and District Association's Knockout Cup.

Nanaimo, playing in the tournament for the first time and a candidate for Victoria league play next season, batted first in the association's final match of the season at Beacon Hill Park.

Ray Telford scored 42 runs but he was the only Nanaimo batsman who was comfortable against Rees, who took six wickets for 35 runs, and Cec Myers, who finished with three for 20.

Nanaimo was all out for 86 runs and, with Shaw on 46 not out and Clarke 45 not out, Castaways won the match by 10 wickets.

TIGERS TIE CENTENNIALS

CALGARY (CP) — Gary Vaughan scored on a breakaway with five minutes remaining to give Medicine Hat Tigers a 7-7 tie with Calgary Centennials in an exhibition game between the two Western Canada Hockey League clubs Sunday.

Saturday, Medicine Hat beat Calgary 10-1 with Brad Murdoch scoring four goals.

Renton's Day In Field Hockey

Inside-right Tom Renton had a busy day Sunday and turned the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association season opening into a personal scoring spree.

Renton scored a goal in the morning when defending Island champions Rebels No. 1 defeated Castaways No. 2 by 6-2 at Lansdowne Junior High School.

Then the inside-right hammered in three goals that afternoon for the Rebel Club's No. 2 team in a 4-1 win over University of Victoria Vikings at UVic.

Renton's total gave him a share of the league's individual scoring lead after the first day with Mike Paget, who scored four goals as Castaways No. 1 downed Fossils 7-3.

Craig Wilson scored three goals in Rebels No. 1's victory and the other scorers were Danny Tourangeau and Brian Foley. Ron Vincent scored both goals for Castaways No. 2.

In Sunday's other game, Tigers, the East-Indian team which is returning to the league after dropping out during last season, defeated Oak Bay Sports Club, a new entry, 6-1.

The Island Women's Association opened its schedule Saturday when the big surprise was Oak Bay's 5-1 win over defending-champion Pirates.

FIRST DIVISION

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Anyone who has recently learned to his sorrow that he or a loved one has amyotrophic lateral sclerosis will want to read an excellent article on the subject by Robert G. Dicus in the "Rehabilitation Gazette" (4502 Maryland Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63108, Volume XVI, 1973). Mr. Dicus says that he has fought with the disease (called ALS or Lou Gehrig's disease, after the famous baseball player who died of the disease in 1938) for 10 years; although he is in a wheel chair, he is able to write and produce motion pictures. He is supporting his wife and family. He has just learned to be a computer programmer.

What is wonderful about the the article by Mr. Dicus is that he can give much hope to people with ALS. Unfortunately, the picture is discouraging for the person with the disease, because the cause is not known and there is no known cure. The doctor may say, "There is nothing anyone can do." Mr. Dicus says, "as a patient, I have come to know that there is hope of survival from ALS and that there is a great deal which the patient and his family must do to survive."

ALS generally strikes a man when he is about 50. Twice as many men as women are affected. The patient would do well to have the diagnosis confirmed by two or three able neurologists, but then, as Mr. Dicus says, there is no use in travelling around hunting for a cure; this only wastes money, time, and energy; and certainly there is no sense in giving money to quacks.

One of the first things that the patient and his family can do is to join the National Paraplegia Foundation, 33 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60601. This organization is concerned with furthering research, and can keep its members informed about any progress that has been made. Also, families with ALS members have formed the ALS Foundation, Inc., 10212 Noble Ave., Mission Hills, Calif. 91340, which can offer help and advice on meeting some of the problems that come with the disease.

Mr. Dicus warns the patient and his family against becoming too frightened. He says so wisely what I have known for many years — that fear can kill a person. The person can do things to keep fighting the disease. For example, it is important to eat nutritious foods and avoid infections that can weaken the body. There may come extreme fatigue, muscle cramps, and twitching and increasing weakness of the muscles. Some patients have trouble breathing.

It should be very encouraging to people facing ALS to know that Mr. Dicus is still able to work and be productive after 10 years with the disease. Perhaps soon research workers will find some clues as to the cause of this strange and distressing disease. Curiously, although many people know very little about the disease, I read that it is as prevalent as multiple sclerosis (a disease of the nervous system) and four times more prevalent than muscular dystrophy (a wasting disease of the muscles).

Some people wonder if the disease is hereditary, and there is some question about this. There are two papers on the subject by Drs. L. D. Kurland and D. W. Mulder of the Mayo clinic. Years ago, Dr. Mulder, a distinguished neurologist, found a surprisingly large incidence of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis in the natives on the island of Guam. The cause there could possibly be much in-breeding in a small population.

In 1960, Lieutenant J. B. Green reported in a paper about a family in which ALS showed up in four generations — in the father, two sons, a daughter, two granddaughters, and one great-grandson.

There seem to be three separate types of the disease: (1) the sporadic form, which is the most common type found in the U.S. and accounts for more than 90 per cent of the cases occurring in North America and Western Europe: (2) the familial, or hereditary form: (3) the Guam type, which is the major cause of death among Chamorro people.

Male Salons Booming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Does he or doesn't he? To paraphrase famous hair coloring advertisement geared to women, he does. The salons specializing in men's styling report a booming business in color change.

There's also a rapid growth of permanents for men, especially for those with fine hair who "can't do a thing with it" when they wash it. A permanent in today's longer hair styles will give body and hold.

I've yet to see a male in curlers under a hair dryer, but at least in getting a permanent they have to be wrapped and soaked in waving solution for the initial curl.

Then, salon people say, after shampoos the men get the hair dried by infrared lamp or with one of the brush-blower gadgets also used on some women customers.

Big cities have salons catering to men with all types of beauty care but in less urban areas, the home permanent comes onto the scene with the wife often giving her husband one. Or, she may do his color.

Some industry sources estimate the men's market in color alone at more than $15 million a year for '74, up sharply from the $4 million two years ago. Annual sales of women's coloring products is $200 million.

The sales people at L'Oreal, a leading maker of color products, figured that 48 per cent of the male population starts color at around 38 years, or when the sideburns begin to gray. It drops off to 24 per cent in smaller towns where there aren't as many specialty salons.

Manufacturers and salon people give several reasons for the coloring and permanent boom. There is the national accent on youth, when older men can't afford to look a "distinguished gray" in business competition with younger men.

James Anderson, vice president of sales for American Hairdresser Magazine, said affluence is a factor; everyone from the blue collar worker to the businessman can afford to spend more on his appearance.

And, said Anderson, "in these rugged days, what with politics, the economy and all, men just want to look better."

The trend has spawned several books on men's fashions and grooming. One is devoted strictly to hair — "the complete book of men's hairstyles and hair care" (Crown), written by Miriam Cordwell and Marion Rudoy, both long in the beauty (for women) field.

"Today's male has come into his own," they write. ". . . he is colorful and the sole arbiter of his own lifestyle and looks."

One section is devoted strictly to the science of coloring, with a bit of caution for the do-it-yourselfer. "Corrections due to mistaken use or judgment are expensive, often more so than the original service in a salon."

The men are going in for light browns to cover the gray, the lighter shades helping to give a younger look, reported to G10, the chief hair stylist at Jerry's Barber Shop, the salon in Bergdorf Goodman's, New York.

FOUR GRAIN HEALTH LOAF

By MARY MOORE

"Mum what we should be doing instead of sitting here playing scrabble is put some bread to rise. We haven't got a crumb."

Without another word we jumped up and headed for the kitchen.

We had two problems: One was we had only 10 cups all-purpose flour on hand; the other was I was determined to make 1 package of yeast rise four loaves of bread because yeast now costs 10c or 11c per package. (see note below).

What follows results in four loaves of gorgeous nutritious bread that elicited cries such as "I smell fresh bread!" "Is it out of the oven yet?" etc. etc.—encouraging words to the baker that cheer her on to greater future efforts.

FOUR-GRAIN HEALTH-BREAD

(4 loaves—overnight method)

6 c. warm water
2-3 c. margarine
1 c. brown sugar
1 pkg. granular yeast—1 tablespoon (see note below)
10 c. unsifted all-purpose flour—DIVIDED
3 c. whole wheat flour
½ c. natural bran (packed)
1 c. rolled oats
1 c. cornmeal
½ c. sesame seeds
1½ c. skim milk powder
4 tsp. salt

Into a very large container —outsize bowl, clean dishpan or roasting pan—measure the warm water, margarine and brown sugar and stir to dissolve and melt a little. Sprinkle yeast over top and let stand a full 15 minutes.

Meanwhile measure all remaining ingredients. (There were so many we measured them into the top of the roasting pan.) As soon as yeast liquid has had its full soaking time add all remaining ingredients EXCEPT 2 CUPS of the white flour and mix as well as you can with strong wooden spoon—Davey did this for us for it requires a strong arm. Scrape down sides, cover and put in very cool place overnight. We put ours in the refrigerator. In the morning let warm to room temperature place under a light if possible to speed up warming. Let rise until doubled. Sprinkle board with reserved 2 cups flour and knead AT LEAST 200 times. Again Davey did this for us. Shape into long even roll. Cut into four even pieces. Shape into perfectly smooth football-shaped loaves. Put into four greased standard loaf pans and let rise until 1" above rims of pans—about 1½ hours. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr.-about 55 minutes. Turn out on racks to cool. Give all of the hovering hungry ones a thick slice—this polished off a half a loaf on the spot. Beautiful food!

NOTE: In my health food store I can buy one-half pound granular yeast for 80c. On the same shopping trip I saw on the supermarket shelf one 4-oz. can of the familiar brand for 85c. All you have to remember is that 1 tablespoon granular yeast is equivalent to one of the small familiar foil packages.

• the leisure craftsman

by Phyllis Fiarotta

Q. Do you have any crafts ideas using tin cans?

—Miss Mandy Jo Lopez (age 8)

A. Here are a few ideas that you and other craftsmen your age might enjoy trying.

Three coffee cans with plastic lids make a Totem Pole catchall. Wrap construction paper around each can, using a different color for each can. Tape ends of the paper together and cut away the excess paper on top of the can. Draw on funny faces with crayons or markers, or paste on paper faces. Add real or paper feathers. Fill each can with special things, put the lids back on and stack the cans like a totem pole.

Play Village can be used for your dolls or can be added to brother's train set. Use cans of many sizes and wrap each with colored construction paper as above. Roll another piece of paper into a cone roof for each can. Tape and trim evenly. Draw on house designs with crayons or markers.

Penny Toss Game is 10 cans of different sizes glued together in a triangle. Toss pennies from a distance. If the penny lands in a large can, you win a penny. The smaller the cans, the more pennies you win. You don't win if you miss a can.

Mamma's Boy Blues

DEAR ABBY: If I were Dear Abby for ten minutes, I would tell every woman in the world not to marry a mamma's boy. One of the tip-offs is a man who is between 30 and 40 and not married.

I married one of these Yo-Yos and it's the dumbest thing I ever did. Although he's a steady worker, that's all he knows how to do. I have to get him up in the morning, tell him what to wear, and even when to change his clothes. He's so childish and helpless.

He doesn't even know how to kiss. He clamps his lips together and presses them on my lips. I've tried to teach him how, but even after five years, he hasn't improved.

He doesn't know the first thing about how to make love, either. It's whim-wham, and that's it. So for the last two years, an hour before he gets home I start to getting a "migraine."

I'd go to a marriage counsellor, but he won't go, and no woman can save her marriage alone.

Mamma's boys just want a cook and housekeeper and a bed partner for two minutes once a week. If I could get a job and support myself, I'd leave him. — STUCK

DEAR STUCK: Nobody is stopping you from trying. One woman's leftovers are another woman's banquet.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a small one, but on second thought, are bad manners ever a small problem?

My husband and I would like your opinion of this situation: We know two different families whom we invite to our home for dinner occasionally. (Not together.)

The minute we sit down at the table, both fathers of these families ask one of their children to say the grace.

Abby, am I out of line to think this shows extreme bad manners on their part? I always thought it was up to the host and hostess to decide if grace was to be said at their table. And if so, by whom.

Please print your reply. Perhaps these men or their wives will read your column and learn something. Or I may learn something if I am wrong. —Social Grace.

DEAR SOCIAL: You are not wrong. It's the host's or hostess' prerogative to decide if grace shall be said at his (or her) table, and if so, by whom.

DEAR ABBY: I have a unique problem. I have been married to Elmer for six years. We are both in our late twenties.

All my life I have been extremely overweight, but this last year, through a friend's inspiration, I was motivated to lose 120 pounds. (Yes, one hundred and twenty pounds!)

Throughout my diet Elmer never indicated that he approved or disapproved, but now that my life has changed as much as my figure, Elmer has decided that he doesn't like the "new me", and he wants me to regain the weight I sacrificed so much to get rid of.

Perhaps I should mention that Elmer is fat, and we used to have a lot of fun together eating all the things we shouldn't but those days are gone for me. Now Elmer feels betrayed, and I feel guilty, because when he married me he really liked me the way I was.

I am torn between staying thin, which I am so proud to be, or letting myself go to please Elmer. — Formerly Fat.

DEAR FORM: For heaven's sake, stay thin! Join Overeater's Anonymous and let them help you. And take Elmer with you. They are a great, loving, caring fellowship. If Elmer doesn't flip for them and their program, I'll eat my calorie counter.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "Alimony Poor": That's the high cost of leaving; also it's the next thing that should be "Nadarized." But ask yourself, would you rather have your wife back? That should offer some comfort.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, Sept. 17

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Partnership proposals should be viewed now with healthy skepticism. Some who say they can do so much for you actually want you to perform tasks, services for them. Keep guard up, eyes open — and ask questions.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Structure may not be solid — you need to do some reinforcing. Go over details. Be specific and obtain specifics. Reject the superficial. You have a right to complete access to pertinent information.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Emotional responses could oppose logic. Know it and be wary of first impressions. You could encounter smooth talker who attempts to pull wool over your eyes. Obtain valid hint from Taurus message. Call or message will alter picture.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): You need help from family member — and you can get it if diplomatic. Don't insist, cajole or attempt to force any issue. Accent is on change of venue, a reassessment of goals. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Element of confusion is present. Define terms. Refine techniques. Be sure you are accurately quoted. Avoid trying too much at once. Relatives, close neighbors may be involved. Emphasis is on short trip connected with home, property value.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Financial matters are not what they seem to be. You have more strength in this area than might be apparent on surface. Know it and assume responsibility. Capricorn, Cancer persons might be in picture. Investment and collection — these are featured.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): You get nothing for nothing — and you also may find that what was supposed to begin is really finished. Cycle is high and you land on your feet following some financial bobbing, weaving. Aggressive associate may not know meaning — or value — of money.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): You can get behind closed doors and call the shots. Means what was hidden or obscured becomes available — for your eyes only. You are trusted with a special responsibility. Sense of discretion is put to severe test.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Friends confide. Key is to know when to listen seriously, when to laugh and when to walk away. Member of opposite sex wants to be placated, congratulated and flattered. Maintain self-esteem. Don't become a crying towel. Let others know that you value your time and opinions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Emphasis is on prestige, ability to present your case in manner which gains popular support. Gemini, Cancer and Sagittarius individuals are in picture. One friend, who may mean well, would do best by going away for a time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): You will be remodelling, reconstructing, getting "in-touch" with persons at a distance. You also will be intrigued with language and travel. Another Aquarian, a Scorpio, Taurus and Leo figure prominently. Your personal philosophy is put to test — and emerges strong.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): One who pulls purse strings wants you to do some convincing — means gather material and get it in presentable form. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. You may find that escrow is "tied up," that cash flow has temporarily been disrupted.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have executive ability, are particular, responsible, capable of organizing and good when it comes to money management. June was important — change comes in December — and many drawn to you are born under Capricorn and Cancer. You are a direct, dynamic, powerful person who keeps something for the proverbial "rainy day."
